ROME, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Achille Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, was elected Pope on the first ballot taken today in the conclave of Cardinals, and will reign under the name of Pius XI.

Announcement of the election of the new Pontiff was made by Cardinal Bisleti to a crowd of more than 10,000 who were waiting in St. Peter's Square despite the rain. Great confusion preceded the announcement, part of the throng seeking to enter St. Peter's Church for the first blessing of the new Pontiff and part seeking to obtain sheltered places near the balcony overlooking the square.

Contrary to the general expectation, the Pope did not appear in the church, but gave the benediction from the balcony for the first time since Pope Pius IX.'s election. This was interpreted as a good omen of his pacific intentions toward the Italian Government and that he intended to follow the program of his immediate predecessor, Benedict XV., for the establishment of better relations between the Vatican and the Quirinal.

Rush to Receive Pope's Blessing.

When a thin trickle of white smoke issuing from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel announced that the new Pope had been elected, the large crowd in St. Peter's Square remained quiet for a few moments in apparent indecision. Then, with a roar like water rushing through a burst dam, the multitude started running toward the entrance of the Basilica.

A part of the crowd remained outside to catch the first announcement of the name of the new Pontiff, while others ran through the doors of the church to receive his first blessing.

The confusion at the narrow entrance of the church was great. Men, women and children struggled for admittance. The clothing of some was torn, hats were trampled and many fainted. Nuns at first aid stations assisted the injured.

Troops placed four deep near the entrance were swept from their feet for a time, but recovered after the first rush and succeeded in restoring order.

After a short period of waiting, two Papal servants, in red liveries richly embroidered with gold, appeared on the central balcony over the main door of the Basilica facing the square. They hung from the balcony a large cloth of white satin, edged with red velvet and decorated with the Papal arms.

Announced to the Throng.

After another pause, Cardinal Bisleti, preceded by a functionary bearing a Pontifical silver cross and escorted by several Cardinals, appeared on the balcony. His appearance was the signal for an outburst of applause which was succeeded by profound silence, as he raised his hand. The silence became almost absolute, when Cardinal Bisleti stepped forward and said:

"I announce to you great joy. We have a new Pontiff, Cardinal Ratti, who assumes the name of Pope Pius XI."

The bells of St. Peter's immediately rang out. The chimes announcing the election of the new Pope were answered at once by the bells of all the other churches in Rome, but were not answered, as was the case fifty years ago, by the booming of the guns of the Castle of San Angelo, which now belongs to the Italian Government.

The Italian troops in the square presented arms at the announcement. The people in the crowd threw their hats into the air or waved handkerchiefs, shouting, "Long life to the Pope and all glory to his Pontificate!"

Another rush to St. Peter's Church then began, the crowd outside attempting to force its way into a space that was already crowded.

Pope Appears on Balcony.

When comparative quiet had been restored Pius XI. appeared on the balcony. A silver-headed Pontifical cross was held over his head, and around him were grouped the Cardinals of the Papal Court. The Pope by this time was dressed entirely in white, his costume contrasting sharply with the scarlet gowns of the Cardinals and the richly colored costumes of others with him.

Those in the square fell to their knees to receive the Pope's blessing. He intoned in Latin, "Blessed be the name of the Lord," and then, thrice raising his right hand with the first two fingers

MARINI REPORTED DEAD IN THE VATICAN

ILL ENTERING CONCLAVE

Very Weak From an Attack of Influenza and His Vote Had to Be Recorded at Bedside.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Marini, according to the Rome correspondent of The London Times, died in the Vatican before the election of the Pope.

Cardinal Marini was suffering from influenza when he entered the conclave. He remained in bed for the first day, but on the second day he participated in the deliberations of the Cardinals and was able to take part in the balloting.

After that his condition became worse and he was compelled to remain in bed.

Cardinal Marini was acutely suffering from influenza, when, on Feb. 2, after the other doors had been walled up, Prince Chigi unbolted the great door of the Forno in order to allow him to be taken in.

According to all available records he is the first modern Cardinal to die in conclave, although at the election of Leo XIII. in 1878 one Cardinal was removed in a carriage—there were no ambulances then—and died a few days later from a disease contracted in the Vatican.

Niccolo Cardinal Marini was one of the creations in 1916 of the late Pope. He belonged to the order of Cardinal Priests. He was a Roman by birth, having been born in the Eternal City in 1843 of a reputed patrician family. When elevated to the purple he took the titular office of Deacon of Santa Maria in Domenica. His actual duties were those of Secretary of the Congregation for the Eastern Church, whose Prefect was the Pope, and whose assistant was Mgr. Isaia Papadopulos, the titular Bishop of Grazianopoli.

Cardinal Marini spent almost his entire life in the Eternal City, and since his creation, although suffering much from the disease of age, had been regular in his attendance at the meetings of the Curia.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 6.—Commenting today on the election of Cardinal Ratti as Pope, Archbishop Curley said:

"His election was providential, as I feel certain the Church will prosper during his reign. His election pleases me very much. He has at all times proved himself a man of energy and fitness in the offices he held in the Church. I am delighted that the Catholic Church again has a head. Since the death of Benedict XV., the late Pope, the Church has been without a pilot, and a ship without a pilot is subject to very many and grave dangers."

IRISH SPLIT WIDENS ON BORDER QUESTION

North and South Leaders Confer With British Cabinet, but Cannot Agree.

CRAIG STATES POSITION

Ulsterites Will Consent to No Change Except by Mutual Agreement With Free Staters.

LONDON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—After a number of important conferences in London today between the Southern Irish leaders, Premier Lloyd George and members of the British Cabinet; between Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, and the members of his Cabinet, and, finally, late this afternoon between Sir James and Lloyd George, a solution of the difficulty over the question of fixing the Ulster boundaries apparently had not been found.

Statements issued tonight by Michael Collins, head of the Provisional Government in Ireland, and the Ulster Premier indicate that they still are far from an agreement.

In official circles it is expected that Lloyd George will comment on his interviews with Mr. Collins and Sir James Craig in the course of his speech before the House of Commons tomorrow.

"The majorities must rule" the Provisional Government head reaffirmed in a statement to the press regarding the boundaries controversy. The Ulster Premier, on the other hand, in a letter which he sent to Premier Lloyd George after the Ulster Cabinet meeting, declared the Ulsterites could not consent to alteration of the boundary except by mutual agreement, failing which the Government of Ireland act of 1920 must be looked to in defining the boundaries of any disputed area.

Sir James said the Ulsterites would adhere to the principle laid down by the Prime Minister himself in a letter to Eamon de Valera last July, namely, that an Irish settlement must fully recognize the Ulster Government's existing powers and privileges, which only Ulster could abrogate.

Invokes Act of 1920.

A significant point about the letter is that it invokes the Government of Ireland act as governing boundary disputes and fails to allude to the treaty, which provides for a boundary commission. The text of the letter follows:

"I have held a meeting with those members of the Cabinet of Northern Ireland who are present in London to consider the question of boundaries as it now stands. Since the correspondence began on the subject of an Irish settlement we have relied on the sentence in your letter of July 20, 1921, to Mr. de Valera, which runs as follows: 'It (the settlement) must allow for full recognition of the existing powers and privileges of the Parliament and Government of Northern Ireland, which cannot be abrogated except by their own consent.'

"Although the necessity for giving a final decision on behalf of the Government of Northern Ireland does not arise until after our Parliament has voted itself out of the Free State, as the result of our deliberations today I have

1 Man Killed, 1 Hurt in Riverside Drive By Piece of Terra Cotta Falling 15 Stories

One workman was killed and another seriously injured late yesterday afternoon by a large piece of terra cotta which fell from the top of a fifteen-story apartment building nearing completion at Riverside Drive and Ninetieth Street. An investigation was started immediately by Assistant District Attorney Benedict Dineen to determine whether there had been criminal negligence.

August Eckerling, 27 years, of 331 West Forty-ninth Street, a carpenter, installing elevators in the Riverside Drive apartment house, was the man killed and William McDowell, 31 years, of 135 Summit Avenue, Jersey City, was injured by the same object.

Eckerling and McDowell were on the deck of a shed constructed across the Riverside Drive sidewalk for the protection of pedestrians and were passing lumber from one floor to another.

Eckerling and McDowell were suddenly startled by shouts, "Look out below!" Before they had time to move, the falling terra cotta struck Eckerling in the chest, just above the heart. It glanced and struck McDowell on the head. Dr. Burns, who came with an ambulance from Knickerbocker Hospital, said that Eckerling had been killed instantly. McDowell was removed to the hospital.

De Marco told Detectives Booth Trojan and Edward Fitzgerald that the piece of terra cotta had slipped from the scaffold.

Mr. Dineen ordered the Superintendent of the construction company and workmen to repair his office this morning. The building is being constructed by Neenan & Co. for the Ninetieth Street Realty Company, the police said.

THE MAYOR ROUSED AGAINST HIS FOES

UNTERMYER, ONE TARGET

Opponents on Schools, Another—And 'Dave' Hirshfield Speaks Out on School Situation.

Various versions of a conversation by telephone alleged to have been held yesterday between Mayor Hylan at Palm Beach, Fla., and his secretary in New York, these versions being based apparently upon a "leak" in the telephone system at Palm Beach, reached this city last night. According to all of these reports, the Mayor asked his secretary to get hold of "Dave" (presumably Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield), and to see "W. R." and have The American get after "Sam" Untermyer and start something on his statement that he had spent half a million on the Lockwood inquiry; also to get hold of Snyder on the School Commission and have "W. R." start a fight on Gary (meaning probably the advocates of the Gary school plan), to line him (or them) up with Rockefeller and to get after Maloney.

Clarence E. Meleney, Assistant Superintendent of Schools whose term expires on Feb. 13 and who some time ago aroused the Mayor's wrath by telling about conditions in the schools. He comes up for re-election in the Board of Education tomorrow.

The Mayor was reported to have been very urgent in impressing upon his secretary the importance of winning the school fight. He is also credited with having urged that "the inspector" be asked to guard his house carefully during his absence.

Whether Commissioner Hirshfield received the instructions thus reported to have been sent for him could not be learned, but Commissioner Hirshfield did issue yesterday the following statement on the school situation:

Hirshfield's Statement.

"Governor Miller is speaking before the Real Estate Board of New York at its annual dinner at the Hotel Commodore Saturday evening, in the course of his talk about the New York schools is reported to have said:

"'Education is a State function, but the city selects the locality, the machinery of the locality, and makes it the agency of the State to work out the school problem. * * * And so, although we depend upon the local agencies to handle the school problem in part * * * whenever the time comes that those powers are abused, then it is time for the State to intervene.'

"After having declared himself in favor of the Downing bill, now before the Legislature, which would extend Superintendent Ettinger's tenure of office beyond Mayor Hylan's term in office, the Governor, with reference to former District Superintendent Grace Strachan Forsythe's recent election to Associate Superintendent, and disregarding the fact that Mrs. Forsythe had grown up in the New York City school service, having risen gradually from the position of teacher, is quoted to have made use of the following language: '* * * whenever an effort is made to drag the slimy trail of politics through our schools, then the time has arrived for the State to say "Stop," and he urged the members of the Real Estate Board to 'get to Albany by the first available means and call it to a halt.'

Plays on Gary Chord.

"The fact of the matter is that if there has been any politics in the public schools, leaving behind a 'slimy trail,' such politics have been and are now being played by the so-called 'educational crowd' headed by Superintendent William L. Ettinger and his Associate Superintendents, backed by the Rockefeller Educational Gary system crowd.

"Governor Miller seems to forget that the tax and rent payers of the City of New York pay for the erection of the school buildings and their maintenance. They pay for the school supplies, they pay the salaries of Superintendent Ettinger, of the teachers and of every one else connected with the school system. The city's appropriation for school purposes in this year's (1922) budget is $70,701,012.30.

"So brazen is this school crowd in their play of school politics that they resent any attempt of the tax and rent payers to find out how their money appropriated for school purposes is being expended and what is being actually done in the schools.

"When, some time after this administration came into power, I as Commissioner of Accounts sent my accountants to the Board of Education to audit the books of that department, Superin-

PRESS FILM STAR FOR TAYLOR CLEW

MABEL NORMAND SPEAKS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—A motion picture actress was subjected to what the police termed a "long and grueling" examination at her home here tonight in an attempt to obtain a clew to the murderer of William Desmond Taylor.

The actress was said to be widely known, but her name was withheld by the police. Two detective sergeants examined her.

What they learned they kept to themselves. They admitted they were seeking to develop the previously advanced theory that Taylor had been slain by a jealous rival for the affections of the actress.

Mabel Normand, who was among the last persons to see Taylor alive, made a number of declarations "on her word of honor" to newspaper interviewers today.

Not in "Love" with Taylor.

"Were you ever in love with Taylor?" they asked her.

"Not in the way one means when he uses the expression 'in love.' On my word of honor, no," she said. "Get it straight. Our friendship was based on comradeship and understanding."

"Did you know any woman who might have been jealous of you—who might have loved Taylor?"

"On my word of honor, no."

"Or any man who might have been jealous of the place he occupied in your esteem?"

"On my word of honor, no."

"It has been hinted he gave drug parties. Did you ever hear of them?"

"Never in God's world, never, on my word of honor."

After some questions, she said:

"And, oh please, say that I never heard of that pink silk night robe they say is missing from Mr. Taylor's apartments."

"But Henry Peavey, the negro houseman, said ——"

"He ought to be ashamed of himself for saying I asked him about other girls going to Mr. Taylor's house," she exclaimed. "I saved him his job once when Mr. Taylor wanted to fire him."

If Sands, the missing butler, can be found the complaint against him charging grand larceny, made by Taylor and now in the hands of the police, will be dropped, it was announced tonight by Captain Adams, who stated that as Taylor was dead the case could not be taken to court. Therefore, he added, if Sands could clear himself of all connection with Taylor's death no other charge would be placed against him.

Adams said he had information which led him to believe that regardless of where Sands might have been last Wednesday night he was not in Los Angeles at present. He said none of the persons who had stated Sands was in the city just before the murder had said they had talked with him.

Several women with whom Sands was said to have been friendly have been interviewed by the police, and all are reported to have stated that they had neither seen nor heard from him for months.

Investigate Chauffeur's Clue.

An unidentified "party of men" was driven to the neighborhood of the Taylor apartment the night he was murdered, according to a story told the police today by a taxicab driver. What else the chauffeur told the police they did not make public, but it was known that in the search for the slayer of the motion picture director, the detectives examined six men today. These included Charles Eyton, general manager of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, by which Taylor had been employed, and Henry Peavey, negro house servant of the head director.

The examination of the four unnamed men including the chauffeur, was in furtherance of the search for Edward F. Sands, or Edward Fitz Strathmore, the missing butler.

The chauffeur's suspicions were said to have been aroused after reading of the murder, and he communicated his knowledge to the police. He and a companion were in secret conference with the police several hours and during that period took a hurried automobile ride with the detectives.

Two of the four men were said to have entered into the investigation for the first time today. Twice during the day all the detectives working on the case were called together in conference with Captain Adams. They said they

HARDING SEES DAWN OF A BETTER EPOCH AS HE LAUDS RESULTS OF CONFERENCE; FOUR TREATIES SIGNED AT LAST SESSION

Harding Inclined to Accept Genoa Invitation; Senator Threatens to Invoke Old Law Against It

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Because of the success of the arms conference, a strong reaction has been noted today in official circles in favor of the United States being represented at the Genoa conference. Leaders who several weeks ago advised against the United States participating in the Genoa assembly are now inclined to modify these views. President Harding, it is known, has been hoping that events might shape themselves so that he could accept the invitation to send a representative. Secretary Hughes, who on Jan. 8 opposed American participation, is said to be less determined in his attitude.

Senators opposed to participation in the Genoa conference are much aroused over the reported change of view of the President, and there were many discussions today in the cloak rooms. One of the most active opponents declared he would offer a resolution calling attention to this provision in a deficiency bill signed by President Taft on March 4, 1913:

Hereafter the Executive shall not extend or accept any invitation to participate in any international congress, conference or like event without first having specific authority of law to do so.

He holds that this prevents the President from accepting the invitation to Genoa without permission of Congress, but Senator Borah, who is also opposed to America being a participant at Genoa, does not think this provision can limit the President's action in such a way.

GADSKI OPENS SUIT FOR $500,000 HERE

HINTED SHE GOT $7,500

Mme. Johanna Gadski Tauscher, the opera singer, who is better known as Mme. Gadski, began suit in the Federal Court yesterday against the Chicago Opera Association, Inc., for $500,000 damages for alleged slander. The suit is a faint echo of the war, because it grows out of an alleged violation of contract and a statement that the plaintiff, because of her German birth and citizenship, would not be welcomed by American audiences.

The complaint states that about Nov. 3, 1921, the plaintiff was engaged to sing the rôle of Isolde in the opera "Tristan and Isolde," which was to be presented by the defendant in Chicago. Plaintiff's compensation was to be $1,500 for each performance. She prepared herself for the part, the plaintiff states, but could not induce the defendant to set the dates for her appearance. It is alleged in the complaint that this delay was to prevent others from engaging her either for opera or for concert and that, therefore, she was deprived of the opportunity of entering into lucrative work.

The defendant is charged with having made the following statement about Dec. 8 last, in the presence of newspaper men:

"Her (the plaintiff's) contract with the organization has been cancelled, and there are rumors that this action cost the company in the neighborhood of $7,500. There are hints that patrons of the opera and subscribers to the fund objected to Mme. Gadski's husband, Captain Tauscher, who arrived recently in New York. The memories of the World War, it is said, are yet too fresh for the American public to take to Captain Tauscher or any one connected with him."

The plaintiff asserts that this statement was published in many newspapers in the United States and that it was intended to mean that because she was the wife of Hans Tauscher, a German subject, the general public in this country would refuse to hear her sing; that she had been paid $7,500 to cancel the contract, and that because of the conduct of her husband during the war her presence in public would not result in the success of any part in which she should appear.

Mme. Gadski states in her complaint that her husband lived in Germany during the war and devoted his energies to alleviating the condition of American prisoners, and that he returned here in November by permission of this Government for "the particular purpose of making available to manufacturers in the United States certain new processes in manufacturing metals, which had been invented in Germany and were hitherto known only to them."

She adds that she lives here with her daughter and has conducted herself at all times in strict accord with the laws of the United States and in harmony with the sentiments of its people. To prove that her personality is not repellant the plaintiff states that in Washington on Dec. 4 last she gave a concert, which was attended by the Vice President, and that at other times she has appeared in theatres filled with those eager to hear her.

William L. Wemple, Mme. Gadski's counsel, gave out a statement by her, in which she says that the suit was instituted with great reluctance and because of the urging of friends. She says that the attitude of the Chicago Opera Company, after her success in concerts in New York, St. Louis and Washington, could not have been a matter of vocal or dramatic merit, "but must have been based on the influence of cruel lies that still find tongues to carry and ears to listen."

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Mme. Johanna Gadski, the opera singer, was under contract to sing with the Chicago Opera Company this season, but never appeared, and, according to the announcement some weeks ago, was paid $7,500 to cancel her contract.

The contract was made in Europe last Summer by Mary Garden, general director of the company.

MANY GRAVE ISSUES PERPLEX BRITAIN

FOES ATTACK COALITION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The British Parliament meets tomorrow amid conditions which might dismay the stoutest hearted if it were not that the Washington conference has shown that common sense and good-will still have their prerogatives in an apparently crazy world. Washington has lit beacon fires upon the hilltops. Europe is still groping in dark alleys, but there is encouragement and incentive to renewed effort here in the glorious achievement in America.

Both at home and abroad Great Britain is beset with difficulties—the Irish question, the Egyptian question, the Indian question, and last, but not least, the general European question, which for the time being pivots around the Genoa conference. Any one of these problems may produce complications imperiling the existence of the Lloyd George Coalition and forcing a general election upon the country.

Domestic politics has reached a pitch of great acerbity. Various factions opposed to the coalition are yelping at its heels, but they are not a united pack and Lloyd George's admirers are still confident that the Welsh wizard will only have to wave his wand at the appropriate moment to conjure up a wave of public support that will overwhelm all elements of opposition.

Ulster Boundary Issue Critical.

The strenuous efforts which are being made in Downing Street today to reach some arrangement in regard to the Ulster boundary controversy have the necessity of a quick solution being found unless the Parliamentary situation is to become critical. While public opinion in the main would like to see Ireland left to thrash out its own difficulties, it is recognized that if the Ulster members and their British die-hard associates can make the claim that Sir James Craig was deliberately led astray by Lloyd George, and if a vote had to be taken on the question whether Ulster's territory should be cut in half in order to fulfill promises made to the Sinn Fein, there would be a considerable reduction in the coalition majority. In some ultra-pessimistic quarters predictions are made that the trouble over Ireland is only beginning in a new phase.

There is unlikely to be any immediate development in regard to India in so far as the domestic political situation is concerned, but the Egyptian question may furnish early and sensational developments.

Lord Allenby, who is on his way back from Cairo, and is due in London Wednesday next, is understood to have his resignation as High Commissioner in his pocket unless his suggestions for Egypt are accepted by the government. He will have the strong backing of the Northcliffe press, which, acting evidently on instructions from its chief who has just left Egypt for Palestine, has been assiduously preparing the ground for attacks upon Lord Curzon and Winston Churchill.

Allenby wants immediate acceptance of the Egyptian demands for abolition of the protectorate. He believes that the safeguards which are required for imperial communications and foreign interests can be secured once the Egyptian claim for independence is acknowledged. Several cabinet ministers, with Winston Churchill at their head believe that it would be dangerous to grant independence until the necessary guarantees have been given by Egypt.

Finally, in the foreign domain, the outlook for the Genoa conference is unpromising. In the view of some ob-

HINT OF MORE CONFERENCES

ADMITS CHANGED OPINION

Once Believed In Armed Preparedness, but Does Not So Believe Now.

THANKS ALL THE POWERS

Likely to Present Treaties to Senate Himself This Week and Make Address.

By ELMER DAVIS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Conference on the Limitation of Armament was ended this morning, after the signing of five of the treaties resulting from its work, with an address by President Harding, who said that the conference had written "the first deliberate and effective expression of great powers in the consciousness of peace of war's utter futility."

Praising the work of the conference and the spirit displayed by the delegates, the President said:

"It may be that the naval holiday here contracted will expire with the treaties, but I do not believe it. Those of us who live another decade are more likely to witness a growth of public opinion, strengthened by the new experience, which will make nations more concerned with living to the fulfillment of God's high intent than with agencies of warfare and destruction."

Then he continued:

"Since this conference of nations has pointed with unanimity to the way of peace today, like conferences in the future, under appropriate conditions and with aims both well conceived and definite, may illuminate the highways and byways of human activity."

What connection that statement may have with the often discouraged but not yet abandoned idea of an association of nations is apparently left for the future to disclose.

Today's plenary session was by far the shortest of the seven which the conference has held. It began at 10:10 and ended at 11:14. The process of stamping the treaties, which it was feared would be very long, even though all the seals had been affixed to the documents in advance, was hastened by the fact that the members of each delegation signed all the treaties at the same time.

Memorial Continental Hall was filled long before the early hour set for the meeting. Up in the galleries the movie camera was installed once more, a visible token that the conference was getting back into the news. On the floor, delegates and attaches were busily moving about before the session began.

When Mr. Balfour entered from the south door, his white head towering over the crowd, he was received with a burst of applause from the galleries, which from the first day have seen in him one of the heroes of the conference. A few moments later there was still louder applause for the entrance of Mr. Hughes. This was led by Mrs. Harding, seated in a box behind the head table, her white gloves and violet hat the most conspicuous spots of color in her group.

Treaties Are Signed Briskly.

Mr. Hughes called the meeting to order, and, after the formality of adopting the minutes of the past session, he announced that the Shantung treaty had been signed on Saturday afternoon. The galleries, thus relieved from the labor of reading yesterday's paper to find it out for themselves, broke into new applause, and as this died away Mr. Hughes announced that he would ask the delegations, in alphabetical order, to sign all the treaties.

The documents were already laid out, and opened at the proper page, on a green table inside the horseshoe at which the delegates sat—the naval treaty, the gas and submarine treaty, the two treaties about China, and the supplement to the Pacific treaty. Standing guard over the original copies were John W. Garrett, Secretary General of the conference; Robert W. Bliss, Third Assistant Secretary of State, and Sydney Y. Smith of the State Department.

First, the American delegation marched around the tables, into the inside of the horseshoe, and, as his three colleagues stood and watched him, Mr. Hughes sat down and put his name to the five treaties. More applause. Then Senator Lodge, Senator Underwood and Mr. Root.

The American delegates, their work done, marched back to their seats. Belgium came next, and Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, Ambassador and sole representative of his country, was the centre of attention for a moment.

Then came the British Empire—it is no longer Great Britain or the United Kingdom, but the empire. There was a burst of handclapping as the seven British delegates, Mr. Balfour, Lord Lee, Sir Auckland Geddes, Sir Robert Borden, Senator Pearce of Australia, Sir John Salmond of New Zealand, and Mr. Sastri of India, made their progress around the tables in single file. There was something of a peculiar ceremonial about these marchings and coun-ism-anarchism, reminiscent of a college commence as the candidates for honors file up to get their diplomas.

The cautious Mr. Seattl, it was noted, put on his spectacles and took a good look at the documents before he signed them. It was not without reason. The parchment folios, in which the treaties were printed, lay open at a page which contained, besides space for seals and signatures, only the statement, "Done in the City of Washington on this 6th day of February," &c. For all the delegates knew, they might have been putting their names to a promissory note or a waiver of immunity.

After the British delegates were the Chinese—Mr. Sze first, then Mr. Koo, then Chief Justice Wang. Then the French delegation was called, and the applause that met M. Sarraut and Ambassador Jusserand showed that the public had not taken too seriously the disfavor into which the French delegation, justly or unjustly, fell during the conference. After the French came the Italians—Senator Schanzer, Ambassador Ricci, Senator Albertini.

Then came the Japanese delegates, and it was noted that Baron Kato also took a look at the treaties before he signed them, although it must be supposed that it was curiosity rather than caution that impelled him. After him Baron Shidehara and Mr. Hanihara signed.

Then Jonkheer Beelaerts van Blokland and Jonkheer de Beaufort officiated for the Netherlands; and last of all Viscount D'Alte and Captain Vasconcellos for Portgual. At 10:50 the treaties were all signed, and the stage was clear for the final ceremony of the conference.

Harding Gets Warm Greeting.

President Harding came in from the door behind and to the right of the head table, directly under the box where his wife sat. As he entered the crowd stood up and the Cooper-Hewitt lights blazed blue streams of brilliance from three sides of the hall. After the applause died away the President's opening words were almost drowned in the click of camera shutters and the whirring as the movie camera men busily turned the cranks. The President paused to shake hands with Mr. Hughes before he began his speech, which he read slowly from a manuscript.

"A truly great achievement," he called the work of the conference; "the beginning of a new and better epoch in human progress." There was reference to the "scant appreciation" of how marvelous that work had been—this much for the critics; and then a repetition of the reminder given by Mr. Hughes on Saturday that in a conference of sovereign powers all agreement had to be unanimous.

"No new standards of national honor have been sought," said the President, "but the indictment of national dishonor has been drawn, and the world is ready to proclaim the odiousness of perfidy or infamy."

It was not pretended, the President continued, that this conference represented a new idea. There had been previous and partial parallels—The Hague conferences, the Congress of Berlin, the congress of Vienna, the peace conference that wrote the Treaty of Versailles. But "The Hague conventions were defeated by the antagonism of one strong power whose indisposition to cooperate and sustain led it to one of the supreme tragedies which have come to national eminence. Vienna and Berlin sought peace founded on the indices of war."

Not a word more was said about Versailles—that magic word that unlocks all the doors at Capitol Hill. The President went on to the more favorable conditions under which the Washington conference had met, and which had made "a just peace, in righteous relationship, its own best guaranty. Your achievement is supreme," he told the delegates, "because no seed of conflict has been sown."

No critic of the conference could deny that. It may be that some seeds of conflict have not been dug up from soil which may yet prove fertile, but so far as human vision can see at present no new seeds have been sown here. That in itself is something of a distinction for an international conference.

The President said that once he believed in armed preparedness. He went on: "But I have now come to believe that there is a better preparedness in a public mind and a world opinion made ready to grant justice precisely as it exacts it. How simple it all has been!" One might wonder if Mr. Hughes would assent to that.

"No intrigue," said the President, "no offensive or defensive alliance, no involvements have wrought your agreements, but reasoning with each other to common understanding. The very atmosphere shamed national selfishness into retreat. Viewpoints were exchanged, differences composed, and you came to understand how common, after all, are human aspirations; how alike, indeed, and how easily reconcilable are our national aspirations."

Then came the reference to the possibility of "like conferences" in the future, and the following: "The torches of understanding have been lighted, and they ought to glow and encircle the globe."

Congratulates Powers and Delegates.

The last paragraphs of the President's speech, which was interspersed with applause from floor and galleries, were of a mere formal character—expressions of congratulation and appreciation to the participatory powers, named in order. Apparently missing a name in turning over a page of his manuscript, the President omitted China, but Mr. Hughes reminded him in an undertone. "And to China," he added, and then disgressed from his prepared speech to interpolate, "especially to China, because the settlement of the Far Eastern question was of importance to the United States."

The American delegates, named one by one, were praised by the President, and his eulogies were anawered by applause from the galleries that sounded loudest for the name of Mr. Hughes; these were thanks for the advisory committee, which, said the President, "gave so dependable a reflex of American public opinion."

"It is all so fine, so gratifying, so reassuring, so full of promise," exclaimed Mr. Harding with justifiable enthusiasm. And he ended with the "note of rejoicing which is not alone ours or yours, or all of us, but comes from the hearts of men of all the world." Somewhere there is an echo in the voice of a President of the United States calling to the hearts of men all over the world. Abelt omen.

Then the Rev. Dr. W. S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, which President Harding attends, and Mr. Hughes attend, came forward and gave this benediction:

"Our Father, holy and just and wondrously gracious art Thou. We bow before Thee this day in grateful acknowledgment of Thy mercies so freely bestowed. We have come to the day when the labors of many weary weeks are ended. Problems vital to human happiness and progress have been considered and decisions reached. Overrule, we pray Thee, any mistakes that may have been made. Bring to a successful conclusion the good that has been begun.

"Inspire us to labor unceasingly each in his own place, that the era of permanent peace and brotherly love and goodwill may come. May hate and suspicion and strife, enemies of human progress, be supplanted by confidence in each other and unselfish service. May there be in the heart of every man and every nation the determination to bring in this era of good will.

"Hasten the day, we pray Thee, when the will of God shall be done among men even as it is done in Heaven. Then shall the whole earth be filled with Thy glory.

"We offer this prayer humbly and in the name of Jesus, Amen."

As the prayer ended, Mr. Hughes thumped his gavel and announced that the Conference for Limitation of Armament was adjourned sine die.

The delegates, their work ended, lingered to exchange greetings and felicitations; spectators passed out slowly; but the President of the United States, after shaking hands with the delegates, retired to his office and went to work.

All Delegations Pleased.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—Viewing the conference in introspect, all the delegations renewed after today's meeting their expressions of gratification over the result. The burden of their comment gave precedence to the naval limitation agreement and the readjustments affecting China as the crowning achievements of the negotiations.

The plenipotentiaries of Japan, who alone among the nine nations came into the conference with reservations and with apparent apprehension as to the outcome, joined in the manifestations of satisfaction. In the naval treaty, provisions establish a fortifications "status quo" in the Pacific and in the four-power Pacific compact, the Japanese delegates believe they are taking home powerful weapons with which to check the efforts of the militaristic party to build up a national bogey of an American aggressive war in the Far East.

DELEGATES HASTEN AWAY.

Most of the British Depart for This City to Sail Today.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—Departure of arms conference delegates from Washington began within two hours after the adjournment with the departure of the British delegation, headed by Arthur James Balfour.

Secretary Hughes and State Department and British Embassy officials were at the station to say final farewell, all the delegates leaving except Sir Auckland Geddes, the resident Ambassador, M. W. Lampson, counselor, and F. Ashton-Gwatkins, Second Secretary in the British diplomatic service, were left behind and no date has been set for their departure.

Lord Lee of Fareham, Sir Robert Borden, who represented Canada on the delegation, George F. Pearce of Australia, Sir John Salmond of New Zealand and Srinivasa Sastri of India were in the party that took the train. Mr. Balfour and those who return home via England will sail tomorrow or the Aquitania.

Albert Sarraut, the only remaining French delegate with the exception of Jules Jusserand, French Ambassador, left today for Canada, where he is to receive a university degree. He will return to Washington before he sails for home on the Savoia, Feb. 12.

Most of the Japanese delegation will leave Washington Feb. 15 for San Francisco on their way to Japan. Baron Admiral Kato, head of the delegation, expects to begin his homeward journey on the 12th and will be joined in San Francisco by the others.

Senator Schanzer, head of the Italian delegation, will visit Boston before returning to Italy. He will sail on the Olympic Feb. 18, with most of the secretaries and attachés of the delegation. Senator Albertini, who with Ambassador Ricci completed the delegation, will sail on the Paris Feb. 21, after visiting Detroit and Chicago. He left Washington today.

The Netherlands delegation will leave Washington the last of the week to sail on the Nieuw Amsterdam Feb. 18. Jonkheer W. H. de Beaufort, charge d' affaires here, who was one of the delegates, will also sail on that date for his new post as Minister to Greece.

Departure of the Chinese delegation will begin Sunday when Chief Justice Wang of the Chinese Supreme Court will begin his homeward journey. Wellington Koo will not start for his post as Minister at London for a few weeks. Mme. Koo presented her husband with a son, born the night the Shantung dispute was settled.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 6. — Assemblyman Betta offered a resolution tonight directing the Assembly to send greetings and congratulations to President Harding, Secretary Hughes and all the American delegates to the disarmament conference, congratulating the conference on its constructive achievements.

A resolution introduced by Assemblyman Thoman of Queens creates a committee of four Assemblymen and three Senators to investigate trust funds created for foundations and public charities and made recommendations for regulating and supervising such funds.

Assemblyman Reiburn of New York City offered a resolution urging the United States to grant official recognition to the Government of Mexico.

Assemblyman Steinberg of New York City introduced a marriage license bill amending the Domestic Relations law by providing that no marriage ceremony can be performed until three days have elapsed after issuance of the marriage certificate except by authority of a Judge of a court of record.

By a vote of 78 to 36 the Assembly killed the Curvillier bill calling on the Attorney General to report the best and quickest means of raising money for a soldier bonus.

The Assembly concurred with the Senate in passing the measure giving the State's consent to the Federal purchase of land for hospitals in New York City, and passed bills appropriating $2,500,000 for the purchase of State park lands and $2,221,160 for county highway improvements.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Paul S. Livermore of Ithaca to succeed himself as Commissioner of the State Board of Charities. The Senate received from the Governor the nominations to the State Board of Charities of Dudley B. Lawrence of Bronxville and Dr. James D. Murphy of New York City.

Harding Hints at Future Conferences In Praising the Work of Delegates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—The address made by President Harding at the concluding session of the arms conference today follows:

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Conference—Nearly three months ago it was my privilege to utter to you sincerest words of welcome to the capital of our Republic, to suggest the spirit in which you were invited, and to intimate the atmosphere in which you were asked to confer, in a very general way, perhaps, I ventured to express a hope for the things toward which our aspirations led us.

Today it is my greater privilege, and even greater pleasure, to come to make acknowledgment. It is one of the supreme compensations of life to contemplate a worth-while accomplishment.

It cannot be other than seemly for me, as the only chief of government so circumstanced as to be able to address the conference, to speak congratulations, and to offer the thanks of our nation, our people; perhaps I dare volunteer to utter them for the world. My own gratification is beyond my capacity to express.

This conference has wrought a truly great achievement. It is hazardous sometimes to speak in superlatives, and I will be restrained. But I will say with every confidence that the faith plighted here today, kept in national honor, will mark the beginning of a new and better epoch in human progress.

New Hope Inspired by Conference.

Stripped to the simplest fact, what is the spectacle which has inspired a new hope for the world? Gathered about this table nine great nations of the earth—not all, to be sure, but those most directly concerned with the problems at hand—have met and have conferred on questions of great import and common concern, on problems menacing their peaceful relationship, on burdens threatening a common peril. In the revealing light of the public opinion of the world, without surrender of sovereignty, without impaired nationality or affronted national pride, a solution has been found in unanimity, and today's adjournment is marked by rejoicing in the things accomplished. If the world has hungered for new assurance it may feast at the banquet which the conference has spread.

I am sure the people of the United States are supremely gratified, and yet there is scant appreciation how marvelously you have wrought. When the days were dragging and agreements were delayed, when there were obstacles within and hindrances to go out, few stopped to realize that here was a conference of sovereign powers where only unanimous agreement could be made the rule. Majorities could not decide without impinging national rights. There were no vis-à-vis to command, no vanquished to yield. All had voluntarily to agree in translating the conscience of our civilization and give concrete expression to world opinion.

And you have agreed in spite of all difficulties, and the agreements are proclaimed to the world. No new standards of national honor have been sought, but the indictments of national dishonor have been drawn, and the world is ready to proclaim the odiousness of perfidy or infamy.

It is not pretended that the pursuit of peace and the limitations of armament are new conceits, or that the conference is a new conception either in settlement of war or in writing the conscience of international relationship. Indeed, it is not new to have met in the realization of war's supreme penalties. The Hague conventions are examples of the one, the conference of Vienna of Berlin and of Versailles are outstanding instances of the others.

The Hague conventions were defeated by the antagonism of one strong power whose indisposition to co-operate and sustain led to one of the supreme tragedies which have come to national eminence. Vienna and Berlin sought peace founded on the injustices of war and sowed the seeds of future conflict, and a hatred was armed where conference was stifled.

Says Stage Was More Favorably Set.

It is fair to say that human progress, the growing intimacy of international relationship, developed communication and transportation, attended by a directing world opinion, have set the stage more favorably here. You have met in that calm deliberation and that determined resolution which have made a just peace, in righteous relationship, its own best guaranty.

It has been the fortune of this conference to sit in a day far enough removed from war's bitterness, yet near enough to war's horrors, to gain the benefit of both the hatred of war and the yearning for peace. Too often, heretofore, the decades following such gatherings have been marked by the difficult undoing of their decisions. But your achievement is supreme because no seed of conflict has been sown, no reaction in regret or resentment ever can justify resort to arms.

It little matters what we appraise as the outstanding accomplishments. Any one of them alone would have justified the conference. But the whole achievement has so cleared the atmosphere that it will seem like breathing the refreshing air of a new morn of promise.

You have written the first deliberate and effective expression of great powers, in the consciousness of peace, of war's utter futility, and challenged the sanity of competitive preparation for each other's destruction. You have halted folly and lifted burdens, and revealed to the world that the one sure way to recover from the sorrow and ruin and staggering obligations of a world war is to end the strife in preparation for more of it, and turn human energies to the constructives ness of peace.

Not all the world is yet tranquilised. But here is the example, to imbue with new hope all who dwell in apprehension. At this table came understanding, and understanding hands armed conflict as abominable in the eyes of enlightened civilization.

I once believed in armed preparedness. I advocated it. But I have come to believe there is better preparedness in a public mind and a world opinion made ready to grant justice precisely as it exacts it. And justice is better served in conferences of peace than in conflicts at arms.

How simple it all has been! When you met here twelve weeks ago there was not a commitment, not an obligation, except that which each delegation owes to the Government commissioning it. But human service was calling, world conscience was impelling, and world opinion directing.

No intrigue, no offensive or defensive alliances, no involvements have wrought your agreements, but reasoning with each other to common understanding has made new relationships among Governments and peoples, new securities for peace, and new opportunities for achievement and attending happiness.

Here have been established the contacts of reason, here has come the inevitable understandings of face-to-face exchanges when passion does not inflame. The very atmosphere shamed national selfishness into retreat. Viewpoints were exchanged, differences composed, and you came to understand how common, after all, are human aspirations; how alike, indeed, and how easily reconcilable are our national aspirations; how sane and simple and satisfying to seek the relationships of peace and security.

When you first met, I told you of our America's thought to seek less of armament and none of war; that we sought nothing which is another's, and we were unafraid, but that we wished to join you in doing that finer and nobler thing which no nation can do its alone. We rejoice in that accomplishment.

Hints at Future Conferences.

It may be that the naval holiday here contracted will expire with the treaties, but I do not believe it. Those of us who live another decade are more likely to witness a growth of public opinion, strengthened by the new experience, which will make nations more concerned with living to the fulfillment of God's high intent than with agencies of warfare and destruction. Since this conference of nations has pointed with unanimity to the way of peace today, like conferences in the future, under appropriate conditions and with aims both well conceived and definite, may illumine the highways and byways of human activity. The torches of understanding have been lighted, and they ought to glow and encircle the globe.

Again, gentlemen of the conference, congratulations and the gratitude of the United States! To Belgium, to the British Empire, to China, to France, to Japan, to the Netherlands, and to Portugal—I can wish no more than the same feeling which we experience of honorable and honored contribution to happy human advancement, and a new sense of security in the righteous pursuits of peace and all-attending good fortune.

From our own delegates I have known from time to time of your activities, and of the spirit of conciliation and adjustment and the cheering readiness of all of you to strive for that unanimity so essential to accomplishment. Without it there would have been failure; with it you have heartened the world.

And I know our guests will pardon me while I make grateful acknowledgment to the American delegation—to you, Mr. Secretary Hughes; to you, Senator Lodge; to you, Senator Underwood; to you, Mr. Root—to all of you for your able and splendid and highly purposed and untiring endeavors in behalf of our Government and our people; and to our excellent Advisory Committee which gave to you so dependable a reflex of that American public opinion which charts the course of this Republic.

It is all so fine, so gratifying, so reassuring, so full of promise, that, above the murmurings of a world sorrow not yet silenced, above the groans which come of excessive burdens not yet lifted, but now to be lightened, above the discouragements of a world yet struggling to find itself after surpassing upheaval, there is the note of rejoicing, which is not alone ours or yours, or of all of us, but comes from the hearts of men of all the world.

SENATE MAY RECEIVE TREATIES THURSDAY

SUPPORTERS CONFIDENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The treaties resulting from the Conference for Limitation of Armament will probably go to the Senate within three or four days. President Harding is expected to take the treaties in person and in an address urge ratification at the earliest possible moment. Several Republican leaders think the President may appear before the Senate on Thursday. This program is subject to change.

Supporters of the treaties appeared more optimistic today than at any time since the text of the four-power treaty was made public that not only that treaty but the others also will be ratified. The naval treaty is certain of ratification by an overwhelming majority. It may be ratified unanimously. The real struggle will come on the four-power treaty and vigorous efforts will be made on the floor to attach reservations to it, including one providing that consultations under Article II. of the treaty shall "not impose on the United States any obligation to use military or naval force" no matter what the result of the consultations may be.

Senator Glass said today that there was no movement on foot looking to concerted opposition to the treaties from the Democratic side. There is no Senator in the chamber closer to ex-President Wilson than Mr. Glass, so his words are taken to have significance.

In a few days Senator Underwood will call a conference of the Democratic Senators and will explain the treaties and state why, in his opinion, ratification should not be made a political issue. It is his view that the treaties should be considered on their merits only.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio said today that he only "looked sympathetically" on all the treaties, but declined to say whether he would vote for all of them.

"I shall take part in no concerted movement regarding these treaties," he said, "and I am determined that, so far as I am concerned international matters shall not be made the football of politics."

Senator Ashurst of Arizona expressed the opinion that the Administration had entered "a league of nations via the back door route," while Senators Overman, Harris and Harrison, all League of Nations supporters, said they were not ready to say what their position would be when the treaties came before the Senate.

Senator Borah, who is expected to lead the fight against the four-power treaty, would not discuss the situation tonight. He said that he thought the naval treaty "a step in the right direction." Senator Johnson and the other Republicans who are expected to fight the four-power treaty will vote for the naval compact.

Senator France of Maryland is now listed among Republican opponents of the four-power treaty. This makes four Senators against the treaty, La Follette being the fourth. Ladd and Norris are reported in the "doubtful" camp.

ARMY CHARGES HAVE NOT REACHED HARDING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Officials of the War Department today declined to comment on the charges made to the President by Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, alleging that "Prussianism," favoritism and inefficiency "rule in the army" and that "a powerful clique of senior officers has spread terror among junior officers."

It was said at the White House that the Major's letter had not reached the President. The Major said he had mailed the letter in Washington at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and had placed a special delivery stamp on it.

He confirmed the report that he had been examined as a physical examination at the Walter Reed Army General Hospital to determine his fitness for duty. Among those who examined him was an army psychiatrist.

DOZEN COMMISSIONS TO CONTINUE WORK

Treaties Set Up Many Bodies to Discuss International Problems.

NEW CONFERENCES COMING

Large Number of the Commitments for Future Labors Relate to China.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—When the arms conference went out of existence today, it left a dozen commissions and other international bodies which will again bring representatives of the powers together to discuss world problems.

Besides many general agreements to "consult" among themselves when troublesome questions arise, the Governments represented here authorized specifically a five-power conference eight years hence to again discuss naval armament, a five-power commission to revise the rules of warfare a "special conference" and a separate "revision commission" to regulate the Chinese tariff, a "board of reference" to consider economic and railway questions in the Far East and an international commission to inquire into extra-territorial rights in China.

Only two duties are bequeathed to the Secretariat-General of the expiring conference, and it is the expectation of officials that his office will wind up these tasks and close its doors quickly.

The provision for another armament conference is embodied in the five-power naval treaty signed today. It sets forth that "in view of possible technical and scientific developments the United States * * * shall arrange for a conference of all the contracting powers which shall convene as soon as possible after the expiration of eight years from the coming into force of the present treaty to consider what changes, if any, may be necessary to meet such developments."

In addition, it is provided that in case one of the five signatories becomes involved in war, the others shall "consult" and all five shall "meet in conference" again when the war is over.

The Rules of Warfare Commission, authorized under a separate resolution, is to be composed of two representatives of each of the five major powers. The other Governments are to notify the United States of their selection of delegates within three months, and the American Government is to fix the time and place of meeting. The commission is to inquire and "report" whether present international law fully covers new weapons of warfare and what changes, if any, are necessary.

Authorization for the machinery to revise the Chinese tariff is contained in the tariff treaty, which provides that the Revision Commission shall meet at Shanghai at the "earliest practicable date" and proceed at once to an initial rearrangement of customs rates. The special conference on the subject will be convened in China three months later when the commission's work shall have been completed and will arrange for abolition of the "likin" tax, imposition of surtaxes and periodical tax revisions in the future. All the nine nations represented here are to hold membership in both the commission and the conference.

Creation of the Board of Reference to consider cases arising under the open-door agreement of the powers and under the pledge against discriminatory railway practices in China is authorized in a supplementary resolution attached to the general Far Eastern treaty. The make-up of the board is to be determined by the special conference of Chinese tariff and the powers of the reference body are confined to "investigation and report."

On the commission to investigate extra territorial rights in China all the nine nations represented here except China are to hold membership. The authorizing resolution provides that the commission shall be constituted within three months and shall report its findings to the eight Governments within a year thereafter.

Another special commission, composed of three Japanese and three Chinese, is set up by the Shantung Treaty to work out details of the transfer of Kiao-Chau to Chinese control, and under other agreements reached here the diplomats stationed at Peking are to confer with Chinese officials "whenever China shall so request" regarding withdrawal of foreign troops from Chinese soil, and the managers of foreign wireless stations in China are to confer with the Chinese Communications Minister to work out details of radio regulations.

HUGHES'S UNIQUE PENHOLDER.

Signed With Instrument Made of Wood From 28 States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — Secretary Hughes signed the five treaties of today's plenary session with the "Flagstaff penholder," made of woods from twenty-eight American States and decorated with the flags of twenty-eight nations, including those represented in the conference and several of the allied powers.

The pen was made by David Fairbanks of Chicago. He brought the pen to Washington and presented it to the Secretary of State on Dec. 21. The penholder, enclosed in a cedar box, will be presented to the Daughters of the American Revolution as a memorial of the conference which held in Memorial Continental Hall its plenary sessions.

The penholder is composed of native wood from the following States: Alabama, bay; Louisiana, cypress; Vermont, birdseye maple; Ohio, buckeye; Virginia, white oak; Maine, spruce, pine; Nebraska, ash; Alaska, yellow cedar; Georgia, pine (pitch); Tennessee, white hickory; Michigan, cottonwood; District of Columbia, chestnut; New Jersey, white cedar; Kentucky, cherry; New Hampshire, red oak; Iowa, ash; Oklahoma, bur oak; Colorado, sugar pine; Rhode Island, white oak; Delaware, red cedar; Texas, maple; South Dakota, red elm; Washington, fir, pine; California, redwood; North Dakota, ash; South Carolina, red cedar; New York, black spruce pine, and West Virginia, white oak.

The cottonwood of Michigan was taken from a tree, standing on the grounds where Pontiac fought his last battle with the British, May 5, 1765. The red cedar from South Carolina, presented by the faculty of Clemson College, came from a tree planted by John C. Calhoun.

STILL SCOLD AMERICA FOR FUNDING BILL

French Press Comments Are Bitter—Senator Likens United States to Shylock.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—In a dozen different keys, according to their political complexion and according to their conception of the tastes of their readers, the Paris newspapers are now improvising on the theme which the Temps began the other evening when it suggested that if the United States Senate wished to collect its debts from the Allies within twenty-five years it must be prepared to send the United States Army here to enforce payment by Germany of what she owes France or alternatively must be prepared to open her ports once more to the red wines of Bordeaux and Burgundy.

This is today's Echo de Paris, writes Henry Lemery, Senator for Martinique, writes:

"There once existed a ferocious creditor. He was called Shylock. Has America, which but yesterday we acclaimed for her generosity and her idealism, fallen to the rôle of a Shylock?"

It should be explained that the Senator's wrath is somewhat roused by the suggestion in some American newspapers that if France cannot pay she should hand over his constituency and other islands of the West Indies as compensation.

But scarcely less violent is Pertinax, of the Echoe de Paris. He declares that all Europe's troubles began in Wilson's negotiations with the central powers before the war ended, and were finally sealed by the American abandonment of the principle of a community of interest which kept exchange stable during the war.

"But no one," he concluded, "can make us suffer the disadvantages of association and reap none of its benefits. No one can hope to maintain a demand for the total repayment of our debt and at the same time impose on us a reduction of our claim on Germany. No country could accept such treatment."

With all the comment there is bound up a somewhat saddened retrospect on the conference at Washington.

"We have got less than nothing out of it," writes the Gaulois. "We have got our little navy further reduced, and that is almost the least of our misfortunes. We have got a reputation for militarism and imperialism and a bill served on us to pay back the money we borrowed to crush militarism."

Georges Le Chartier in the Journal des Debats, however, comforts himself with the reflection that the debate in the Senate on the conference results will possibly show that, perhaps, after all, France was not so black as she has been painted.

And Philippe Millet sums up the situation both with regard to the conference and the debts in this way:

"Before allowing themselves to be disturbed by the attitude of France, Americans ought to consider the harm they did themselves in French opinion—though we have not always had the courage to tell them about it—by their refusal to ratify a diplomatic instrument negotiated in their name by their own President. That little diplomatic incident will doubtless never efface the great memories of the war, but it ought to make Americans just a little more indulgent towards us."

TO REINSPECT BUILDINGS.

Borough Head Orders Another Examination When Complaint Is Made.

The necessity for an inspection of all types of buildings against which complaints of structural defects have been filed was outlined before the Board of Aldermen yesterday afternoon by Borough President Miller, who asked authorization to issue special revenue bonds to obtain funds to employ two additional inspectors. He said he had decided that the Building Department should reinspect theatres and other places of public assembly every three months.

James Cavanaugh of Cavanaugh & Plucham, steel constructors, the only witness examined yesterday before Magistrate McAdoo in the investigation of the American Theatre collapse in Brooklyn, in which seven men were killed, admitted under examination by District Attorney John E. Ruston that the trusses were not anchored, and that knee braces were used.

He said that the trusses, while being hoisted into position, bent so sharply that they had to be lowered to the street and lashed with planks to stiffen them before they could be placed into position. Cavanaugh admitted that the specifications did not call for a large round iron plate to be used at the base of a column, but he said he had found such a plate without knowing what was its use.

"Then you went along in a haphazard way?" asked District Attorney Ruston.

"Yes, sir," replied Cavanaugh.

"And you, as superintendent, were in every way responsible, weren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"As a matter of fact, you put up this building the way a child erects a house with a pack of cards?"

"Yes, sir."

The examination of Cavanaugh was suspended at this point and the hearing adjourned until the morning of Feb. 15.

servers here the United States could still work a transformation scene in that respect by assuming a benevolent watching attitude. The prestige of the Washington conference success would be tremendous. Without America's influence thrown into the scales the balance at Genoa may be indecisive.

Unless something worth while is accomplished at Genoa this country is threatened with exhaustion. The economies on a greater or less scale suggested by the Geddes committee can only alleviate; they cannot cure. The best financial authorities here agree that the limit of taxation has been reached and that the economic life of the country can only be stimulated by improvement in the general world situation.

The Evening Standard says:

"The general instinct is that the first need of the nation is sound finance, and that whatever other dangers are threatening the empire—and they are not inconsiderable—the one great peril before it is exhaustion.

"The country is in much the same position as it was after Pitt's victories. It has reached, in Churchill's words, a pinnacle of glory never before attained, but it is also staggering under burdens which cannot be indefinitely borne without disaster. It may be taken as certain that until Great Britain, the centre of the empire's strength and vitality, is restored to health and vigor, the British system must remain exposed to danger."

Government's Irish Difficulties.

The Daily Express's political correspondent says:

"The conservatives of both houses are not prepared to see Ulster robbed of any substantial amount of the territory assigned to the Northern Parliament by the act of 1920. The Government, if they supported the South in any effort to redistribute the North on what amounts to a plebiscite basis, may see a political crisis imperilling both their existence and the Irish settlement."

The Morning Post, which champions the Unionist die-hard cause, says:

"There is very good ground for believing that the Government is seriously alarmed at the pretensions now put forward by the Sinn Fein leaders, and that great pressure is being put on them to give up the claim so suddenly made that nearly half of the territory of Northern Ireland shall be annexed to the Free State. It would seem out of the question to suppose that Parliament will consent to any other alteration of the boundaries of Northern Ireland than the small adjustment which it was assured in December was all that was contemplated."

MAKE GERMANY PAY IN FULL, SAYS PAVEY

URGES ARMED COMPULSION

Advocates Financial Commission of the Allies to Collect Reparations.

Germany should be compelled to pay the reparations in full, and if necessary the German Government should be thrown into bankruptcy with a financial commission of the allied nations, backed with military force, as receivers at Berlin, Frank D. Pavey, Vice President of the Federation of Alliance Francaise, declared last night in a speech at its dinner at the Hotel Plaza. "I think the United States ought to appoint a member of this commission and give him a sufficient force of the army and navy to assist the Allies to collect the reparation," Mr. Pavey said.

Robert Underwood Johnson, former Ambassador to Italy, said the French Government was right in insisting upon the conditions for admission of representatives of the Soviet Government of Russia at the Genoa Conference and said the United States Government had been right in refusing to deal with "cutthroats." Ambassador J. J. Jusserand and Maurice Casnavo, Minister Plenipotentiary and Economic Adviser at the Washington conference, were the other speakers. Each explained the position of France on the questions raised there.

"All Americans ought to be pleased to see the French Government take a positive position in favor of enforcement upon Germany of full payment of reparations in accordance with her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles," said Mr. Pavey. "Any other attitude puts the people and the Government of the United States in the position of a dupe to the duplicity and dishonesty of Germany." He continued:

"The practical method is to bring this about is to accept the declaration of the German Government that it cannot pay its obligations and to put a financial commission of the Allies in Berlin as receivers in charge of the receipt and administration of the public revenues of Germany and in control of the bank authorized to issue bank notes to circulate as money. Let the financial commission be supported by a sufficient military force to compel respect and obedience to its orders."

Mr. Johnson said that the United States Government had been right in consistently refusing to recognise, even commercially, "the usurpers who, beginning with the treason of Brest-Litovsk, have exploited the weakness of Russia to her ruin."

Ambassador Jusserand said that France had accepted everything offered at the Washington conference to the limit her safety permitted. "France had a program that would have given her 700,000 tons of capital ships," he said. "She was asked to give it up and be satisfied with 175,000 tons and she consented. She has been taxed with being for submarines and of wishing to use them in the German way. That is an atrocious falsehood. None of the nations, but one, was opposed to the abolition of the submarine. The United States delegation was opposed to abolition and its advisory committee voted unanimously against it."

Mr. Casenave said that a better understanding of the economic needs of the world was needed. He said that things were going better in Europe than had been expected. "Let us hope," he added, "that this betterment will continue by the co-operation of the great men of Europe."

CONVICT 10,291 AS 'DRUNKS.'

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—More persons were convicted of crime in Courts of Special Sessions and courts of record in 1921 than in 1920, according to the annual report on statistics of crime just submitted to the Legislature by John J. Lyons, Secretary of State. The report showed that convictions last year totaled 55,516, as compared with 40,091 in 1920. In 1920, 2,775 women and girls were found guilty of crime, this total being increased to 2,826 last year.

The report also revealed that convictions for intoxication in Courts of Special Sessions in 1921 nearly doubled those of the previous year, the figures being given as 10,291 in 1921 and 5,287 in 1920. In the same courts last year convictions for misdemeanors totaled 28,791, for petit larceny 4,180 and for third-degree assault 1,661.

Of the 8,891 persons convicted in courts of record last year 581 were chauffeurs, 200 more than in 1920. Persons from all walks of life, from bellboy to bank cashier, were among the convicted. Only one actress committed a crime, against eleven actors.

PIUS XI. A DIPLOMAT AND A DEEP STUDENT

WON SUCCESS AS NUNCIO

Preserved Church Unity in Poland—Was Prefect of the Vatican Library.

Pope Pius XI. (Cardinal Achille Ratti), the new head of the Roman Catholic Church, which has over 300,000,000 members, was born at Desio, a town of 9,000 inhabitants eight miles north of Milan, May 30, 1857.

He is of medium height, with a muscular body and a face remarkable as indicating both physical and intellectual strength. His youth and later years have been judiciously divided among outdoor exercises, secluded study and intercourse with the world in such a manner as to produce firm convictions in regard to material as well as spiritual things. The new Pope is a member of the Italian Alpine Society and before the war was one of its most active members. He is one of the most scientific librarians in Italy. His short, although stirring, term as Papal Nuncio at Warsaw, just before the World War closed and through the first period of reconstruction, proved him to be a diplomat of exceptional qualities, for he preserved the unity of the Church in Poland when assailed by Bolshevist propaganda and various schisms which were unconsciously promoted by friends of Poland seeking only her material advantage.

Then as Archbishop of Milan he returned to the diocese of his birth and youth. He found that ancient city of Lombardy distracted by a revolutionary movement which at one time had not only threatened the security of the State but also the dynasty, and to which almost daily expression was given by encounters between the Fascisti and the anarchistic Communists.

Friendly to Italian Government.

Although never conspicuous in the organization or development of the Catholic Political Party, the Partito Popolari, whose creation was permitted by Benedict XV. in January, 1919, and which keen observers say was quite as much an instrument in saving the country and Crown in a moral way from the doctrines of Communism as the Fascismo had been in a material way, he, nevertheless, encouraged organizations of the Christian Democratic movement in the Archdiocese of Milan, but in such a manner that these manifestations never obscured his churchmanship. In regard to the civil government and the House of Savoy the attitude he maintained was very much like that of the late Pope—a gracious welcome ready for the Government's initiative.

His studious churchmanship, however, so overshadowed these other things that just before the conclave met he was claimed by the extreme conservative, even the intransigeant, party of Cardinal Merry del Val. This only lasted until the "Peace Party" of Cardinal Gasparri, which, principally made up of Italian Cardinals, was in a position to judge one of their own, let it be known that the Cardinal Archbishop of Milan would be quite acceptable to them as Pontiff. In this way Cardinal Ratti became a compromise Pontiff, with the advantage decidedly with the "Peace Party."

The new Pope was educated at the Seminary of Milan and at the Collegio del Lombardi o dell 'Alta Italia in Rome and was made a deacon in 1877, and a priest May 30, 1879. He was appointed a teacher in church history, then in homiletics, and then a dogmatic theology at the Seminario Majore of Milan. There his learning as well as the precision with which he prepared his work attracted the attention of the Congregation of Seminaries and of the University Studies at Rome and in the first decade of the present century he was appointed librarian at the Biblioteca Ambrosiana at Milan. There he became Prefect on the death of Mgr. Antonio Ceriani in 1910.

A year later the same congregation again interposed and he was called to Rome as sub-Prefect of the great Vatican Apostolic Library, then under the distinguished but aged Dr. Ehrle, whom he succeeded as Prefect in 1913. While Prefect of the library he was made a Monsignor, on the recommendation of Cardinal Cassetta, the Bishop of Frascati and Librarian of the Pope. He was of great service to Cardinal Gasquet, then completing the translation of the Vulgate.

Active During the War.

During the war, aside from attending to his duties at the library, he came into intimate communication with the Chaplain General appointed by the Pope to direct the chaplains who were with the army on the front. He is said to have been largely influential in their organization and on their conduct toward the men. At one time he became the messenger between the Christian General and the Pope and furnished the latter with material which enabled Cardinal Gasparri, Secretary of State, at the instance of the Pope, to refute the charges that were made after Caporetto that the Church, by Assyrian intrigue, was responsible for that military disaster.

All these things revealed to the Pope that in Mgr. Ratti he had a diplomat of the highest order, and so in the Spring of 1918, in anticipation of the complete freedom of Poland, Mgr. Ratti was appointed Nuncio at Warsaw. The work he did there was of the most delicate kind, for although the Poles had never wavered in their adhesion to the Church, there was the opposition of the refugees from the Russian Holy Synod, which constantly obstructed the work of progressive unity.

Again his labors met their reward; while still Nuncio, on June 6, 1919, he was elevated to the titular archiepiscopal see of Lepanto. This title may be considered of pecurial significance, as it was at the Battle of Lepanto, Oct. 7, 1571, that the Christian powers defeated the Turks and made the eastern Mediterranean free for their shipping for the next century. In that battle the Venetian fleet was in the van.

In April, 1921, Mgr. Ratti was made Archbishop of the diocese to which he was attached by his birth and early studies and work—that of Milan. Here he succeeded Cardinal Ferrari, who had died on Feb. 2.

Archbishop Ratti was created Cardinal on June 14, 1921 (in pectore), and two days later received the red hat at the hands of Benedict XV. in the Sala Regia. He had been Cardinal nearly eight months when elected Pope. The late Pope had been a Cardinal not four months when elected.

Desio, in the archdiocese of Milan, where the Pope was born and where his youth was spent, is on the road from Milan to Monza, where on July 29, 1900, the father of the present King of Italy was assassinated. It lies at the foot of the Brianzole hills and from it can be seen the campanile of Seregno, twenty miles away. At the Collegio del Lombardi in Rome young Ratti had as classmates Cardinal Luadi, Archbishop of Palermo, and Mgr. Radini Tedeschi, now Bishop of Bergamo.

The Seminario Magiore of Milan, at which he first became a teacher, is one of the architectural beauties of the Lombard city. It is on the left of the Corso Venezia and is entered through a magnificent courtyard; the grandiose entrance is the work of Francesco Richini, while the interior was designed by Medox. The two other edifices of Milan intimately associated with the life of the Pope are the Ambrosiana Library, where he was first sub-prefect and then prefect, and the Archiepiscopal Palace.

At Milan in Stormy Period.

Ecclesiastically, politically and industrially the Archdiocese of Milan is one of the most important in the peninsula. Its Hierarchy is in number of officials and organizations second only to that of Etruria, which includes the dioceses of Florence, Pisa and Siena. When Cardinal Ferrari was Archbishop there the Communists for a time gained the upper hand and on the great metallurgic works waved the red flag.

The See had been without an Archbishop for over two months when Mgr. Ratti established himself in the palace fresh from his academic honors at Rome and his diplomatic victories at Warsaw. From the time of his arrival in April until he departed for the conclave in the last week in January, he only interrupted his work of Christian as well as of secular reorganization in the archdiocese to attend the consistories in June, when he returned to his palace a Cardinal.

When he first came in April, the great strike organized by the anarchist Errico Malatesta was still in force. He found the personnel of the palace disorganized on account of some of the servants joining the numerous committees, which, organized under the guise of Christian democracy, were, even against the will of their members, turned over to the Reds. His moral persuasion, however, might not have been such a powerful factor in restoring order had he not been measurably aided by a party just organized for the protection of the State. This was the Fascismo, started in Milan by Benito Mussolini, who, from an extreme Socialist, had been converted by the war to patriotism. Although remote in many things, yet, in bringing order out of chaos in Milan, Archbishop Ratti was the complement of Mussolini, and the latter's paper, the Giornale d'Italia, while usually ignoring or attacking the Church, gave the Archbishop valuable support. It is reported that when Mussolini would have turned against the monarchy, as so many Fascisti did just before the election, it was the influence of the patriotic Archbishop which preserved his allegiance to the House of Savoy.

Becomes the 261st Pope.

The 261st Pope to sit in the Chair of St. Peter has taken the name of Pius XI., made famous in the last century by the memory of Pius VI., VII., VIII., and IX., and then in the first decade of the present century by Pius X. The first Pius was the saint who reigned from 140 until 154.

The reign of Pope Pius VI., from 1775 to 1799, is exceeded in number of years only by those of Leo XIII. and Pius IX. Under him the Papal Court was constantly changing its abode on account of the Napoleonic invasions and the counter-invasion sent from the north to defeat Napoleon. Pius VII. reigned for twenty-three years. He outlived his great imperial enemy two years, and had the satisfaction of having remained obdurate to the Emperor's repeated demands for a divorce from Josephine, and having formed the Concordat with France.

Pius VIII. reigned only from 1829 until 1831, then came Gregory XVI., and then in 1845 Pius IX. Under him the Popes lost their temporal power.

Pius X. reigned from 1903 till 1914. Both Pius IX. and Pius X. were noted for their piety, but Pius IX. has gone down in history as a statesman—a position to which Pius X. never aspired.

According to the prophecy of St. Malachy, the character or Pontificate, or both, of the new Pope are to be illustrated by the symbolic Latin phrase, "Fides intrepida," which may be translated as, "Unshaken, fearless faith."

Urged Solution With Italy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—In Catholic Church circles here Pius XI., the new Pontiff, is regarded as favorable for peace with the Italian State and is expected to carry forward the work toward a rapprochement between the Vatican and the Quirinal. Without acting as an extremist, upon his installation as Archbishop of Milan he made a notable pronouncement upon the Roman question, in which he declared that "the Roman question is an international question, which must be solved for the glory of God and the best interests of the world." This pronouncement created widespread comment throughout Italy at the time.

A high church dignitary in Washington, who knows the new Pontiff personally, regards him as a very able diplomat and pointed to his work as Papal Nuncio to Poland and subsequently his work in those portions of Bolshevist Russia on the East Polish frontier. Mgr. Ratti, who had not then received the red hat, conducted important negotiations in Poland and Russia in the interest of the church and was stationed in Warsaw during the famous drive of the Reds against the gates of the Polish capital.

At a time when the officials of Poland were talking of deserting Warsaw, and the population was in fear of Bolshevist outrages, Mgr. Ratti displayed a courageous attitude, remained at his post and set the example for others, in the face of the Red onslaught. It was in recognition of his service in Poland and Russia that he was created a Cardinal.

Son of Italian Weaver.

The newly elected Pope's father was Francesco Ratti, a native of Rogeno, Italy, and his mother Teresa Galli, a native of Savonno. Achille was the third of six children. His oldest brother, Fermo, and the youngest sister, Camilla, are still living.

Francesco, the father, was a filandiere, a weaver and spinner—and, at the time of the birth of Achille, was in charge of the weavers employed by the Counts of Pusiano. Later the father went to Pertusella, and then to Carugate to take charge of the weaving shops of the Gada firm. The Ratti family was neither rich nor poor, but belonged to the respectable middle class of artisans.

Achille was sent to a school in Desio conducted by Don Giuseppe Volonteri, a priest noted around Milan as an educator. Volonteri had started this school before Italian law made education obligatory and conducted it for forty-three years, in his own house. While it was an elementary school Don Giuseppe took extra pains with the more promising of his pupils singling them out for special training. So with Achille Ratti—he was one of the best of the contadinelli, or children of the middle classes, singled out by Volonteri for more intensive training.

Under this guidance, young Achille was able to enter the gymnasium of St. Peter Martyr. One who knows the new Pontiff stated tonight that in 1884, after he had been ordained as Priest and had become a professor at Milan, he went back to Desio to deliver the funeral sermon in commemoration of the humble father who had conducted this school and who had given Achille the rudiments of education. This sermon was delivered from the piazza of the parochial church. Ratti also wrote the epitaph for his teacher's tomb.

Helped by His Uncle.

Another man who had much to do with the formation of the mind and character of Ratti was his uncle, Don Damiano Ratti, who lives at Asso. Young Achille had been in the habit of spending his Summers at his uncle's home for several years. Numerous seminarians also followed the practice of going to the Don's home during the Summer, making it almost a small seminary at that period of the year.

There are priests still living who were among these seminarians. They remember the uncle as a man of cordial and expansive good nature toward the young men who participated in these Summer studies and rare perspicacity in finding which of these were regarded by himself as qualified for the priesthood.

It is declared that his judgment rarely failed in this latter respect, and that he never hesitated to tell the young seminarian the blunt truth as to whether he was regarded as fit for the priesthood. One of the seminarians whom Achille Ratti met at Asso was Mgr. di Calabiana, afterward a Cardinal, who used to call young Ratti a giovanevecchio—a young old man.

In appreciation of the influence of the uncle upon his life and character, Mgr. Ratti in 1904 went back to Asso to preach at the silver jubilee of the uncle as a priest.

From the gymnasium of St. Peter Martyr Ratti was sent to the lyceum in the seminary of Monsea, where he pursued for the first two years his classical studies, the third year of these studies being undertaken in the College of St. Charles Borromeo in Milan. Thence he went to the major seminary in Milan for three years, and so impressed the Archbishop that the latter sent him to Rome as a student in the Lombard College, where he took his classes in the Gregorian University, a Jesuit institution. Spending three more years in Rome, the man who is now Pope took his doctorates in philosophy, theology and canon law.

Embarked on Library Career.

Returning to Milan in 1882, he first taught theology and sacred eloquence in the major seminary for five years, and then embarked on a notable career in the great church library in Milan.

On Nov. 5, 1888, he was chosen one of the college of doctors of the Ambrosiana Library, which has a very extensive collection of old codes and rare manuscripts, with an art gallery and museum. Achille Ratti devoted nearly twenty years of his life to his work in this library, and this period of his career was done in the continuation of his pastoral work.

The Prefect of the Ambrosiana Library during most of that period was Mgr. Antonio Ceriani, a very learned man, and he too had strong influence on the education of Ratti.

During the time that he was connected with the Milanese library Ratti went to Rome from time to time to pursue studies and research work in the Vatican Library and to obtain needed data on church documents. When Mgr. Ceriani died in March, 1907, Ratti was chosen to succeed him in charge of the Ambrosiana Library. He continued at this post until 1914, but in 1910 he was called to Rome to become Vice Prefect of the Vatican Library by Pope Pius X. and assistant to Father Ehrle, a Bavarian Jesuit, who resigned in 1914 and went to Germany at the outbreak of the war. Ratti was then placed in charge of the Vatican Library as Prefect, and for some time was connected with both these great libraries.

When Ratti returned from Rome to Milan in 1882, the first thing he did was to ask that he be sent to take charge of the tiny parish of Barni. When he went that Fall to teach in the major seminary in Milan he became the chaplain of the convent that was then being started in Milan by the Sisters of Our Lady of the Cenacle and has since been their chaplain.

He helped in the establishment of this convent and joined in all its work, using the convent as a retreat for women. He established various organizations and associations in that connection and was their spiritual director. In 1883 he organized an association of Catholic school teachers in Milan, of which he also has continued to be director. All classes of women from factory girls to women of the nobility attended the meetings in the convent.

During this period Ratti taught catechism to the children on Sundays and holy days and prepared them for their first communion. He became well liked by the priests around Milan.

Interest in Science and History.

On the death of Monsignor Ceriani he started to teach Hebrew in the major seminary and was appointed to the Chapter of Canons of St. Ambrose with the title of Monsignor. In Milan there are numerous academic and scientific bodies. Ratti worked with them, particularly in the restoration of the registers and fabrics of the Cathedral of Milan, the records of its many years of building, which were burned during the Milan Exposition of 1906. He also became a member of the Royal Lombard Institute of Science and Letters and the Lombard Historical Society, of which he is Vice President. These various positions have won him a wide circle of friends throughout the Cathedral city.

Mgr. Ratti served as Prefect of the Vatican Library from the Summer of 1914, shortly before the war, until the Spring of 1918, when he was delegated by Pope Benedict XV. to the important position to Nuncio of Poland. During the four years of war that he was in charge of the Vatican Library, antiquities ran high between the Germans and Italians, as well as between clericals and anticlericals. His position was accordingly a difficult one. In dealing with the men of various nationalities using the library and its archives.

"During all that difficult period," said an ecclesiastic tonight, "Mgr. Ratti remained a true Italian in sentiment, but his temper was most equitable, and he treated everybody well.

"Mgr. Ratti worked with splendid tact and prudence in the Vatican Library. Nobody ever accused him of giving that library a tendency. All who came on work of research or seeking documents received free access to all the facts and treasures of the library. He had faith in the cause of justice, and never doubted but that this cause would prevail against that of arms. He made no mystery of his attitude, but did everything in such a tactful way that he never compromised the Vatican in the responsible position the Holy See had given him."

Difficulties in Poland Overcome.

Mgr. Ratti started for Poland under Pope Benedict's commission on April 25, 1918, and what was known in advance to be a hard diplomatic and ecclesiastical mission. Before that he had no previous experience in diplomacy except for some trips which he had made with Mgr. Giacomo Radini-Tedeschi to Vienna in 1891 and to Paris in 1893.

His trip into Poland was made about the time of the Brest-Litovsk Treaty, which the Germans had imposed on the Russians. Poland was at that time occupied by German military forces. Leopold of Bavaria was the German Governor General and General Von Besseler commanded the German army of occupation. Warsaw was under the control of a council of regents composed of Archbishop Kakowski, Prince Lubomirski and Baron Ostrouki.

There were many Poles who at that time suspected the regents, thinking that they were about to act as instruments of German domination. In this situation Mgr. Ratti was entrusted with the duty of stating that his mission was ecclesiastical and spiritual and without political significance.

He was in Poland practically throughout the period of the resurrection of that country into an independent nation, and his duties were extended by the Vatican to cover the former Russian Provinces along the Polish Eastern frontier. Throughout these parts of Russia he traveled. He was entrusted with the task of establishing new dioceses where German Bishops had resigned in Poland, and also established Bishoprics that had been suppressed in those parts of former Czarist Russia which he visited.

It was stated tonight that Mgr. Ratti succeeded beyond hopes in this work despite the fact that Poland was occupied by foreign forces and that in the face of revolutions in Russia he obtained results that could not be achieved under the regime of the Czars.

Immediately after the armistice of 1918 serious questions arose regarding the status of church properties and other matters in Poland and Russia. There was a popular movement for the division of the landed estates which had been German and Russian Poland. The churches possessed lands and became interested in the progress of this movement.

The Bishops declared they were not opposed to the division of the Church estates so long as this was done by consultation with the Church and without interference with the work of the Church. Mgr. Ratti played an active diplomatic and ecclesiastic role in this connection. He called together a commission of Bishops, which was recognized by the Polish Government, and, at the same time, succeeded in obtaining from the Polish Constituent Assembly a resolution that no law as to Church properties would be enacted without consultation with the Holy See.

When Mgr. Ratti was first sent into Poland his mission was in reality that of a Papal visitor. One reason why he was only a "visitor" and not a full "Nuncio" was that Poland had not been a nation since its partition more than a century before. Later, after the Versailles Treaty, and the establishment of Poland as an independent nation, Mgr. Ratti was on July 3, 1919, made Nuncio at Warsaw. This represented a restoration of the old nunciature of Poland that existed before the partition.

This mission further revealed the qualifications of Mgr. Ratti as a diplomat and a man of firmness, courage and evenness of temper. During the Bolshevist invasion of July, 1920, when Warsaw's inhabitants were panic stricken, Polish Government officials were in despair and getting ready for flight, the population made ready for Bolshevist horrors, and the Russian Reds were hammering at the gates of Warsaw, Mgr. Ratti stood at his post without losing his serenity and inspired others to do likewise. This was compared tonight by an ecclesiastic to the period in his early life as a mountain climber, when he had to keep his head when clambering around precipices in the Alps.

Another mission was later performed by Mgr. Ratti when he was appointed high ecclesiastical commissioner for the plebiscite in Upper Silesia, a delicate task, for which he was chosen with the approval of the Polish, German and interallied commissioners. While serving on his mission in Russia he was active in helping to obtain the liberation of prisoners detained in their homes by the Bolsheviki. He treated for the liberation of some high personages, at times being instrumental in effecting the release of the Archbishop of Mohilew and the Bishop of Minsk, in whose behalf Pope Benedict had written him at the time.

Mgr. Ratti also aided in the distribution of food among the children and others of the Russian and Polish populations. A large part of the money for that purpose sent by Pope Benedict was sent to Mgr. Ratti for his supervision in its distribution.

It was on account of the ability displayed by Mgr. Ratti in his Polish and Russian missions that he was designated by the Pope for the red hat. Meanwhile on July 3, 1920, he had been appointed titular Archbishop of Lepanto and was consecrated as such on Oct. 28, 1920, in the Cathedral at Warsaw, in the presence of officials of the Polish Government, Members of the Constituent Assembly and the Episcopacy of Poland. On April 19, 1921, he was created titular Bishop of Agana.

Pope Benedict's Praise.

In the secret consistory of June 13, 1921, Pope Benedict created Bishop Ratti a Cardinal and promoted him to be Archbishop of Milan. On the occasion of the ceremony of conferring the red hat on Cardinal Ratti at Rome on June 15, 1921, Pope Benedict said in part:

"If we turn now our attention to the second of those who have been made cardinals, upon whom we have imposed this new dignity, we hear thousands of voices lifted up in praise of this choice among the ranks of those who are students of diplomacy. Behold the students of the schools of diplomacy bowing before the former Prefect of the Ambrosiana Library of Milan and of the Vatican Library of Rome, praising the zeal with which he has always favored them in their search for the hidden treasures in ancient documents; beyond these students of diplomacy and with them their masters bowing also before the Apostolic Nuncio of Poland who with firmness and yet with exquisite tact and imperturbable calmness has known how to establish concord between the State and the Church in times that were most difficult and under circumstances most dangerous."

After he received his red hat, Cardinal Ratti said to some of the large contingent of Milanese who had gone down to Rome for the ceremony:

"I thank God that He has granted it to me to crown the last efforts of my life to my fellow citizens."

Popular Among Milanese.

His selection as Cardinal Archbishop of Milan was well received by the Milanese, despite the fact that there was considerable anti-clericalism there. It is stated that his appointment was highly praised by all the papers, including those of the Socialists, particular mention being made of his scientific knowledge, the veneration in which he was held, his equality of temper, scholarly attainments and his generosity of soul, and the fact that he had been a deep student of history and archeology.

His interest in archeology resulted in his election in 1915 to be a member of the Roman Pontifical Academy of Archeology, before which he delivered two lectures, in one of which he dealt with the basilica of St. Sebastian on the Appian Way as recorded in ancient records in the Vatican library. While in charge of both the great libraries he became the author of numerous publications based on his research activities in their archives. Others he now has in course of preparation. Some of these works of the new Pontiff are to be found in the proceedings of the Lombard Institute of Science and Letters, the historical journal of Italian literature, the Lombard Historical Archives, and in various catalogues of old manuscripts.

NEW POPE'S BLESSING SENT TO AMERICANS

Tells Cardinal O'Connell That the Washington Conference Has Accomplished Much.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Pope Pius XI. sends his blessings to the American people through Cardinal O'Connell, who was received by him this afternoon.

"I always have held great respect and admiration for the American people," the new Pope said, "for their great activity, the youthful energy with which they tackle things."

"The Holy Father told me," Cardinal O'Connell said: "'I have been watching the activities of your Congress and statesmen with great interest. America has done much to open a new era of peace and tranquillity by the conference just closed, that eradicates hatreds and suspicions that bring on wars. I bless you, and the American people through you. I send my most affectionate greetings.'"

O'CONNELL ARRIVES JUST AN HOUR LATE

American Cardinal Again Disappointed After Long Trip as He Was in 1914.

EXPECTED DELAY IN VOTE

Amazed When His Train Reached Rome and Result of the Ballot Was Told to Him.

ROME, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—For the second consecutive conclave, Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, failed in his race across the ocean to reach Rome in time to carry out the duties of his Cardinalate in the election of a Pope.

From the moment The Associated Press correspondent greeted the American prelate in Naples Bay until his arrival at the railway station in Rome, Cardinal O'Connell was fully convinced that the Sacred College would not make a choice until he came.

As he disembarked from the steamer Presidente Wilson, shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, the correspondent informed him that the great papal question was not yet decided, and apparently the conclave was anxious for his presence.

"Well, if that is so," said the Cardinal, "it is a great compliment to me and my country and people. It is a great satisfaction to know that I will be in time at last. Eight years ago when I strained every nerve and resource to attend the conclave which elected Benedict XV., I arrived in Rome just an hour late.

"I felt confident when I set sail from New York fourteen days ago that they would wait for me this time, for it means something to a man to come thousands of miles across the ocean in wintry weather. I have had a feeling that my colleagues in the Sacred College would give due consideration to my disappointments and that of Catholic America."

Amazed When Told of Action.

Five hours later, upon arriving at the station in Rome, Cardinal O'Connell was plainly amazed when a Vatican official informed him that the conclave had acted without him. Although the American Cardinal did not utter a word, his face betrayed emotion.

"Well," he said, "I am sorry that our long journey has again been in vain."

"Whom did they elect?" the Cardinal asked the Vatican official, as if the similarity in the names of Maffi, Ratti and Tacci confused him.

"Cardinal Ratti," responded the official, spelling out the name. Cardinal O'Connell then gave orders to be taken to the Vatican.

Arriving there, the American went immediately to the Sistine Chapel, where he rendered obedience to the new Pontiff as his colleagues had done two hours before. He then conferred with a small group of Cardinals who had lingered in the Vatican, each of whom was apparently anxious to explain how the conclave had reached a choice without the presence of the American representative.

The steamer Presidente Wilson followed the southerly route and had a perfect crossing. This probably accounted for the splendid appearance of Cardinal O'Connell, whose face was rosy red, step buoyant and spirit cheerful. Stops of one day each were made at the Azores, Gibraltar and Algiers. Had one of these been omitted the Cardinal would have been in time for the conclave.

"Of course," said the Cardinal, "we had a lot of tourists aboard who wanted to visit these places, and the Captain could not omit them for the sake of one individual."

Praises Italian Government.

As soon as Cardinal O'Connell had taken the special train which was to carry him to Rome he invited the correspondent to accompany him. Discussing Papal questions, he pointed out that he was actually a member of the conclave, although force of circumstances prevented his immediate presence.

"I wish, however, that you would say in a loud voice to the American people that the Italian Government has been most kind to me," continued the Cardinal. "The Government's Ambassador assured me that his country would place every facility at my disposal to make the journey comfortably and speedily. The Italians have more than redeemed the promise and I am much touched by their courtesy and thoughtfulness. I am told that even the King of Italy does not have a whole special train, his private car being merely attached to regular trains."

When the correspondent took leave, the Cardinal said:

"I hope to see you soon again. Come to me after the election of the Pope is over and I will give you a message to the American people."

On its being suggested that the office of Pope was still vacant and possibly Cardinal O'Connell might be elected, the Cardinal raised his hands disparagingly and remarked, "Nothing like that, my boy. If I enter the conclave I will surely emerge as I am."

CRANE'S Bond Paper is used in many ways little suspected by the business man who has admired it as letter-paper.

For instance, it is used by draughtsmen for mechanicals drawings. Such a paper must be thin and tough, for tracings and blueprints. The all-new-rag stock in Crane's Bond give it toughness, evenness of surface and purity of color, very acceptable to the architect or engineer.

Here again the qualities that cause Crane's paper to be a necessity to the draughtsman as it is to the engraver of stock certificates, make it highly desirable for particularly fine business stationery.

extended, on one of which shone the Fisherman's Ring, turned to each of the four points of the compass and imparted his first apostolic benediction "urbi et orbi" (to the city and the world).

There was no doubt that the choice of Cardinal Ratti as Pope was popular in Rome. The crowd cheered wildly for many minutes, and there was an enthusiastic outburst when the new Pope, after imparting benediction in a clear, powerful voice, waved his hand in friendly fashion in farewell.

New Pontiff an Alpinist.

Pius XI. was born in Desio, a small town near Milan, of a well-to-do middle-class family, all of whom were highly educated. He has three elder brothers. The new Pope is not yet 65 years old. is of mild, retiring habits and a great authority and keen student of history and art, which he taught at a seminary. He is an enthusiastic mountain climber, and a number of the heights in the Alps are called after him because he was the first man to scale them.

First striking an observer is the extraordinary mildness and intrinsic goodness of his character, but at the same time he has more than a usual share of courage and devotion to duty. When in July, 1920, the Bolshevists advanced against Warsaw, all the foreign envoys left, except Mgr. Ratti, who remained at his post, encouraging the Poles to resistance until their recovery.

Te Deum for Warsaw Rescue.

As a reward for his bravery he was entrusted with celebrating a solemn Te Deum, which he did, remarking: "They call it a Te Deum, but in our inner thoughts we say: 'Glory be to Almighty God for having kept our skins whole.'"

As a scholar, historian and teacher he counts over sixty publications to his credit. He is extremely liberal with his money. No poor person ever applied to him in vain, it is said.

His goodness and savoir faire completely captivated Milan, where he was greatly admired. He said to a friend in the large crowd which went to see him off on his departure for the conclave:

"Good-bye—or, rather, farewell, as I shall be back soon."

In Rome he repeated to a friend that he had no chance of becoming Pope, and said he would inform the friend who the new Pope was as soon as the election was over. The first official act of Pius XI. was to send a message to this friend that he "had been elected Pope after all."

At the end of the conclave, being asked whether he accepted the pontificate, he answered: "It is God's will." On being pressed for a further answer he said: "As it is God's will, it cannot be refused." He said that he assumed the name Pius XI. because he wanted a Pius to end the Roman question, which began under a Pius.

To Be Crowned Next Sunday.

ROME, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—Cardinal Achille Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, was chosen today Supreme Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church to succeed the late Pope Benedict XV. His coronation as Pius XI. will take place Feb. 12.

After the announcement of his election the Pope appeared on the outside balcony of St. Peter's and bestowed the benediction on the thousands who had waited patiently in the rain in St. Peter's Square—the first time this has occurred since the breach between the State and the Church in 1870—for fifty-two years the blessing had been bestowed from within the Basilica.

The election was completed without American participation in the conclave, Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, arriving at the moment the new Pope was blessing the multitude.

"Universal pacification" is the keynote of the new Pope's policy, as indicated in a statement issued by Prince Chigi, the marshal of the conclave, which made reference to the first blessing bestowed by Pius XI. Continual conciliation inaugurated by his predecessor, probable reconciliation of the State and Church in Italy, which have been estranged for so many years, and an appeal to all the nations of the world to restore peace are said to constitute the most essential aims of the Vatican policy as it will be conducted under the present Pontiff.

Cardinal Gasparri will retain his offices as Papal Secretary of State. This announcement almost immediately after Pius XI. had assumed the pontificate is regarded as significant. Benedict XV. required twenty-four hours for the appointment of Cardinal Gasparri, and never previously had a newly elected Pontiff chosen his Secretary of State before the lapse of two or three days.

Reproved the Irreconcilables.

That the new Pope has decided to exercise his full authority was shown when some of the Cardinals attached to what has become known as the "irreconcilables" attempted to persuade him not to appear on the outside balcony. He listened to the arguments for a few moments, and then said:

"Remember, I am no longer a Cardinal. I am the supreme Pontiff now."

Prince Chigi-Albani, the Marshal of the Conclave, by order of the Secretary of the Conclave, issued the following:

"His Holiness Pope Pius XI., while making every reservation in favor of the inviolable rights of the Church and the Holy See, which rights he has sworn to defend, has given his first blessing from the exterior balcony overlooking the Square of St. Peter's in the special intention that his blessing should be addressed not only to those present in the square, and not only to those in Rome and Italy, but to all nations and all peoples, and should bring to the whole world the wish and announcement of that universal pacification we all so ardently desire."

The diplomatic corps and the Papal aristocracy were received in the Vatican this afternoon. The Pope passed along the loggias, accompanied by his entourage and escorted by noble guards in their red full dress uniforms and the Swiss Guards in mediaeval costumes.

As he moved slowly along, all knelt. He offered his hand, and it was reverently kissed. Then he proceeded to Clementine Hall, where others received the Papal benediction.

There was a touch of disappointment to hundreds of Americans mingling among the thousands of Italians in St. Peter's Square when Cardinal Bisleti appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's and made the announcement of the election. A few minutes later, as Cardinal O'Connell's automobile drew up to the large bronze gate on the right side of the Vatican, it was realized that the conclave had been held without American participation.

The evening newspaper La Tribuna calls attention to what it terms "the slight proffered to Americans." Cardinal O'Connell's fortitude and resignation in a most trying situation are commented upon favorably by all the Italian newspapers, which express regret that the conclave did not last a few more hours.

The crowds were slow in gathering this morning in the areas around the Vatican, as the announcement that a Pope had been chosen was not expected until at least the following morning. Suddenly the thin white smoke from the burning ballots issued from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel. There was breathless suspense as the wisp floated upward, the assemblage watching to observe whether it would turn into a black cloud, but it remained light. Then suddenly it was realized that the election was over.

The confusion increased, and there were whispers from one prelate to another and among the waiting throngs. The names of Tacci, Maffi and Ratti were heard. Within the Vatican the masters of ceremony rushed about. The similarity of names accounted for the considerable delay before the general public became aware of who had actually been chosen. Two of the Rome newspapers announced that Tacci had been elected.

Nothing came from the conclave until the new Pope was officially announced from the balcony. The suspense was relieved when attendants came out on the balcony with a rich velvet tapestry bordered with gold and bearing the papal arms. It was then certain to all that a new Pontiff reigned.

Then there was more delay, and monsignori and prelates stood on the balcony awaiting the arrival of Cardinal Bisleti. Finally at 12:30 o'clock the pontifical cross was seen, followed by Bisleti, one of those accompanying him bearing a huge red gold book, from which Cardinal Bisleti read: "I announce to your great joy that we have elected a Pope. He then named Cardinal Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, "who takes the name of Pius XI."

The immense crowds broke into cheering, lustily proclaiming Ratti, who was one of the most popular of the Italian Cardinals. Waving to the multitudes, Cardinal Bisleti and his entire following proceeded inside the church. Announcement was made that the new Pope would bestow his first apostolic benediction from the outside of St. Peter's, and the crowds were patient while the Pontiff donned his vestments.

When the name the new Pontiff had chosen was uttered it passed from mouth to mouth, all recalling with reverent memory the pontificate of Pius X. In the rain, with thousands of umbrellas uplifted, the appearance of the Supreme Pontiff was awaited in a hush. Then the pontifical cross appeared again, and Pius XI. came, wearing the Cardinal's hat, with a red cloak thrown over his shoulders. Before administering the benediction, the cloak and hat were removed, the Pope appearing in full pontifical robes.

The entire balcony was filled with the Cardinals. Their flowing violet Conclave robes blended with the white vestments of the Pontiff. All stood out against the time-worn pillars of the loggias of the historic basilica.

At the Pontiff's left was a Monsignor bearing the red and gold book, and at his right the cross. The Pope came forward, and, touching the velvet tapestry, signaled for silence. A great stillness prevailed. Where millions through the ages had received the same benediction, the thousands gathered for the ceremony of today stood with bowed heads while the Pope, with outstretched hands, pronounced the solemn words, those below responding with full voice like a gigantic chorus.

As the rain was still falling, the Pope resumed his cloak and red hat and returned within the church, followed by the Cardinals and attendants. The great crowds then began slowly to desert the square.

The pontifical group was lost to view, the Pontiff to remain within the walls of the Vatican until the day when reconciliation with the Quirinal may be effected. Just as he disappeared through the window of the basilica the bells rang out, signifying that another Pontiff had begun to reign.

Robing the New Pope.

Previous to this time, within the conclave, as soon as the two-thirds vote for Cardinal Ratti had been verified, Cardinal Vannutelli, as dean of the Sacred College, arose and proceeded to the throne of the chosen one, accompanied on each side by Cardinals Logue and Bisleti, respectively deans of the Cardinal priests and the Cardinal deacons. He was asked in Latin by Cardinal Vannutelli, in accordance with custom, if he accepted the election to be supreme Pontiff, and the new Pope answered with the formal, "Since it is the will of God, I must obey."

Then the purple canopies over the throne of the Cardinals were let down, one by one, until only that over the new Pontiff remained. Cardinal Vannutelli thereupon asked the new incumbent what name he chose to take during his pontificate, and upon his reply "Pius XI." Monsignor Sincero, Secretary of the conclave, verified his election to the papal chair.

CONCLAVE'S CHOICE APPLAUDED HERE

BISHOP MANNING HAILS HIM

Archbishop Hayes Will Issue a Statement Today on the Result.

Men prominent in Catholic life in this city and a number of leading Protestants commented yesterday on the election of Cardinal Ratti as Pope.

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, it was said at his residence, 452 Madison Avenue, will issue a formal statement today.

Monsignor Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, said:

"Everybody is very much pleased to hear of the election of Cardinal Ratti, the Archbishop of Milan, as the new sovereign Pontiff of the Holy Roman Church. Pope Pius XI. has had a very considerable experience both in the diplomatic and executive service of the Vatican. When he was Papal Nuncio to Poland he served with very great skill at a time when the most careful diplomacy was necessary. We are glad to have a new spiritual father so soon."

"Cardinal Ratti, the newly-elected head of the Roman Catholic Church, will have the good wishes of the whole Christian world, and all Christians will pray that he may be a great instrument for the furtherance of unity in the Church of Christ and of peace and good-will among all men."

The Right Rev. John J. O'Connor, Roman Catholic Bishop of Newark, N. J., said at his residence in South Orange:

"I rejoice, together with the rest of the Catholic world, in the selection of another successor to the chair of St. Peter. I feel confident that the great work for human betterment begun by Pius X. and Benedict XV. will be carried to a successful conclusion through the labors of the new Pontiff, Pius XI."

Says Time Is Critical for Church.

Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Vicar General of the Archdiocese of New York, gave an interview from his sick chamber at the rectory of the Church of the Sacred Heart, West Fifty-first Street, near Ninth Avenue, of which he is pastor. He said:

"I am most happy that a new Sovereign Pontiff has been elected after the four days and a half the conclave strove with this supremely important duty. It is the most critical time in the history of the Church. I feel sure that the Cardinals elected the man who in their judgment would best meet the conditions of the times.

Bishop Thomas E. Molloy of Brooklyn was out of town yesterday and will not return until tomorrow. It was said at his residence, Green and Vanderbilt Avenues, Brooklyn.

Mgr. James U. Coan of Queen of All Saints' Church said:

"I understand the new Pope is a very aggressive and fearless churchman. I do not know much of him, but he has been spoken of from the first as a likely selection. I am gratified at the selection."

Mgr. Joseph McNamee of the Church of St. Theresa said:

"I am delighted with the selection of Archbishop Ratti. I had the pleasure of meeting him and have been in the Cathedral at Milan over which he presided. His selection will meet with the entire approval of the hierarchy and the public generally, and under him the Church will continue to progress."

Comes from the Same Town.

One of the very few priests in the Archdiocese of New York who knows Pius XI. personally is the Rev. Joseph Caffuzzi, pastor of the Italian Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, 187th Street and Belmont Avenue, the Bronx.

"Yes, the new Pontiff is from the same town from which I came," said Father Caffuzzi yesterday afternoon. "I cannot claim him as a personal friend, but I know him quite well.

"Pope Pius XI. is of a very fine figure. He has a dark complexion with black eyes, and is tall and slender. He comes from a fine old Italian family. They do not belong to the aristocracy, as did Benedict XV.

"It was sixteen years ago that I had the great privilege of meeting him. He was sthen on a visit to the Eternal City. Our new Pontiff was considered the greatest librarian in Italy."

The Rev. David J. Hickey of the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Brooklyn, said:

"The fact that so many ballots were taken shows that the greatest interest was manifested in the election, and the result proves to be a happy one. The clergy and the people of the world extend their congratulations to the new pontiff, who will, I am sure, measure up to the exalted office to which he has been named. He is a man of learning, a man of piety and he will, there is no doubt, take rank with the great pontiffs of the Catholic Church."

Great Learning and Ability.

The Rev. Eugene U. Donnelly of the Church of St. Athanasius said:

"Cardinal Ratti is a very fine type of man, and the selection is an excellent one. He comes from a fine family. He has shown that he is a diplomat.

Mgr. Charles A. Cassidy, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, New Brighton, S. I., said:

"The selection is most pleasing to the Catholic world. The Pope is a very sympathetic and pious man and is loved by all the Milanese. He is very fair and progressive, and especially good to the poor."

Judge Alfred J. Talley of General Sessions said:

"There is only one thing that can be said at this time, and that is it is certain that the selection represents the best judgment of the conclave on the choice of the one believed to be best qualified for ruler of the greatest spiritual empire on earth. I feel sure the Pope chosen as this one was will prove to be a worthy successor to the four great men who have preceded him within the memories of living men."

POPE'S BIRTHPLACE THRILLED BY NEWS

Boyhood Friend Recalls Prophecy He Made of the Great Event.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Proceeding to Desio, a short distance from Milan, where the new Pontiff was born, the Milan correspondent of The London Times found the population in the streets commenting excitedly on the news of Cardinal Ratti's election as supreme Pontiff, while the bells of the church were pealing joyously.

"So," the local chemist exclaimed to the correspondent, "Desio will go down in history now."

A crowd of peasants, women and children, gathered in front of the two-storied house where Pius XI., was born, and there lived for a long time. His father, Francesco Ratti, Director of a silk factory, was not a rich man, but of comfortable means. The Pope was the third born of six children, of whom, besides himself, only two are living—Carmo, the eldest, and Camilla, the youngest of all.

The Pope passed his boyhood in Desio, where the correspondent was shown the school he attended. In the Spring and Summer, the teacher, Father Volontieri, gave lessons outroom in the arcade, covered with ivy, which is still well preserved. That the new Pope was always fond of his native place is well known. He visited it every Summer, and last September before making solemn entry into Milan, having been created Cardinal, he passed a few days in his native village at the house of a friend, a retired solicitor.

The correspondent sought the solicitor and had a short talk with him.

"Achille and myself," he said, "were chums. I could tell you a lot about our games and escapades. Since a boy the new Pope has been noted for his love of books and mountains, and I assure you it would be difficult to say which he loves the more. At the age of ten we used to go on excursions over the hills, and he distinguished himself by his ability and endurance.

"From our hills he turned then to the Alps and became a great mountaineer. Of his climbs three are particularly important—Cervin (Matterhorn), Mont Blanc and Mont Rosa. He was the very first to reach the summit of Mont Blanc from the Italian side, and the road which he was the first to traverse is still known by his name and that of Mgr. Grasselli, his companion. He was the first to cross Zumstein Peak, on Mont Rosa, and this ascension he described himself in a bulletin of the Italian Alpine Club, of which he was a member.

"We were often together on these excursions and I never saw a more enthusiastic and delightful climber. He constantly carried his prayer book with him and would occasionally rest and read a few sentences from it.

"What was the more extraordinary to me was his perfect calm, even in difficult moments. I remember once on the Glacier Paradiso our guide fell into a crevasse and would have perished there had it not been for the presence of mind, skill and strength with which Ratti held the ropes. Then, little by little, he succeeded in drawing the guide back to safety.

"Even at the age of 50 he made some good climbs, but then went to Rome, far away from his beloved Alps. I remember when he left Milan in 1918. I told him: 'You are going away with a black hat; you will return with a red hat, and in time will arrive at the white hat.' His reply was: 'This is a tremendous prophecy.'"

Returning to Milan, the correspondent called on Signora Camilla Ratti, a woman of about 50. The sister of the Pope lives alone in Milan in a modest flat. She was in tears.

"I am pleased," she said to the correspondent, "at the great honor bestowed on my family, but am sorry to lose a brother who was always good and kind to me. I am afraid I shall see him very little now.

"I was happy when he returned to Milan as Cardinal, but happiness was to last only five months, during which time I had the opportunity of seeing him almost every day."

Asked what her brother told her when he was leaving for the conclave, she replied:

"My brother is a very reserved man; he does not like talking about himself. He told me, however, that he hoped he would return to his beloved Milan. The news of his election came as a surprise to me; I did not expect it."

FRENCH WELCOME PIUS XI. AS A FRIEND

Only the Royalists Show Any Sign of Disappointment Over His Election.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The election of Cardinal Ratti to the Pontificate is favorably regarded in France, where he has the reputation of being imbued with a friendly spirit and a conciliatory attitude toward the republic.

It is also stated that he was the candidate of Cardinal Dubois, which in itself is sufficient a guarantee for the French people.

The only ones who are not entirely pleased appear to be the Royalists, who fear the new Pope will show a freer, more democratic spirit than quite suits their aims and views. This spirit, indeed, has already been shown by the new Pope's action in appearing on the balcony of St. Peter's and blessing the crowd assembled without the Vatican, which is very favorably commented upon in Paris.

This evening's Temps says: "Those who have had occasion to work in the Vatican Library will remember the amiable sympathetic physiognomy of the new Pope who, when prefect of this library, always gave a courteous welcome to all. Well aware of the difficulties of post-war diplomacy in speaking fluently several languages, thoroughly versed in legal, religious and international matters—that's what may be said of Cardinal Ratti, who became Pope a few hours ago. To forecast what will be his Pontificate, requires more than and reflection in order to make sound projectures. The new Pontiff himself, without speaking of supernatural lights which must enlighten him, will, no doubt, see things from more than one new angle on the throne to which he has just been elevated.

La Liberte says that from the French point of view the election of Cardinal Ratti gives the greatest satisfaction. It adds: "Firstly, the new Pope is a friend of Poland. He has associated himself in all circumstances in proofs of the good will and sympathy which Benedict gave us during these last years. When each time he entered into relations with a Frenchman, Cardinal Ratti showed perfect cordiality and affability. Do not let us forget that the first act of this Episcopate Cardinal Ratti, when appointed Bishop of Milan, was to give great care to the foundation of a Catholic university, thus showing how greatly he has at heart the good of the clergy and Catholics in general. The new Pope will, therefore, be thoroughly indicated as the protector of the Catholic universities of France abroad and will contribute his share of learning throughout the world. From whatever angle, therefore, we regard and appreciate the significance and consequence of this election of Cardinal Ratti, whether as Frenchmen or as lettered people, we can only rejoice."

The intransigeant expresses very similar views, adding that it may be considered within the possibilities that the new Pope may abandon the voluntary cloisteration of the Vatican. It adds:

"Despite the fact that he may be expected to carry on the policy of Leo XIII., Cardinal Ratti has chosen the name Pius XI., because he wishes to stress the fact that he is not only a diplomatic Pope, but a pious Pope. Cardinal Ratti was certainly elected with the support of the French and Polish Cardinals. The German press yesterday said the German Cardinals, mostly of liberal tendency, would refuse him their vote."

POPE NOT REGARDED AS ANTI-GERMAN

Instances of His Fairness Cited—Said to Speak Twenty-six Languages, Including English.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—That an Italian should be elected Pope was regarded here as almost inevitable, since it was recognized that a foreign Pope would be likely to increase the difficulties between the Vatican and the Italian Government.

It is believed that the new Pope will be welcomed in France. He is very conversant with the French language and was Papal Nuncio at Warsaw from 1918 until early last year, a diplomatic post of the highest importance. His Warsaw incumbature might be regarded as signifying him as pro-Polish and therefore anti-German. During the last few days, however, supporters of his candidature have canvassed the German and Austrian Cardinals, pointing out that this is by no means the case, and giving in proof certain instances of his activity.

Among such instances might have been mentioned the veto issued by the Vatican during the referendum excitement in Upper Silesia of the use of the pulpit for pro-Polish propaganda. At any rate, the Frankfurter Zeitung, in a recent issue, significantly declared that it would be rash to assume that he would prove an anti-German Pope. While there exists a feeling against making the Papacy an Italian monopoly, especially since the complete being of an officially recognized and directed Catholic Party in Italy, the opinion is that the new Pope will undoubtedly continue the work of peace and reconciliation at home and abroad of his predecessor.

Pius XI. is one of the very few modern Popes who have traveled in England. In 1900 he visited Manchester to see the work of the convent similar to that in Milan of which he was chaplain. Dr. Casserlelli, Bishop of Salford, who is a personal friend of the new Pope, said today:

"Pope Pius XI. was a great Alpine climber in his younger days and he has made some remarkable ascents of the most difficult peaks in the Alps. He is a great scholar and diplomat and when in charge of the convent in Milan was never more happy than when he was with the poorest of children, particularly boy chimney sweeps."

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Eminent Catholics in London received the selection of Cardinal Ratti as Pope with the greatest satisfaction. His erudition and tact are especially stressed. Those acquainted with his reputation say that the fact of his intimacy with the English language, which he speaks with ease, will be noted with satisfaction here and in America.

The new Pope is described as a great linguist, being credited with knowing twent-six languages, although his admirers suggest that the number is perhaps exaggerated.

He has written 330 books, it is said here. A member of the Westminster Cathedral clergy told The Daily Mail that Cardinal Ratti is exceptionally ascetic and that when Librarian at Milan he took only one meal daily after his morning coffee. He rose at 5 A. M. and seldom retired before 1 o'clock in the morning, devoting at least five hours a day to silent prayer.

NEW POPE FAMOUS AS ALPINE CLIMBER

His Crossing of Monte Rosa in 1889 Still Celebrated in Mountaineering Annals.

Pope Pius XI. has won some fame in the past as an Alpine climber. The Tablet, a Catholic periodical published in London, in its issue of July 2 last prints an article headed "A Climbing Cardinal; Cardinal Ratti as Alpinist." It says in part:

"Mgr. Ratti had all the 'style' of an Alpinist—enthusiasm, courage, balance. Once afoot, he knew not weariness; his steps fixed and measured like those of a mountain deer, his eyes open to all views and the charms of nature.

"In difficult moments and in crises he displayed a majestic calm and perfect serenity, as when on the glacier of the Tribolazione, beneath the summit of the Gran Paradiso, the rope suddenly escaped and, after a few critical moments poised on the edge of an abyss, he skillfully recovered it.

"Mgr. Ratti had a special weakness as an Alpine climber. He loved to pass the night in the open air in the midst of the great rocks. His crossing of the Monte Rosa in 1889 from Macugnaga, athwart the Marinelli gorge, and passing for the first time on record the hill Zumstein, has remained celebrated in Italian Alpine annals.

"He described the adventure himself in The Bulletin of the C. A. I. of this year:

"Having reached the Marinelli hut, then in a very primitive condition, the following day, July 30, was spent in arduous climbing across the much-dreaded gorge in the direction of Imsengrucken, then across the glacier upwards between the Zumstein and the Dufour, finally an acrobatic feat across the masses of reddish gneiss forming the summit, the party (himself, Mgr. Grasselli, and the guides, Gadin and Proment of Courmayeur), eventually touched the Punta Est, which together with the Allerhochste, forms the Dufour peak.

"The victory was won, but it was 8 P. M., driven by the wind," he writes, "which at this altitude was insupportable, and by advancing night, we quickly descended until about 30 metres lower we found a ledge almost clear of snow, and here we took shelter as best we could."

"The aneroids indicated 4,600 metres above sea level (about 15,180 feet). All that night they had to remain on foot on the narrow vertiginous ledge, unable to turn around or advance, under penalty of being precipitated into the abyss, only able to stamp their feet to prevent them freezing. The coffee, wine and eggs were frozen solid and unusable; they had only a few drops of kirschwasser, and woe to the man who should yield to sleep.

"Yet Dr. Ratti gives a poetic description of that wondrous night watch amid the magnificent silence of the great peaks, broken only once by the thunder of a colossal avalanche on the lower glaciers beneath them.

"The next day the telegraphic wires between Macugnaga and Zermatt conveyed the news of a catastrophe; nobody supposed it possible to spend the night on the Dufour.

"But meanwhile the intrepid climbers, instead of taking the normal descent to Zermatt, were trying a new route on the Italian side.

"One more night they had to spend in the open on the moraine of the Grenz glacier, finally reaching the Rittelsberg, to the amazement of all the spectators.

"Two days later Mgr. Ratti set off without his companion to make the ascent of the Matterhorn, which he carried out without staying at the hut, and, once more overtaken by darkness in the descent, he spent the night in the open.

"The following year he negotiated Mont Blanc by the ascent of the Rocher, and descended by the Dôme glacier, a descent that at that time was a novelty.

GOV. MILLER APPROVES DOWNING SCHOOL BILL

Thinks Ten-Year Term for Superintendents Will Aid in Barring Politics.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—Governor Miller today came out squarely for the Downing bill, which would increase the term of office of Superintendents of Schools in first-class cities from six to ten years and would provide that Associate Superintendents in New York City could not be removed except on charges. The Governor reiterated the statement he made before the real estate boards in New York City Saturday night that politics must be kept out of the schools.

The bill is sponsored by Senator Downing of New York City, and this is the first time this session that the Governor has announced that he favored a Democratic measure. A similar bill was introduced last year, but was killed in committee. At that time there was vigorous opposition from Rochester and Buffalo.

When the Governor was asked if he had informed the legislative leaders that he approved the Downing bill he replied: "No, I haven't, but I guess they will know it now."

The chief thing he had in mind in supporting the Downing bill, he said, was to assure to the School Superintendents a tenure of office which would prevent their being controlled by political influences. Reports last week were that the bill had struck a snag, but now that the Governor has approved it, it is regarded as virtually certain of passage.

Senator Downing's bill was on the calendar for second reading at tonight's session. In his absence Senator Robinson, Republican, of Herkimer, a member of the Meyer committee, moved it.

Senator Walker and half a dozen other Tammany Senators jumped to their feet in protest. The bill was then laid aside. A little later Senator Downing returned to his seat, but did not ask that his bill be taken up.

It is understood that Tammany pressure is being brought to bear to induce Downing to abandon his bill. It was introduced at a time when it looked as though Associate Superintendent Charles Meleney and William McAndrews, both men of long experience in and of great value to the Department of Education, were to be sacrificed in the interest of persons favored by Mayor Hylan when their terms expire this month. Tammany men in the Legislature tonight said this plan had been abandoned.

Even should the Downing bill be dropped, the stand taken by Governor Miller is likely to lead to the introduction of some similar measure under Republican sponsorship which would insure its passage.

POLITICIANS BARRED BY NEW SCHOOL BILL

Meyer Committee Reports Flagrant Interference in Local Educational Matters.

RECOMMENDS A NEW BOARD

Proposes Increase From 7 to 23, to Be Appointed by Mayor and Approved by Local Regents.

Acting on information gathered by its investigators in the last five months, the Meyer committee, it was learned yesterday, will take action within a week to oust the present Board of Education on the ground that local educational conditions have become so acute and the influence of politics in the schools so flagrant that only immediate action can remedy the situation. The committee will introduce a bill enlarging the membership of the Board of Education from seven to fifteen or twenty-three members, and will recommend other measures to safeguard the schools from political manipulation.

The committee has under consideration several plans dealing with the appointment of members of the board, and it was reported that the one most favored was to have the members appointed by the Mayor subject to confirmation by the New York City members of the State Board of Regents. This plan, it was said, would permit the appointing power to continue in the hands of the Mayor, subject to a check by the Regents, whose duty it would be to see that the members nominated were capable.

The report to be made to the Legislature by the Meyer committee next week will be comprehensive, and is said to be the result of a thorough study of the local educational system made by four experts under the direct supervision of Chairman Schuyler N. Meyer.

Two Plans Discarded.

The Meyer committee considered the suggestion that the appointments to the Board of Education be placed in the hands of the Board of Regents alone, but handicaps of a legal nature caused this suggestion to be discarded. It also has been suggested that the committee recommend that the members be appointed by the Mayor and the Board of Estimate jointly. Such a change at the present time, with Tammany control of the Board of Estimate, it was pointed out, would leave the situation practically where it has been up to the present.

In its forthcoming report the Meyer committee will summarize present conditions in the schools, and will recommend the separation of the Board of Education from city control, making it independent of local political influence and responsible only to the State. Senator Meyer believes with Governor Miller, Superintendent William J. Ettinger and Arthur S. Somers, a member of the Board of Education, that education is a State function, and that the State should intervene whenever the powers and machinery given to a locality for educational purposes are abused.

Radical changes in the State educational law will be recommended by the committee, which will make suggestions regarding permanent tenure of office of executives in an endeavor to free the control of the board from political influence. The bills to cover the recommendation of the report will be submitted as soon as the report is made public.

Tax Increase Involved.

The committee has paid special attention to the building program, including alterations, repairs and fire hazards. The question of finances and the methods to be followed in providing for new construction will furnish a considerable part of the report. A recommendation that is expected to meet with the immediate disapproval of some of the realty organizations advocates an increase in the mandatory rate of taxation to furnish the finances for school construction. The committee is prepared to combat this point of view with facts and figures gathered in its inquiry.

Numerous phases of the inquiry will be touched on in the report, which is said to be one of the most searching analyses of the local educational situation that has been made in recent years. The committee has paid more attention to the investigation of the schools than to any other local activity.

The school inquiry of the Mayor committee was stimulated by the recent election by the Board of Education of Mrs. Grace Strachan Forsythe to the position of Associate Superintendent of Schools in the place of Dr. Andrew W. Edson, who retired. This incident, together with the report that political influence was being brought to bear on the board against the reappointment of Associate Superintendents William McAndrew and Clarence Meleney, are said to have been responsible for Governor Miller's utterance last Saturday night concerning the necessity for a halt "whenever an effort is made to drag the slimy trail of politics through our schools."

Says Both Will Be Re-elected.

George J. Ryan, Acting President of the Board of Education, in his first public statement on the Meleney-McAndrews case, informed THE TIMES yesterday that, in his opinion, both men would be re-elected without any opposition at the meeting tomorrow. "I cannot agree with those who say that there is politics in the schools," he said.

"The Board of Education has not been influenced by political considerations in regard to its actions. No political influences were brought to bear on the board. I would condemn it absolutely."

Those who have been following recent events in the Board of Education, were of the opinion last night that the protest of the public and education officials generally in regard to the alleged proposal for shelving Dr. McAndrews, Dr. Meleney and Superintendent of School Buildings C. B. J. Snyder had served to bring about a sudden shift in plans.

In this connection it was pointed out that the District Superintendents formally arrayed themselves against the shelving of Meleney and McAndrews and Snyder by the adoption of resolutions declaring that it would be "unethical and unprofessional" for any one in the school system to accept the places of Associate Superintendent Meleney and McAndrews if either of them were not re-elected by the Board of Education. The resolution also sounded a warning of the danger of permitting politics to enter the school system.

The introduction of politics in the schools was also attacked by Dr. Andrew W. Edson, former Associate Superintendent of Schools, who said: "I have seen many Boards of Education come and go, but this is the first time I have seen a board that was so clearly the creation of one man. During former administrations there were always men on the board who would stand up for their opinions and speak out openly for them so reporters at the meeting could get both sides and give them to the public. There is nothing of that sort now. It would not be allowed.

Pressure on Superintendents.

"I don't mean that there are not some members of the present board who have the right idea, but as a whole the board does as it is told and the public does not know any more than they can help. That pressure is brought to bear upon associate superintendents when important appointments are to be made we all know. It is not only humiliating, but it is a serious ordeal. Men like McAndrew and Meleney of national reputation and splendid judgment should not be subjected to it."

Dr. Edson advocates permanent tenure for associate superintendents as a means of keeping their offices out of politics, and he would have a three years' probationary period to test the efficiency of candidates. He will support the Downing bill covering these points. When the attention of Acting President Ryan was called to the statement of Dr. Edson he said he would like to know the identity of the "one man" mentioned by Dr. Edson before commenting.

The Executive Board of the Teachers' Union, in an announcement yesterday by President Henry R. Linville, declared that in the election of Mrs. Forsythe to the office of Associate Superintendent without making public the reasons, the Board of Education "has given further support to the charge made in 1920 and at many other times, that high educational positions in the City of New York are pawns in the game of partisan politics."

Protest Against Mrs. Forsythe.

The Teachers' Union protested against the election of Mrs. Forsythe, saying there was need of frank discussion on the subject if the morale of the educational system were to be maintained and improved.

"If the Board of Education is content to be charged with political bias in the selection of persons for professional duty of a highly technical nature," said Dr. Linville, "and if the Board of Superintendents itself does not take steps to defend the standing of its own body, then the teachers themselves must undertake to propose standards of qualifications which especially apply to membership in the Board of Superintendents."

Henry P. Eilert, a former member of the Board of Education, said yesterday he favored the proposal to invest the appointing power in the Board of Education in the hands of the Mayor and the local members of the Board of Regents. He also favored the increasing of the Board of Education to twenty-three members.

UNTERMYER STIRS HYLAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.—Mayor Hylan and Mrs. Hylan came over to West Palm Beach this morning on the 5-cent ferry that plies Lake Worth between Palm Beach and the business city. On his return by ferry the Mayor espied Samuel Untermyer, just arrived from New York, on the dock where his yacht, the Nirodah, is tied up.

"Ah, there he is," exclaimed the Mayor. "There is the great man, Sam. By gosh," the Mayor went on, "at it again. He hasn't been here fifteen minutes and there he is giving orders already. Sam and I used to be great friends."

By this time Mrs. Hylan had cautioned the Mayor and the rest of the conversation was in a lower tone so that the passengers on the ferry were not further edified by the Mayor's emotions upon sighting "the great man Sam."

tendent Ettinger denied me access to the books of the department and directed my accountants to leave the building. Thereupon I issued a subpoena for Henry R. M. Cook, the auditor in the office of the Board of Education.

"Superintendent Ettinger, however, returned the subpoena to me and directed Cook to ignore me. It was necessary for the city authorities to go to the Court of Appeals, the highest court in the State, to establish the right of the city's tax and rent payers to ascertain how their many millions of dollars given for school purposes annually are actually being expended.

"However, in spite of the Court of Appeals decision, Superintendent Ettinger continued to block, and is now blocking every move to ascertain what is being done with the money, how the money is being expended, and to what extent, he and the others in the school system are profiting annually from the sale to the city of school books of which they are authors or co-authors.

"At the time when I made an attempt to examine the books of account of the Board of Education, did Superintendent Ettinger, the General Education and the Gary crowd raise the howl that politics were being injected into the schools, and although the Court of Appeals more than two years ago unanimously decided that the city has a right to investigate the business methods of the Board of Education, Superintendent Ettinger and his associates have persistently resisted such an investigation. They undoubtedly know best why.

"For instance, when it was sought to take an inventory in the Department of Education for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there was waste in the purchase and use of books and supplies, Superintendent Ettinger stopped such an investigation by issuing an order to the supply department and to all school Principals not to allow an inventory to be taken.

"When an attempt was made to learn the number of different school textbooks used in the same grade, with a view of ascertaining whether it would not be possible for the Board of Education to adopt a standard book for each grade, and thus save a great deal of money, Superintendent Ettinger resisted such an investigation, and only recently, when an attempt was made to study the system under which the school janitors are being employed, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any savings could be effected in that direction, Superintendent Ettinger issued an order to the janitors, directing them not to give me any information.

Tells of "Powerful Machine."

"Talking about politics, Superintendent Ettinger and his associates, exercising their autocratic power, have built up around them a powerful political machine within the school system of this city, and, with the aid of the Rockefeller propagandists and Garyites, have trailed the 'slimy trail of politics' through our schools. It is well known that had it not been for Superintendent Ettinger and his school political machine, there would have been no necessity to canvass Curran's vote. I wonder is the Governor now playing for that school vote for next Fall?

"In view of the 'slimy trail of politics,' left behind by the Governor's 'Mire' Committee sent down here last Spring to 'get Mayor Hylan by hook and crook,' it would make Hallam's palms tough to listen to the Governor Miller's talk about 'slimy trails of politics,' and his invitation to the members of the Real Estate Board to get to Albany by the quickest possible means to call a halt to it.

"Was there ever anything more 'slimy' than the forcing through his 'automatic ball-bearing Legislature last year, the subway 'Dipper' bill and substituting in its place his Transit Commission with power to deprive the City of New York of its subways costing the tax and rent payers of the City of New York over three hundred million dollars, and authorizing this same commission to purchase from the traction crowd, with the tax and rent payers' money the old and dilapidated, useless and worthless elevated and surface car lines, and then hand over the same subways, elevated and surface cars back to the same traction crowd to be operated by them, free as all taxation?

Calls Port Authority Plan "Slimy."

"Was there ever a more 'slimy game of politics' played than Governor Miller's Port Authority scheme, by which it is proposed to hand over to the Pennsylvania and other railroads, free of all taxation, the priceless waterfront of the City of New York, with its docks costing hundreds of millions of dollars, and divert the commerce of the City of New York to Newark Bay and the Hackensack River, and develop the Jersey meadows, owned by these railroads.

"And now, in the few months of his remaining official life, Governor Miller is seeking for an excuse to seize the school system of the City of New York and hand it over to the Rockefeller Educational Foundation to Garyize our schools, discourage higher learning and educate the children of the City of New York for the mill and factory.

"The next onslaught to be expected from the Governor is upon the Department of Public Welfare, with a view of handing over our hospitals and charitable institutions to the Rockefeller charity organizations.

"Nathan the Terrible, like Czar Ivan the Terrible in his day, is determined to strip the conquered province, once known as the City of New York, of all her property, prerogatives and self-government, and hand it over as a prize to his friends, the interests that never hesitate to play dirty politics and always leave behind a 'slimy trail.'"

FINALLY FREE COHEN IN THE BAFF MURDER

STORY OF APPEAL IS TOLD

Justice Wasservogel, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court last night, signed an order freeing Joseph Cohen of the charge of murdering Barnet Baff, a West Washington Market poultryman, on Nov. 24, 1914. The final act in the long legal fight comes a few days after the fifth anniversary of Cohen's indictment, since which he had served more than two years in the Sing Sing death house.

Governor Smith reprieved Cohen seven minutes before the time set for his execution. Three other reprieves were granted, then a special hearing was held by the Governor, who commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. After his release from the death house Cohen served in the prison until Thanksgiving Eve, 1921, when he was released for a new trial. Last night a messenger went to his home at 282 Division Street and said to him:

"The Court has just dismissed the indictment against you, and you will not be tried again on the charge of murdering Barnet Baff."

When the new trial was granted, Supreme Court Justice Whittaker notified the Attorney General's representative here that it must proceed within thirty days. The prosecution could not do so because the chief witness was in Italy. Goldstein & Goldstein, counsel for Cohen, then moved for a dismissal.

Among the unusual features of the murder plot was the fact that Antonio Cardinale, leader of the gunmen who killed Baff, could not be prosecuted. He had escaped to Italy and was brought here as a witness for the State by agreement with the Italian Government that he be returned to Italy after testifying.

Joseph Sorro, who corroborated Cardinale's testimony, was convicted of perjury and is serving a term in Sing Sing.

Giuseppe Arichiello, charged with the actual shooting, was convicted, got a new trial and was released. Others were convicted, but all were finally freed except Abraham Graff, who is serving a life sentence for manslaughter.

Cohen is now working in the market as a laborer. All of his savings and his once prosperous business have been lost in his fight for freedom.

TOWNLEY OUT ON BAIL.

Non-Partisan League's Head to Answer Charges March 9.

FARGO, N. D., Feb. 6.—A. C. Townley, President of the National Non-Partisan League, was released on $1,500 bond today for preliminary hearing March 9, when he appeared in District Court here to answer to the charge of implication in the alleged embezzlement of $3,000 from the now defunct Scandinavian-American Bank of Fargo.

Townley is charged with having "encouraged" J. J. Hastings, former Vice President of the bank, to make an alleged improper loan of $3,000 to the U. S. Sisal Trust." Hasting's extradition from California is being sought.

TWO QUEBEC TOWNS EXCITED

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 6.—In two Quebec towns nearly a hundred miles apart excitement prevails over identical misfortunes—the disappearance of a trusted Notary with hundreds of thousands of dollars of the investments of retired farmers, widows and other residents. The towns are Chateauguay Basins and St. Hyacinthe.

From Chateauguay Fortune Laberge, a notary, vanished with funds totaling $250,000, entrusted to him by citizens to whom he gave simple receipts. He left nothing seizable except a house.

Exactly similar circumstances prevail at St. Hyacinthe, except that Notary Armand Boisseau, a member of the Provisional Legislature, was arrested on the charge of embezzeling trust funds amounting to about $100,000. He was allowed out on $25,000 bail, and disappeared.

The Chateauguay notary is alleged to have purchased farms, subdivided them and sold the lots and never paid for the farms, and to have embezzled from the town corporation, the School Board, the parish priest and other residents.

A sequel to the disappearance of the Chateauguay notary is a bankruptcy, which has just been announced. Both of the accused notaries are believed to have crossed the border.

MRS. BROOKS UNDER INQUIRY

Ex-Governor Whitman Thinks She Could Be Called in Horton Case.

Former Governor Charles S. Whitman said yesterday that he would confer with District Attorney Joab H. Banton today and obtain the records of the District Attorney's office to facilitate his work as Deputy Attorney General in investigating the connection of Mrs. Lucille E. Brooks with the murder of Police Lieutenant Floyd Horton in December, 1920.

Asked if the fact that Mrs. Brooks had testified beofre the Grand Jury would confer immunity from prosecution on her, Mr. Whitman replied that if her testimony did not incriminate or degrade her, it was his offhand opinion that she was subject to indictment and trial if sufficient legal grounds for such action existed.

Mrs. Brooks was in an automobile which Lieutenant Horton tried to stop, and which Nicholas Loresch was driving, when Horton and Joe Loresch mortally wounded each other. Loresch is serving twenty years to life imprisonment in Sing Sing.

EMPLOYMENT BILL PASSED.

Measure Allows Legislature to Fix Number in Institutions.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—The Senate tonight passed by a party vote the McGinnies bill vesting in the Legislature power to prescribe the number of employes in State institutions and fix their salaries.

An investigation by the State Industrial Commission to examine the causes of industrial and business breakdown, submit recommendations dealing with immediate relief measures, including unemployment, insurance and measures looking toward the regularization of industry is proposed in a resolution introduced by Senator Seidel, Socialist.

"WHY SHOULD U. S. SMILE?"

"No Message to Send on So Silly a Subject," Wilson Wires.

Among those who replied with words and cheer were Postmaster General Hays, Secretary of Labor Davis, Theodore Roosevelt and William J. Bryan.

Woodrow Wilson replied:

were concentrating their efforts in an attempt to locate Sands.

Mr. Eyton had a long talk with Captain Adams, and Peavey was examined again.

Late in the day the detectives asserted letters known to have been in Taylor's possession just before his death, in addition to those said to have been written by Mabel Normand and sought by her in vain at his apartment after his body was found, were missing.

No one examined by the police so far has admitted any knowledge of the whereabouts of the missing letters. Eyton said he had not seen them. Miss Normand stated she had not. The Public Administrator, who has charge of the Taylor estate, said he had not seen them, and the District Attorney made a like statement.

Eyton's visit to the Central Police Station, it was said, was in relation to the efforts to find Sands. Eyton aided the police in obtaining photographs of Sands, but no really good portraits of him are available, it is said.

It was determined today that the bullet that killed Taylor was fired from a distance of a very few inches. This was taken as evidence that the assassin did not conceal himself in some part of the room and fire from a distance of ten or more feet, and it was also taken to indicate that the overturned chair might have been upset in a brief struggle between Taylor and his slayer.

The facts in relation to Taylor's change of name from that of William Cunningham Deane-Tanner are also being studied. It is generally believed, however, that this was due to Taylor's desire to be free from his former family relations, and to the ordinary custom of screen and stage stars and workers whereby they assume any name that happens to appeal to them.

Early today police and attaches of the Sheriff's office again examined the dead man's papers in the hope of obtaining a better clue than any yet evolved.

George Milo, the motion picture actor, who was taken from his work last night and examined as to his whereabouts at the time of the shooting, was freed of all connection with the case, as the result of his statement and the investigation that later verified his story.

"Mr. Taylor loved Mabel Normand, but I do not believe that she returned his love to any great extent," Harry Peavey, houseman for Taylor, is reported to have told representatives of The Los Angeles Times. "I was in Mr. Taylor's home for almost six months, and I know that Mr. Taylor was very much in love with Miss Normand. At times I thought that she returned his love and then again it seemed to me that she was tired of him.

"One night, almost a month before Mr. Taylor was killed, Miss Normand came to the house for dinner. After dinner I passed through the front room while they were talking, and she stopped me and told me that she and Mr. Taylor were to be married. He was sitting there and did not say a word. She wanted to know if I would work for them. She never came often. While I worked there she was there only about a dozen times.

"She was there the night before the murder and the night of the murder. I know she was there Tuesday night, the night before the murder, because she told me so. Mr. Taylor wrote a letter to Miss Normand almost every day of the week. His driver would take notes to Miss Normand's home by automobile after breakfast in the mornings. He sent flowers to her three days a week.

"Once Miss Normand asked me what other girls had dined with Mr. Taylor. I told her there was only one. She asked me the name, and I told her: 'Miss Normand.' She laughed and said that Mr. Taylor had me well trained. Miss Normand was with Mr. Taylor the last time I saw him alive. My master asked me to mix up some cocktails, and I did. I placed the liquor in the shaker on a tray with two glasses, and Mr. Taylor and Miss Normand were drinking when I left for the evening. They both said goodnight to me and I left the house. When I next saw Mr. Taylor, the next morning, he was dead on the floor of his living room."

Search for New Yorker.

The jealousy theory, the police and private detectives reported, was causing a search to be made for a prominent young New York man, formerly engaged to a film star. This man was reported today to have checked out of a hotel here on the day of the murder and to have left the city the following afternoon. He is believed to have headed for San Diego and possibly to have crossed the border into Mexico. His name is withheld.

The actress to whom he was at one time engaged, according to investigators, was a close friend of the slain director, and in this friendship, they say, they see a possible motive for jealousy which might lead to murder.

The police today were looking for the pink silk nightgown missing from Taylor's home.

Sands Reported in Nevada.

A man said to answer the description of Sands, the missing butler, is in Carlin, Nev., tonight, according to messages received by the Los Angeles police tonight.

Not Listed at Fusilier Officer.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—William Desmond Taylor was never an officer attached to the Fifth Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers, according to the official records of the Fusiliers, who are now stationed at Hounslow Barracks, London, where the Adjutant searched through 46,000 names of officers and men of the regiment who were in the World War at the request of The Chicago Tribune today.

The official record lists, however, W. D. Taylor, address 1,127 Orange Street, Los Angeles, aged 41; profession, director; Born Cork, Ireland; height, 5 feet 11 inches; British subject; enlistment attested at Chicago, July 3, 1918, by the British Recruiting Mission in America."

The next official trace of Taylor is when he arrived at Hounslow Barracks, Dec. 2, 1918, after the armistice, as a private in the ranks of the Royal Fusiliers, coming in a draft of 500 Britishers who had enlisted in America.

A veteran enlisted man of the regiment remembers that Taylor said he was Mary Pickford's director. Taylor was at Hounslow three days, and is said to have been Acting Regimental Quartermaster Sergeant. On Dec. 5, 1918, he he was transferred to the army service corps at the Expeditionary Force canteen on Victoria Street, London.

Praises Taylor as Soldier.

William Desmond Taylor, the moving picture director murdered in Hollywood, won the affection and respect of every one who came in contact with him while he was in the British Army, and Stuart E. Cooling of 2,376 Third Avenue, Provost Sergeant of the camp where Taylor entered the service, swore that no matter what any one said about Bill Taylor he would never believe scandal in connection with him.

Cooling was on duty in Ireland in 1857 with the Fourth Hussars and is sure that Dr. Deane-Tanner, a friend and associate of Parnell and an influential man in the old Nationalist Party, was an uncle of Taylor or William Cunningham Deane-Tanner his right name.

Taylor, he said, "came to Camp Fort Edward at Windsor, Nova Scotia, in the Summer of 1916 with other recruits. I was Provost Sergeant. He was very quick to learn and became a Lance Corporal in two weeks, a Corporal in three weeks, a Sergeant in five weeks, and a company Sergeant Major in two months. Then we went to England and he got a Lieutenant's commission in the Army Service Corps of the British Army. His men worshipped him—would do anything for him.

"We N. C. O.'s, his pals, always found him a man who never thought of himself, who was always helping the underdog, those who had less than he had. I wouldn't believe wrong of him, no matter what anybody said."

CIVIL RIGHTS FOR PEOPLE

Court Procedure to Be a Combination of the American, British and French Systems.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 3.—Civil liberty is the next great concession to be made by the Soviet Government. For the last ten days there have been meetings of legal experts and judicial and executive authorities to organize a new system that will guarantee to the people of Russia rights as enjoyed by other countries.

Hitherto, it may be said, Russia has been under a "state of siege" whereby individual liberties were restricted as in France or Germany during the great war. Now the state of siege has ended, and a return to peacetime conditions is about to take place. In other words, Russia is now writing the "preamble" to her "Constitution," and habeas corpus is to be substituted for summary arrest and court-martial.

It was officially stated yesterday that the dreaded Veetcheka—the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission, corresponding to the all-powerful secret police and arbitrary tribunals instituted by Robespierre during the French Reign of Terror—had ceased to exist.

At the late hour when the statement was made no explanation or qualification was forthcoming for what seemed a direct contradiction to the positive assertion of Trotsky last week to American correspondents that the Veetcheka must be maintained. It is now learned that what is really contemplated with regard to the Veetcheka is not its abolition, but its transformation from a state of siege to peacetime conditions, and as such merely forms a part of the whole big scheme of judicio-legal reconstruction.

Instead of a terrible agency with unlimited powers of search, arrest, arbitrary judgment and execution, the Veetcheka is to be assimilated like our Department of Justice or the English Scotland Yard under control of the Home Office.

The restriction of the Veetcheka's powers Lenin promised in a speech before the All-Russian Soviet Congress is now being accomplished, and the war-time wolf that was kept to slay the black sheep in the Soviet fold is being transformed into a peaceful watchdog, whose teeth will only be used against enemies that attempt to break in.

After six months of Soviet Russia I do not believe the theory one often heard outside that the reason for this change was fear in the heart of the Soviet shepherds lest one day the wolf might turn against its master. The view of the Veetcheka as a power behind the throne or a Government within a Government may seem acceptable enough to those looking at Russia from without, but it will not stand up in the light of wider knowledge of the iron discipline of the Communist Party and the quality of men like Lenin and Trotzky who hold the destinies of Russia with such a firm unswerving grip. No—the change is not due to their fear nor yet to their desire to placate the hostility of the rest of the world, but to their profound knowledge of Russia's situation and her needs.

During the epoch of civil and foreign war that ended with the invitation to Genoa the Soviet leaders judged the Veetcheka necessary and the restriction of individual liberties imperative. Now they greet the dawn of a new and less violent epoch with curtailment of the Veetcheka's powers and extension of liberties.

This does not mean that trial by jury or universal vote by ballot will immediately be instituted. Curious as it may seem to people of the American democracy, the Soviet leaders believe their electoral and judiciary systems better—or at least better suited to the Russian people today—than the electoral and judiciary systems which obtain in America.

So the jury, which they think is too easily swayed by the eloquence of a defending lawyer or Prosecuting Attorney, or overawed and browbeaten by a Judge, will still be replaced in Russia by the "lay Judges," if one may so term them, sitting on a bench behind the Presiding Judge, nearly—or anyway more nearly than a jury—on an equality with him. Before them a defendant will be assured, it is claimed, of a fair, unbiased hearing.

But there will be no more extraordinary tribunals or "star chamber" courts where one man is Judge and Prosecuting Attorney simultaneously and where defendants may employ no counsel, summon no witnesses, nor do anything in their own defense save to try and rally their exhausted, terrified brains to meet the hail of pitiless questions and accusations.

Henceforth the procedure of the Russian courts will be a sort of combination of the French and American systems. As in France, an investigating Magistrate—juge d'instruction—will make a preliminary examination to decide whether the accused shall be freed or tried—that is, whether there is a "case" against him or not. If he decides there is, the defendant will then be brought before a court where a State procurator—corresponding roughly to a District Attorney—will present the case against him. He will be allowed counsel for his defense or may defend himself. The chief difference will be the above-mentioned substitution of lay Judges for a jury.

Meanwhile what hitherto has been the Veetcheka will be a detective force, no longer independently but under the control and orders of the Ministry of the Interior. Of course military offenses, &c., will be still judged by courts-martial and in exceptional cases exceptional rights will be given to the detectives of search, arrest and so forth. But beyond that, a measure of civil rights and freedom not greatly different from those enjoyed in America, France or England is promised to Russians and foreigners alike.

Russian Cannibals Executed.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—Confirmation of reports of cannibalism in the Volga provinces has just reached Moscow in the shape of official photographs of two of the guilty persons and statements of the investigating Magistrate of Samara Province who handled the case.

The first document is dated "Office of the People's Investigating Magistrate, First Section, County Bouzoulook, Province of Samara, Jan. 2, 1922. No. 1,884." Below there is the official stamp of Samara Province. The statement runs:

It is signed by Investigating Magistrate Ales and countersigned by a secretary, whose name is illegible.

The second statement or explanation runs:

"The woman standing on the left, Citizeness Akulina Chugounova, from the District of Yufhemop, County Bouzoulook, slew her sixteen-year-old daughter—in front—and ate up half of the body. On the right Citizen Andrei Semuyukin, village of Andreyevka, County-Bouzoulook, chopped to pieces his female lodger who had died of typhus, and ate her. Of the corpse only the head is left. The picture shows scattered pieces of meat on the table before the culprits."

It is signed "People's Investigating Magistrate Ales."

How do you judge shoes?

Most people don't. They judge prices. But that is like the tail wagging the dog, instead of the dog wagging the tail. There's much more to a shoe than the price. There's leather, of course. There's workmanship, certainly. There's style. And there's fitting.

It would take years to learn to judge leather and good workmanship expertly. You've got to depend upon the reputation of the maker of the shoes for those things. You are the judge of style or pattern. When it comes to a shoe-fitting, it's important to accept the advice of one who knows.

The makers of Walk-Over Shoes know what that service means to you. That's why you can't buy Walk-Over Shoes at Tom, Dick and Harry's shoe store. Only Walk-Over Stores have Walk-Over Shoes.

ASK HEARST TO TELL HIS VIEWS ON JAPAN

BETTER RELATIONS SOUGHT

Publisher Asked If He Will Co-operate in a Movement to Promote National Amity.

The Japan Society of Boston has invited William Randolph Hearst to go there as the guest of the society and deliver an address setting forth the reasons for the attitude of the Hearst papers toward Japan and the relations between the United States and Japan.

The letter sent to Mr. Hearst follows:

Boston, Jan. 21, 1922.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, New York, N. Y.:

My Dear Mr. Hearst—Many indications beside the Conference at Washington reveal the fact that we, as a nation, are trying to bring about more cordial relations with other countries.

You, as the owner and representative of a great newspaper system, are voicing what at the head of your paper is called "Americanism." This being so, we take it for granted that you are in sympathy with the general trend of sentiment, and are desirous of aiding in establishing a stronger co-operative feeling, not only with the European nations, but as well with those of the Orient.

Ignorance Root of Evils.

Ignorance is the cause of much of the prejudice, dislike, and fear which exists today in the United States. Perhaps because of ignorance you are often quoted as being unfriendly to the Japanese Government, and using your newspaper influence in the wrong direction.

In order to dispel this impression, if it be an incorrect one, the Japan Society of Boston now writes to ask if you are willing to come to Boston and address our organization. We should like to have your opinion on the following questions:

1. What, in your opinion, constitutes good international relations with any country?
2. By what methods can these best be attained?
3. Will the Hearst papers co-operate with the Japan societies throughout America, to promote friendship and amity between Japan and the United States?

In this connection, we wish to state that it is no part of the work of our society (nor so far as we know of any other) to encourage Japanese immigration to this country. What we do believe in, and wish to work for, is a just and sympathetic treatment of those Japanese already legitimately here, a keeping of treaties both in spirit and letter, and the creation in the minds of American people of an intelligent interest in and a proper understanding of the problems confronting the Japanese nation.

Can Settle Questions.

By the method of co-operation and education we believe all future questions between the two nations can be peacefully solved. Since no newspaper is definitely working along this constructive line, we believe your papers in the spirit of co-operation can make America foremost among the nations in promoting unity and good will throughout the earth.

If you are willing to accede to our request, please state an evening convenient to you in March or April, or kindly give us the choice of several dates in order that we may engage a centrally located hall and arrange all necessary details for the meeting.

Yours in the spirit of Americanism,
JESSIE M. SHERWOOD,
Secretary.

The society, in a statement given out for publication, said that the letter had been sent to Mr. Hearst to learn the justice of assertions that "the Hearst newspapers, because of the unfriendly attitude of their owner and editor-in-chief, William R. Hearst, to Japan, or at least to the Japanese Government, have been inimical in their expressions of opinion to all those international movement which looked toward a better understanding between the people of the United States and those of Japan." Another reason for the invitation, it was said, was "to allow Mr. Hearst an opportunity to set before the public his reasons for considering the Japanese a menace to our country—if he does so consider them."

The letter was sent in duplicate to Mr. Hearst's home and business address in New York, but no reply had been received by the society to the invitation, the statement said. Efforts to reach Mr. Hearst last night failed.

GALLANT OLD BULLDOG BURIED WITH HONORS

Pallbearers and Silver-Handled Coffin for Prince Cole, Beloved by All Amityville.

They buried Prince Cole out in Amityville, L. I., yesterday. The body, in an oak coffin with silver handles, was placed in a plot on Greene Avenue by special permission. Harvey Dean and Frank Baldwin of Babylon and Israel and Solomon Chichester of Amityville were the pallbearers. Several persons told at the grave what a good and gallant fellow Prince Cole had been in his long lifetime. There were floral offerings and a subscription for a headstone. Many children cried.

Only a dog—but a friend of all the village. A bundle of brindle and white loyalty and affection, fond of going motoring with all and sundry, but sure to turn up at night at its owner's shoeshining place.

Prince Cole lived fourteen years—a fair span for a bulldog. The longer he lived the more friends he made. And no one forgot that when he was a two-months-old pup in St. Louis he routed a burglar, who dropped his pistol and fled from Mrs. Nicholas Cole's home. The damage done by the puppy's teeth led to the man's capture the next day.

So when the Prince succumbed to old age on last Saturday the villagers determined that he should be buried with honor, and he was.

TOY FAIR OPENS.

Foreign Novelties Are Feature of Show—Offer Jackie Coogan Prize.

Owing to delay in transit, only about a third of the exhibits were ready at the opening of the Toy Fair at the Hotel Imperial yesterday. It was said that the remainder would be installed before the end of the week.

The most unique feature is the introduction of the foreign exhibits which heretofore have been excluded. Both Germany and Italy are prominent exhibitors, and their novelties are among the most interesting of the show.

On the main floor of the hotel an exhibition room has been arranged, where in small booths the principal products of manufacturers can be displayed. A more elaborate exhibition is held in one of the rooms on the floor above.

A number of new wooden toys have been introduced, among them Mother Cary's Chickens, which perform in several ways. There are also new felt dolls of innumerable designs, some from Italy and others of domestic production which rival the foreign product. Jackie Coogan will appear at the show on Feb. 20. A prize of a suit of clothes has been offered by the company for the best child make-up of Jackie as "The Kid."

WORKLESS ORGANIZE TO VOICE DISCONTENT

"Fight and Live; Work or Compensation," Slogan of Radical Unemployed.

"Fight and Live; Work or Compensation," is to be the slogan of the unemployed here who are organizing "to get action at any cost," it was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the newly formed Organization of Unemployed, 83 East Fourth Street.

Openly agitationg an uprising of the jobless workers, the new organization, which is headed by a number of radical labor leaders and advocates of revolutionary tactics, began registering the unemployed of the city yesterday and tonight will hold a demonstration at the Labor Temple, Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue. This is the first step in the organization of the jobless authorized at the mass meeting last week, when threats were made to march on the City Hall, seize the homes of the rich on Fifth Avenue and "fight the police and their tear-gas bombs," if necessary.

"When we have organized the unemployd of this city," said a statement issued by the organization yesterday, "and have linked them up with the 10,000,000 unemployed in the country, we will have an army that can do things. Then we will form a big union with the workers still on the job and they won't be able to stop us from making this a country of the workers. Activity is being planned for the unemployed, since it has become apparent that the authorities will do nothing for them.

"During the French Revolution the workers had as their slogan, 'We will eat and live or fight and die.' But the unemployed workers of this country have been given a different slogan: 'Fight and Live; Work or Compensation.'

The Workers Party of America is co-operating and has issued a manifesto calling for a demonstration by the jobless on Feb. 25 "against the curse of capitalist class rule and unemployment.

GOMPERS SAYS LABOR WILL SUPPORT MINERS

Public Will Also Fix the Blame for Tie Up, He Declares—Assails Wage Cutting.

The American labor movement will support the mine workers in their fight against wage reductions this Spring, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor declared in a statement received yesterday by the various unions in the New York district.

"The public," added Mr. Gompers, "that is paying more than war prices for coal while thousands of miners are kept in enforced idleness and thus forbidden to dig coal is also likely to be fairly accurate in placing the blame for a tie-up in the industry if one comes.

"At the present moment the mine owners, swelling with profits reaped from coal prices which have gone beyond all bounds, are seeking to further enrich themselves at the expense of the mine workers.

"The American labor movement and the American people will be with the miners if they are forced to defend their rights. If they are forced to fight against bloated, arrogant privilege and profiteering for a fair wage and for the opportunity to go down into the earth to dig coal, may they fight a good fight, for they will be fighting for justice, and justice for the miners is the concern of all who love justice."

Mr. Foster made small bequests to friends, including Anna E. Lambert. The gift to her is a memorial to her parents "and a debt of gratitude for the great kindness shown to me in my youth, and for the good influence they threw around my early life during the many years I was in the employ of Mr. Lambert."

Mr. Foster divides his residuary estate equally among his children, John Hegeman Foster and Eugene Gray Foster, of 175 West Seventy-second Street; Howard Crosby Foster of Plainfield, N. VIVIANI AVOIDS AN EXPLANATION

Won't Tell Why He Thinks Lloyd George Wants to Kill the League of Nations.

ASSERTION CALLED ABSURD

As Also Is Ex-Premier's Idea That League Is Dominated by the Latin Spirit.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Rene Viviani, ex-Premier of France, special envoy of France on many important missions and second representative of France on the League of Nations Council, when asked by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today to explain a statement which he made in a Paris paper yesterday—that Mr. Lloyd George wished to kill the League of Nations because it appeared to him to be completely animated by the Latin spirit—took refuge behind the fact that he was the paid correspondent of another American newspaper and refused to reply.

He is one of France's leading statesmen. When the war broke out, he was Premier. At League of Nations meetings he has always taken a prominent place. Some day he may be again Premier of France.

Even in French political life, where almost everything written by ex-Ministers such as André Tardieu, and future Ministers such as M. Poincaré was still recently, ends with the words "Copyright in America," such an attitude as that of Viviani's is unusual.

The attitude of Mr. Lloyd George toward the League he himself defined recently during a speech for his supporters in which he complained humorously that sometimes the League seemd in danger of becoming something of a party question with such supporters as Lord Robert Cecil. But even in France among Legue officials and League supporters Viviani's statement that the British Premier wishes to kill the League is described as absurd.

Lloyd George was certainly disappointed at the decision of the League with regard to the division of Upper Silesia. He had hoped and worked for its allocation to Germany, and in taking a position against him in this matter Mr. Balfour interpreted the real purpose and character of the League on a higher plane than has ever been done.

But those who attended last Autumn's session at Geneva ridicule the idea of domination of the League by the Latin spirit. The French delegation, of which Viviani was a member, failed to make any headway against the liberal policy pushed by the British delegation and Viviani retired from the meeting. The Italians, while supporting the British, did not take the same prominence as during the previous year, while Spain and the Latin republics of South America on almost every occasion sided with Balfour in his progressive attitude. It is, therefore, difficult to understand what Viviani means—failing a statement from himself—by domination of the League by the Latin spirit.

The only solution which may be advanced is this by a Frenchman who has attended almost all the meetings not only of the League but the Supreme Council: "There are two conceptions of international conferences now in dispute. There is what may be called the League of Nations method, in which elaborate documentary preparation is made and the points of view of all the participants are united beforehand, as can best be done by an expert Secretariat. When the meeting takes place the questions to be decided are clear and definite, and it is almost impossible to say from which country or group of countries come the proposal embodied.

"The other type of conference is the Washington conference, which was summoned by one country, whose representative presented at the opening session what could be considered as a compromise program on the details of which agreement was to be sought subsequently.

"That is the type of conference which Mr. Lloyd George has proposed should be held at Genoa. In it he has probably the intention of playing the same rôle Mr. Hughes played at Washington. On the other hand, M. Poincaré has far more faith in what has been called the League of Nations type of conference, and it is between these two points of view that there is now discussion.

"But between having the wish to conduct the Genoa conference on the lines of Washington and wishing to kill the League of Nations there is a wide difference."

So far no reply has been received from England to M. Poincaré's note of last Friday in which he gave his opinion that doubtful points on the agenda should be cleared up among the Allies before going to Genoa.

REPRIEVE FOR LANDRU SOUGHT ON NEW CLUE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—There is a bare chance that the Gambais affair may not yet be concluded. As Henri Desiré Landru yesterday languished in his cell, attired in the gray of prisoners awaiting the guillotine, destitute of hope, his attorney, M. de Moro Giafferi, received a letter from one of the condemned man's neighbors which might have a dramatic turn to the famous "Bluebeard" case. In fact, after his lawyers had consulted with Landru, the prisoner's spirit revived, and he consented to sign a petition for reprieve, though hitherto he had refused to take that step.

The letter, signed by Hector Vigoureux, a resident of Gambais, where is situated the villa in which Landru is alleged to have committed most of his eleven murders, said that three days after Landru's arrest, while the writer was returning home about midnight, he saw a light in a small building beside the church where bones from some ancient graves are stored. Mystified, Vigoureux approached and recognized a half-wit of the town, who was carefully selecting bits of bone and placing them in a basket. Later the writer saw the man leave the building and climb a wall around the garden of Landru's home, according to the letter. The writer advances the belief that this was the source of fragments of human bone found and produced at the trial. The letter has been forwarded by Landru's lawyers to the Minister of Justice as a first step in the effort to get a new trial.

Unfortunately for the prospect of a successful appeal on the ground of new evidence, French newspaper men who have hunted about Gambais all day could find no Hector Vigoureux, though they found four men named Vigoureux, none of whom would admit having written the letter, nor could they learn of a half-wit, living or dead, who might have been the mysterious bone-collecting individual. So Landru's chance on the ground of the letter may be taken to be of the slightest.

Just the same, today Landru for the first time in a month tried on his jailers that wit which made his demeanor at the trial brilliant at times.

"The guillotine, of Delbler," said he, "is for me like a good razor. It comes very close, but does not cut me."

to inform you that we adhere throughout to this principle laid down by yourself, and we cannot consent to any alteration of our boundary except by mutual agreement, failing which, with respect to any territory in dispute, the boundary will stand as defined in the Government of Ireland act of 1920.

"I am sure you will agree with me on the importance of preventing any further misunderstanding, and I am accordingly sending a copy of this to the press. Yours sincerely,

"JAMES CRAIG."

Subsequently Sir James told Lloyd George personally that the decision of the Ulsterites must stand. Special dispatches from Belfast report that strong representations are being forwarded to the Ulster Premier from all sections of Ulster Unionists to the effect that there must be no further conferences with the Sinn Feiners and urging that Ulster, not being consulted regarding the treaty, must stand by the 1920 act.

Griffith Stays in London.

In view of these developments there is keen interest whether Arthur Griffith, who remained in London while Mr. Collins and the other southern representatives returned to Dublin tonight, will meet Sir James. Griffith's presence in London is commented on as indicating that not only the boundary, but the whole question of the relation of the six counties to the Free State is being discussed.

Mr. Collins and his colleagues went to Dublin to lay before the Provisional Government the arrangements made today regarding procedure for giving effect to the treaty with Great Britain. Mr. Griffith will remain in London a day or two.

When interviewed this evening Mr. Collins said the morning conference with representatives of the British Government was devoted principally to the details of taking over complete control in Ireland. He declined to disclose whether the Ulster boundary question was discussed, but intimated it possibly would form part of the conversations of Arthur Griffith and Sir James Craig, if an interview between them were arranged.

Asked if the situation arising from the hitch in the boundary negotiations with the Ulster Premier had improved, Mr. Collins declared:

"I can only reiterate that the majorities must rule, and it is for that principle the treaty stands. Our attitude has been made perfectly clear—we will not coerce any part of Ulster desirous of remaining in the area controlled by the Northern Parliament, but neither will we allow coercion of any part of Ulster which votes itself into the Free State."

He would not say whether the Belfast boycott would be reinstated, explaining:

"I cannot tell in advance what our policy would be in the event of certain developments. We are reasonable people, and if the other people prove reasonable there will be no difficulty."

In addition to the morning conference, Mr. Collins, Mr. Griffith, Eamon J. Duggan and Kevin O'Higgins saw Winston Spencer Churchill at the Colonial Office this afternoon.

Further disorders in Ireland were reported today, most serious of which was cattle driving on a large scale in the Tipperary district. Early Sunday large numbers of cows, sheep and horses were driven off several estates, the object apparently being to compel owners to break up grazing lands.

Notices signed "Captain Moonshine" were posted stating that any one found driving the cattle back or repairing the walls and gates would meet with instant death.

The Irish Republican Army has announced its intention of severely punishing the perpetrators.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Developments in the Irish situation today have brought back forcibly to the public mind the words of Bonar Law used last session in the House of Commons as he made the peace treaty completely safe by coming out in its support.

"This is not the time for throwing caps in the air," he said. "Six months hence I do not think this treaty will be a political asset to the Prime Minister, but I hope that in the distant future, by the verdict of posterity, it will be found to be a triumph for him.

"It is absurd to think we have settled the Irish question. Ireland is in a state of demoralization and chaos as great as has ever occurred in the history of any country. There are going to be terrible difficulties, but I see this prospect for us at any rate: Up to now there has never been any public opinion in the South of Ireland except hatred of this country. Whatever else happens, we are more or less out of the picture. If they must fight, they will fight each other."

Apart from the actual problem of how the boundary difficulty is to be overcome, speculation in political circles is turning today on the extraordinary hurry that seems to be considered necessary, and the question is being asked, "What has happened to cause such sudden haste?" For on the face of it the boundary questions is not pressing.

According to the articles of agreement, before it can come up the treaty must be drafted and ratified by both Parliaments and Ulster must vote herself out. Only then will her separate existence be finally determined and the need of appointing a boundary commission will arise. Yet with all this work in the future, first Michael Collins arrived in London and arranged a Sunday meeting with the British Ministers on the boundary dispute. Then the Premier was fetched from his week-end rest at Chequers for a Sabbath evening conference, and finally such an unexpected summons was dispatched to Griffith that the boat train from Holyhead to London had to be delayed for him to catch it.

It is believed here that such extraordinary evidences of haste can only mean the appearance of a political situation of the greatest delicacy. The apparent growing strength of the republican opposition to the treaty and the necessity of some counterblast by the Provisional Government is considered one of the most significant features of the general position.

Women's Opposition Significant.

The gathering of women Sinn Feiners in Dublin on Sunday, when 419 voted against the treaty, with only 63 for it, is proof of the difficulties Griffith and Collins have to face, and it is held that postponement of the meeting of Ardfheis for a fortnight on account of railroad trouble is likely to tell still further against them. They might well think that the best card they could play would be an announcement of some endorsement of their position toward Ulster gained from the British Government.

With special reference to Lloyd George's parliamentary position it is stated that the Prime Minister has been warned that the die-hards possess unexpected strength in their constituencies and that it will be inadvisable to put too severe a strain on the allegiance of a considerable number of Conservative M. P.'s who support the coalition.

Here arises the question as to what attitude Bonar Law will take. In his speech already cited he said:

"If ever the Ulster people had a right to consider that a question was settled and settled forever, it was the question of boundaries. In a letter written to me by the Prime Minister just before the last election he specified that anything dealing with Ireland which interfered not with Ulster but with the six counties was impossible."

This was taken to mean that Bonar Law last session regarded the substantial integrity of Ulster as set up by the act of 1920 as part of the fundamental compact on which the Coalition was founded, and though he advised Sir James Craig to accept under the treaty a reasonable rectification of boundaries, it is contended that he could not possibly accept with consistency any such proposition as Michael Collins has put forward.

Will Lloyd George, it is asked, be able to reach an understanding with Ulster before Parliament meets and Bonar Law is compelled to declare himself?

ART CLUB TO HEAR PROTEST ON NUDE

TOO DECOLLETE, THEY SAY

Artist's "Old Lady in Black" Took First Prize in Annual Exhibit of 1921.

The Arts Committee of the National Arts Club, 15 Gramercy Place, will act at a meeting tomorrow afternoon on protests against the hanging of George W. Bellows's painting, "Nude Girl With a Shawl," in the annual prize exhibition of paintings and sculptures at the club. Some members have complained that the work is immoral, and one formal protest in writing was made to the Board of Governors.

Mr. Bellows's work, together with eighty-one other paintings and five works of sculptors, has been adorning the gallery of the club since Jan. 1. The exhibition was to have been for January only, but was extended two weeks because of delay in preparing a February exhibit.

The painting represents a young woman seated. A black silk gown covers the lower part of the body, but above the waist she is nude except for an airy white shawl that gently caresses her shoulders and arms. The face is attractive. Her straight black hair is parted in the middle and done up into a puritanical topknot. An artist who sympathizes with Mr. Bellows's work said yesterday that there would have been no objection had Mr. Bellows painted an entire nude; that the trouble seemed to be that he had painted a decollete gown and cut it too low.

Opinions differ among members of the Arts Committee. One said he considered Mr. Bellows was looking for publicity; that the painting was a "stunt," and that the objectors were playing into his hands. Another praised the work, and referred to Bellows's "Old Lady in Black," which took first prize at the annual exhibition of 1921.

"Mr. Bellows is a member of the jury," said John Clyde Oswald, Secretary of the club, and Secretary of the Arts Committee, "and it is the custom to accept exhibits from a member of the jury without any question. Now that a protest has been raised, it has been referred to the Arts Committee, which by our general rule is supreme in all matters of art."

F. Luis Mora is Chairman and George Glenn Newell Vice Chairman of the committee. The other members, besides Mr. Bellows, are Chester Beach, George Elmer Browne, Charles K. Carpenter, Oscar Fehrer, Ben Foster, Edmund Greacen, George Harris Jr., Robert Henri, Harold Howland, Ernest L. Ipsen, Francis C. Jones, Katharine Lord, Hobart Nichols, Henry R. Rittenberg, Douglas Volk, Dan Everett Wald, Edward J. Wheeler and Mrs. Tunis G. Bergen.

THE 'BLUE BOY' HERE; WILL BE EXHIBITED

Gainsborough's famous "Blue Boy," considered by many critics to be the greatest portrait ever printed, which was purchased by the Duveen Brothers from the Duke of Westminster and later sold to Henry E. Huntington of this city, arrived on the La Savoie yesterday. The painting will be placed in storage until the fifteenth or eighteenth of this month, when it will be exhibited for three weeks at the Duveen Galleries, 730 Fifth Avenue. The exhibition will be a big art and social event. Admission will be charged, and the receipts will be presented to the Fifth Avenue Hospital.

The big picture, since its purchase, has been cleaned of innumerable coats of varnish which had clouded the rich blue that made the portrait the sensation it was when it first came from the hand of the artist. Exhibited at the National Galleries in England before leaving that country, it was admired by unprecedented crowds, that viewed it almost with reverence, the men with their hats raised as they passed.

Many precautions were taken in bringing the picture to this country. It was accompanied by two men from the Duveen Galleries in London—William Todd and Charles Hunt. The picture traveled in a room by itself and was carefully watched throughout the trip. It had previously been heavily insured, and was in triple cases. The first was waterproof. The waterproof case was enclosed in a steel box, and that again in an iron-bound case. The steamer sailed from Havre Jan. 28.

The "Blue Boy" ranks as one of the highest priced pictures ever put on the market, the Duveens having been reported to have paid £170,000, about $730,000 at the present rate of exchange for the painting. "The Cottage Door," also by Gainsborough, accompanied and shared honors with the "Blue Boy" in its carefully watched seclusion on the voyage.

ITALY HONORS WHITTLESEY.

Posthumous Decoration Is Also Conferred on Other American Soldiers.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—King Victor Emanuel of Italy has awarded the Croce di Guerra posthumously to the late Lieut. Col. Charles W. Whittlesey, commander of the "Lost Battalion," it was announced at headquarters of the First Army Corps area today.

Private George Gilboy of the 103d Infantry, Twenty-sixth Division; First Lieutenant William Bradford Turner of the 105th Infantry, Twenty-seventh Division, and Private Michael J. Perkins of the 101st Infantry, Twenty-sixth Division, were similarly honored. The decorations will be given to the nearest relatives of the men by Major Gen. Edwards at ceremonies to be held here in the near future.

OPENING FOR ENERGETIC SALES EXECUTIVE

Schenk & Schlichte of Newark, N. J., manufacturers of paper boxes, is reorganizing its sales staff and has an opening at this time for a capable man who has had plenty of experience in actually selling merchandise and in the organization of sales work. He must be prepared to both do selling himself and direct the selling effort of others. He must not be too old to adapt himself quickly to new conditions and ideas; nor too young to have sound judgment and resourcefulness.

The pay will be modest to begin with but will be increased automatically, in accordance with his productive ability. This means that he will have to earn what he gets by hard, intelligent work, and only such a man is wanted who can earn an increased pay each year. A man who has not trained himself to work a full day and to get value out of every hour of his work won't satisfy the requirements.

Satisfactory references from present or recent employers will be essential. Make application only by letter, giving full data, and address to

To Those Who Would Select a Music Teacher

There are over ten thousand music teachers in New York; and there are many of them who have no more right to follow the profession than any plumber, carpenter or bricklayer.

How can the unsuspecting, innocent parents of talented children, and the gifted, ingenious young students recognize the teacher of worth, and shun the charlatan, the faker, the uneducated, the stupid?

In an attempt to correct the evil, to block the path of the charlatan music teacher, but more particularly to assist the public in finding thoroughly reliable instructors, there has been organized

THE EVENING MAIL'S LIST OF APPROVED AND INDORSED MUSIC TEACHERS

No teacher can get in the list unless he proves his ability, education and experience.

Every teacher in the list bears the indorsement of The Evening Mail and its musical experts.

Not every good teacher is in the list as yet—but not one poor teacher can buy his way into it at any price. Advertising reputation does not count—comparatively unknown pedagogues with genuine worth are given an equal place with famous instructors.

But the easiest way is to refer to The Evening Mail's list, which has already been investigated by those who know.

Any teacher may fill out our questionnaire and have his records on file without his entering the list.

Any reader may ask for confidential advice on any teacher not in the list, and this information will be given free of charge if we have already investigated the individual.

It is easier to find your teacher in The Evening Mail's list than to go haphazardly through the ten thousand!

EPIDEMIC REPORTS SHOW SHARP DROP

MANY FINES ARE IMPOSED

Smokers and Spitters and Insanitary Restaurateurs and Soda Fountain Men Assessed.

Reports of influenza and pneumonia cases yesterday showed a sharp decline, attributed principally to the fact that reports sent by physicians through the mail on Saturday and Sunday have been delayed. Only 571 cases of influenza and 131 cases of pneumonia were reported, about half the daily average for several days preceding.

"From the reports of the last two or three days," Dr. Copeland said, "the evidence is that the peak of the disease is passed in Manhattan and that Brooklyn is now having more of it. The death rate continues very low and the advices from physicians are that the disease is quite mild."

The detailed report of the Health Department follows:

Borough.	Cases. Influ.	Cases. Pneu.	Deaths. Influ.	Deaths. Pneu.
Manhattan	300	77	2	26
Bronx	119	16	3	10
Brooklyn	133	35	8	14
Queens	6	2	..	3
Richmond	6	1	..	..
Total today	571	131	13	53
Total yesterday	1,198	214	14	63

A crusade against violators of the sanitary code by Health Department inspectors and policemen attached to the department filled many of the magistrate's courts with defendants accused of spitting on the sidewalk and other offenses. Thirty-nine men were convicted of smoking in the Grand Central Station and fined $3 each by Magistrate William A. Sweetser in Yorkville Court. Fines of the same size were imposed on ten persons charged with spitting in the Grand Central Station. Seven restaurant keepers were fined $3 each on the charge of leavink food uncovered in an insanitary manner.

Fines of from $2 to $5 each were imposed by Magistrate Renaud in the Essex Market Court on thirty-two proprietors of soda fountains accused of violating the sanitary laws by failing to wash glasses with hot water.

"If any of you are found guilty of this offense again in this court you will receive jail sentences," said the Magistrate.

Fifty-three men accused of spitting in public places were fined $1 each by Magistrate Douras in Morrisania Court and twenty-three by Magistrate Simms in West Farms Court.

Magistrate McQuade imposed small fines on 175 defendants accused of spitting on the sidewalk, smoking in forbidden places, maintaining uncovered ash cans and otherwise violating sanitary ordinances.

An outbreak of influenza was reported at Sing Sing, where twenty-six patients have been isolated to check the spread of the disease.

Justice Lewis L. Fawcett, in the criminal term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, suggested to the spectators in a crowded courtroom that they heed Health Commissioner Copeland's advice to avoid crowds and seek the fresh air as an influenza preventive.

"I notice that the courtroom this morning is unusually crowded," Justice Fawcett said, speaking from the bench. "The air is consequently very heavy. I have heard a number of persons sneeze and cough. Dr. Copeland, the Health Commissioner, advises people to avoid crowds. I have a cold, and I suggest that, for your own good, you all move out to the fresh air. It will do you more good than staying here."

DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 6.—Friends here of Senator Kenyon, who informed Governor N. E. Kendall Saturday that he would not resign his Senate seat to become Circuit Judge until the constitutional question raised had been disposed of, believe the issue has been settled by a ruling of Attorney General Daugherty, who is reported to have held that the constitutional issue raised does not apply in the case of Senator Kenyon.

The constitutional question referred to that section forbidding any member of Congress from being named to an office in which the salary has been increased during his term in Congress. Attorney General Daugherty is reported to have ruled that the salary increase was voted to Circuit Judges during Senator Kenyon's last term, not during his present term, and hence he did not come under the restriction.

Governor Kendall has heard nothing further from Senator Kenyon. He said there were no developments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Attorney General Daugherty has given no formal ruling in connection with the constitutionality of the appointment of Senator Kenyon as Circuit Judge of the Eighth Federal District, it is said at the Department of Justice. It was explained that in a case of this sort he would make a ruling only on the request of President Harding.

However, officials explained that in the opinion of legal experts of the department the appointment of Senator Kenyon at the prevailing salary attached to the office of Circuit Judge was constitutional because the Senator voted for the increase on Feb. 24, 1919, while his appointment as Judge was made during a subsequent term.

FAVOR WESTCHESTER BILL.

Both Parties Behind Measure Involving Change of Government.

Democrats as well as Republicans of Westchester County favor the bill introduced in the Legislature to add twenty-five citizens to the commission to recommend a new form of government in Westchester County. The original commission comprised seven members, including Mayor Edwin W. Fiske of Mount Vernon and Daniel P. Hays of Pleasantville. The new commission will be made up of representatives of both parties, including women. It will consider among other things a scheme to transform the county into a city. Before taking action on a city form of government the commission will submit the matter to a referendum.

Another bill will be introduced this week, providing for a chain of parks to extend from Croton-on-the-Hudson to Rye Beach on the Sound, with four public bathing beaches. Under the plan the State would turn over the Mohansic Reservation at Yorktown, with several lakes, to Westchester County for $1, and the county would lay out botanical gardens and eventually establish a big zoo. The bill has the endorsement of women's clubs and civic organizations.

"Bat," arrested for disorderly conduct after a fight in a flat which he had entered in response to calls for help, was discharged. Then it was discovered that soe one had picked the lawyer's pocket right in the Police Court.

COLUMBIA'S NEEDS PUT AT $16,000,000

Anonymous Donor of Annual Gift Now Dead—School Still Undercapitalized, President Declares.

The immediate needs of Columbia University are placed at $15,000,000 by President Nicholas Murray Butler in a report on the Columbia Alumni Fund. This sum would be added to the capital of the university and would include $6,000,000 for new buildings.

Willard V. King, President of the Columbia Trust Company, proposed the alumni fund twenty-five years ago. President Butler said that for many years it was the custom of an anonymous graduate, now dead, each year to write out a check for $30,000. This sum was devoted to general university purposes and was called the "oil can," because it helped make the administrative machine run more easily.

"A few years ago I pointed out that Columbia University was undercapitalized to the extent of some $30,000,000," said President Butler. "Since that statement was made, about one-half of that sum has been provided in new capital by gift and by bequest. We are therefore still in need of some $15,000,000 for addition to our capital funds.

"Of this amount we need not less than $6,000,000 to be expended in the immediate future upon additions to the university buildings made necessary by the growth of our work. What these buildings are has been indicated in my annual reports.

The report showed total receipts of $57,059.99, of which $3,820 was given in 1919, $18,385.04 in 1920 and $34,874.95 in the first six months of 1921.

SAY AUSTRIAN JEWELS HAVE GONE TO CHARLES

Children of ex-Emperor Said to Have Taken Most of Them to Recoup Family Fortunes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Swiss papers state on what is termed the best authority that the children of ex-Emperor Charles, who rejoined their parents last week, took with them the greater part of the crown jewels of Austria, including the famous "Florentine diamond." The value of the jewels reported taken to the ex-Emperor is said to be about 25,000,000 Swiss francs. The Florentine diamond, which was once the property of Charles de Bourgogne, is claimed by Italy.

It is rumored that the recent visit of the ex-Empress to Switzerland, which created such a flurry in European diplomatic circles, was for the arrangement of this coup to rehabilitate the family fortune. It is known that at the time of her visit the ex-Empress was so short of funds that she was barely able to pay for the train across France to the Spanish border.

Doing business at a profit and operating at capacity

IF you could run your business at its full capacity, and sell your goods at a profit, would you care how much your printing cost?

The cost of printing a catalog or any other kind of sales message depends on the extent to which it helps you sell goods. The printing that fails to help your business is dear at a penny. The printing to which many orders for your goods can be traced is never an expense.

Ask yourself this question: "What difference does it make how much my printed messages cost, if they enable me to do business at a profit and operate at capacity?"

The answer will give you a light on the subject of direct-by-mail advertising and will put you in the right frame of mind to talk business with a good printer.

Good printers know that better paper means better printing and that better printing means better selling.

ABILITY to take the initiative and "carry thru" from the idea to delivery of the printed masterpiece—is what big business expects of printers nowadays.

Our clients not only EXPECT that kind of service—they DEMAND it. For on that basis we secured their business and insisted to keep it.

THE PLAY

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

The Lady and the Thief.

Father Spalding	Frank Sheridan
Ewing Fowler	Clifford Dempsey
Walter Hosmer	John Cromwell
Tom Fowler	Frederick Bickel
Jim Thorne	William Courtenay
Bill Dobbs	Morgan Wallace
Gibson	Frank Sylvester
Donovan	John Milton
Grigg	Herbert Ratbke
Joan Fowler	Blanche Yurka
Kit Grey	Marguerite Maxwell

An imponderable amount was added to the net weight of the season last night by the first New York performance of a new piece called "The Law Breaker." This is a fustian crook melodrama put together with the minimum of credibility by the same Jules Eckert Goodman who wrote "The Man Who Came Back" and who also dramatized "Treasure Island." It has been liberally cast by William A. Brady and allowed into the Booth Theatre by Winthrop Ames.

It is all about a noble and rather heroic thief named Jim Thorne. He just has to return the sixty thousand he stole from the bank because of the beautiful faith in him which is cherished in the bosom of the banker's daughter. How he struggles to escape from the enervating influence of her simple trust, how that trust often undergoes a severe strain (as when her $75,000 pearl necklace is filched from her in the dark) and how at last he goes back purified to the little sweetheart that is waiting for him—you will find in all in the new dime-novelized exercises at the Booth.

The part of the crook is in the experienced hands of William Courtenay, who plays it with precisely the same manner and method that have sustained him in similar roles these many years. Which fact is reported as a hearty reassurance to those who admire Mr. Courtenay as an actor and a gentle warning to those who do not.

The sustaining cast has a good deal of ability strewn about in it. Blanche Yurka plays the banker's daughter in a slightly Ibsenic manner, which may be applauded even by those who feel that in this instance it is using heavy artillery to swat a fly. Then capital performances of genuine promise are thrown in for good measure by two young people, Frederick Bickel and Marguerite Maxwell. Mr. Brady has done quite well enough by the play, and if the passing playgoer spurns "The Law Breaker" its author can hardly blame him.

'BLUSHING BRIDE' PLEASES.

THE BLUSHING BRIDE, a musical comedy in two acts, based on a play by Edward Clark; book and lyrics by Cyrus Wood, music by Sigmund Romberg. At the Astor Theatre.

Paul Kominski	Robert O'Connor
Flower Girl	Violette Strathmore
Cigarette Girl	Kitty Flynn
Francois	Harold Gwynne
Schwartz	David Belbridge
Cassava	George Craig
Christopher Pottinger	Tom Lewis
Alfred	Clarence Nordstrom
Rose	Edythe Baker
Justine	Beatrice Swanson
Lorraine	Marcella Swanson
Coley Collins	Cecil Lean
Lulu Love	Cleo Mayfield
Judge Redwood	Harry Corson Clarke
Doris Mayne	Jane Carroll
Mrs. Pottinger	Gertrude Mudge
Ma-Belle, Miss Stoneburne, William Holbrooke.

Whatever magic there was in the name of "The Blushing Bride," which opened at the Astor Theatre last night with Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield, it was sufficient to bring together in one box Police Commissioner Richard Enright, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen. Not even the bubbles in the wine served in a cabaret scene or the agitation of a dancer in a costume supposed to be indigenous to the South Seas escaped the eagle eye of the Commissioner. He laughed at the bubbles and maintained a dignified calm in face of the costume.

"The Blushing Bride" proved to be a tuneful thing, the music for which was written by Sigmund Romberg, who had a part in arranging the music of "Blossom Time." Between the songs were various incidents which suggested the usual difficulties of a plump millionaire in the person of Tom Lewis, who makes the mistake of taking a young thing out to dinner, only to have the partner of twenty-five years turn up and complicate matters.

That proved the opportunity for two cabaret scenes, both of which proved amusing to the audience. One was arranged by Cecil Lean and roused appreciation in its contrast of the way it used to be possible to dine and sup with courteous service and modest prices against the present Broadway era of headwaiters and hat-check girls. They even stole the fur off Tom Lewis's coat. There was something about the skit which made even Commissioner Enright laugh almost as hard as when the old Judge in the show said he was going to telephone Mayor Hylan that there was a thief in New York.

There are several songs in "The Blushing Bride" which made the audience ask for more. "Springtime" is one, sung by Cecil Lean, Cleo Mayfield, Robert O'Connor and Jane Carroll. "Love's Highway" and "A Regular Girl" are others which will be heard at other places than the Astor. And if any one wants to know how to skate without skates they have only to watch The Glorias, who make ice seem superfluous.

Robert O'Connor is so used to playing French restaurant keepers that he lets his hair grow that way now. Others who helped make "The Blushing Bride" entertaining for almost all of an evening were Beatrice Swanson, Gertrude Mudge, who carried a loaf of bread off the stage under the impression that it was an umbrella in a way that made Al Smith laugh; Harold Gwynne and Beatrice and Marcella Swanson, who danced gracefully.

REVIVES IBSEN'S "GHOSTS."

Mrs. Alving	Mary Shaw
Oswald, her son	Everett Butterfield
Pastor Manders	Edward Poland
Jacob Engstrand	Arthur Shaw
Regina Engstrand	Marion Allen

After a pair of special matinees, given presumably to test the current appetite for Ibsen in these parts, Mary Shaw took formal possession of the Punch and Judy Theatre last night with the avowed purpose of offering an Ibsen cycle. She begins with "Ghosts," which has had numerous productions here since it first took the world by storm, and in the various revivals of which Miss Shaw has generally been found in the role of Mrs. Alving.

It is a fairly competent and reasonably well acted presentation of the play at the Punch and Judy—Miss Shaw's characterization has deepened with constant performance, and, if it has also taken on certain mannerisms with the passing of time, these are perhaps excusable. There is another member of the family present in Arthur Shaw, giving an excellent performance as Jacob Engstrand, and especially distressed that it is hard to think back to the nonchalant property man of "The Yellow Jacket."

Everett Butterfield is a complete Oswald, rising splendidly to his scenes of passion and madness, but tried the self-possessed during the first act, considering the terrible secret that Oswald carried. There is also an interesting newcomer in Marion Allen, who extracts full value from the role of the maid.

The general stage direction and production leave a little something to be desired—even as great a craftsman as Ibsen had his gruffiest, and there are ways of smoothing them that the expert stage director should know.

Marie Lohr to Change to "Fedora."

Marie Lohr, the English actress now appearing at the Hudson Theatre in "The Voice From the Minaret," will change to "Fedora." on Friday night. Miss Lohr has brought a repertoire of four plays to this country.

FRANK FAY AT THE PARK.

"Fables" Provides Breezy Music, Foolery and Melodrama.

FRANK FAY'S FABLES, a revue in two acts, book by Frank Fay; music by Clarence Gaskill. At the Park Theatre. Principals: Bernard Granville, Fania Marinoff, Herbert Corthell, Eddie Carr, Olga Steck, Louis Casavant, Helen Groodey, Georgiana Hewitt, "Olivette," Robert Cummings, The Fifer Trio, Donald Lee Roberts and Frank Fay.

A good measure of breezy music, a sprinkling of amusing foolery and a dash of melodrama were some of the ingredients of a musical potpourri brought on last evening at the Park Theatre—whose name the tickets would lead us to believe has been changed to the Park Music Hall. The show is called "Frank Fay's Fables," after the author, stars, producer and chief fun-maker.

Mr. Fay, who appears in the audience and on the stage as a master of ceremonies, is aided by Bernard Granville, Herbert Corthell, Eddie Carr, Fania Marinoff and others and a lively chorus. The Fay-Granville-Corthell-Carr quartet move in and out of a series of unrelated numbers, some of them attractively staged and smartly costumed. The nigh point of hilarity is reached in a "musical act" by the Three Musical McGuckins (Granville, Corthell and Fay), with a grand finale played by the trio on radiators.

Helen Groody, Olga Steck and Mr. Granville were prominent in the musical numbers. Clarence Gaskill, who wrote the music, has provided one or two winsome melodies and some sprightly ensembles. The graceful Miss Groody, Mr. Granville and a nimble-toed young woman known as "Olivette" do some clever dancing. Fania Marinoff appeared with Mr. Fay and Mr. Granville in an "emotional sketch" with a Dangerous Dan McGrew setting.

There should be a special word for the attractive sets provided for some of the numbers and for the costuming, at times rather showy, but generally fetching, particularly in a wedding march number near the end.

THEATRE MERGER IN CANADA

MONTREAL, Quebec, Feb. 6.—The biggest theatrical merger in the history of the Dominion is about to be completed between the Allen Theatres, Ltd., and the Famous Players-Canadian Corporation. Under the merger the entire theatrical interests of the Allens in Canada will pass into the hands of the Famous Players-Canadian Corporation. The amount involved is between four and five million dollars.

This merger will give the Famous Players complete control of the motion picture industry in the Dominion and add to their list of theatres upward of ninety houses owned or controlled or booked by the Allens at the present time.

The report of the merger was officially confirmed this morning by George Rotsky, managing director for the Allens in Montreal. He stated that the deal had been finally approved by the directors of the Allen theatres, Ltd., and of the Famous Players-Canadian Corporation, Ltd., and that it only awaited the endorsement of the shareholders of both companies to be completed.

COHAN RESUMES PRODUCING

George M. Cohan's return as a producer will be signalized by the immediate production of a comedy and a musical show, both written by Mr. Cohan. The first of these, "Madeleine of the Movies," will bring the producer's daughter, Georgette Cohan, back to the stage in its leading role. This play will be presented at the Gaiety Theatre during the week of March 6, following a week in Atlantic City.

The Cohan musical play will be entitled "Little Nellie Kelly," and book, lyrics and music are all by Mr. Cohan. It will be placed in rehearsal next month, and will be seen in Boston over the Summer, with New York to follow.

PRINCETON PLANNING TO HONOR WILSON

JERSEY NEARING ITS GOAL

Leads All the Eastern States in Progress Made In Contributing Toward Fund.

New Jersey is contributing faster than any of the other Eastern States, in proportion to population, to the Wilson Foundation, it was announced yesterday. Most of the State's quota of $50,000 has been raised.

Princeton contributed $1,200, exceeding its quota.

Princeton University and the townspeople in Princeton are to hold a mass meeting on the evening of Feb. 20, as a tribute to former President Wilson, of the class of 1879, who, from 1902 to 1910, was head of that university. Hamilton Holt, executive director of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, said the meeting was being arranged by Dean Henry B. Fine, Chairman of the Foundation Committee for the University, and Prof. Edward L. Capps, Chairman for the Town of Princeton.

Among the speakers are to be Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of this city and Dr. Henry van Dyke of Princeton, who is expected to be back from Europe in time.

In connection with the meeting, Professor Capps said: "It seems to me this meeting is charged with a special significance in a sadly misinformed world. Princeton has always been strong for Woodrow Wilson and is so still. There has been a splendid response here in Princeton to the appeal of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation."

LAUDS ARMY ECONOMY HERE

Weeks Praises General Hutcheson for Depot Record.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Congratulations were extended today by Secretary Weeks to Brig. Gen. Grote Hutcheson, in charge of the New York General Intermediate depot, for the "very satisfactory" showing made by that depot in economy from March 1 to Dec. 31.

General Hutcheson's report showed that the operating charges had been reduced by $375,270 in that period. A reduction of civilian personnel from 7,967 in January to 2,306 in December was noted.

GIRL DYED CAT BLUE TO MATCH HER GOWN

Court Suspends Sentence on Miss Owen, Who Promises to Visit Her Father in Florida.

Magistrate Peter A. Hatting said some unkind things to Margaret Owen yesterday after listening to the charge of the Humane Society that she had injured her cat by dyeing it blue. "Otto," the cat, watched the proceedings from beneath the overcoat of a Humane Society policeman.

When the case came up a week ago in the West Side Court Magistrate Hatting ordered the charge investigated by a probationary officer and asked all concerned to return yesterday to hear the verdict. Anna Doyle, the probationary investigator, said:

"Miss Owen has three rooms in a nice, respectable house at 75 West Fiftieth Street, and she is well thought of by the neighbors. Some of them didn't even know she owned a cat. She seems to have a tender regard for animals, and said she surely would not have dyed the cat if she had known it would hurt. When she saw that 'Otto' had lost some of his former 'pep' she first realized that the blue dye was apparently harmful. It was not long, she said, before his vivaciousness returned.

"Miss Owen told me that the draperies in her room and on her windows are all made of blue material. And you can see for yourself, Judge, that she is dressed entirely in blue, from her hat down to her stockings. She is partial to that color and wanted the cat to be included in the general color scheme."

The Magistrate was pondering when Miss Owen's counsel interposed the statement that only the day before she almost lost her life by attempting to catch a canary flying near her window.

"Birds fly; Miss Owen can't," the Magistrate responded. "I'm afraid what she needs more than anything else is some one to guard her."

He asked Miss Owen where her father was and she replied that he was in Florida on vacation. "Will you rejoin your father in Florida if I suspend sentence in this case?" asked the Magistrate.

"I will go to Florida and stay there for a while, but I won't promise to stay there for life," she answered.

"But you will stay until you get another guardian to look after you, won't you?" Magistrate Hatting inquired, and the young woman smiled "yes."

The Magistrate reprimanded Miss Owen for flippancy and assured her that the charge was a serious one and warned her to change her demeanor.

"I am afraid you are a spoiled child," he said in conclusion. "And please don't get into the prima donna class. You did a very cruel thing, but I suppose you did not intend to do it, so I shall suspend sentence."

He asked the Humane Society to keep the cat until the dye had worn off.

BRANDEGEE ATTACKS FARMER TRUST BILL

Says Sherman Law Violation by Tiller Should Be as Criminal as by Manufacturer.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — Proposed provisions of co-operative marketing bills, now before the Senate, exempting farmer organizations from operation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, were attacked in the Senate today by Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticutt, who asserted that Congress was going far astray when it said in legislation that an act by a farmer is not a crime, but becomes crime when done by a manufacturer, and declared that the country need not expect relief from high prices through passage of the bill.

"If the farmers who are its beneficiaries choose to inflict high prices," he added that he believed there was "grave danger of a corner in the food and clothing supplies of the country" if the proposed exemptions are enacted into law.

"I do not know," he continued, "whether the Sherman law should be maintained, but I do know that no amount of apologizing, explaining or attempts to justify, can satisfy me that we should not have laws which are uniform in their operation. We either ought to keep the Sherman law or discard it. We cannot make a thing fish for one citizen and fowl for another."

Melbourne Bars St. Patrick's Parade

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 6.—There will be no St. Patrick's Day procession in Melbourne. The City Council at its meeting today decided not to issue a permit for the parade.

MUSIC

Myra Hess's Piano Recital.

Myra Hess, the English pianist who appeared for the first time here a fortnight ago, gave another recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. Her program was not such as to bring forward so conspicuously the special qualities of her playing that were found so charming on that occasion. The most important number was Chopin's sonata in B flat minor, which she played in a thoroughly musical way, with a tone that never lost its beauty in the most powerful passages, with clarity in the exposition of the outlines of the composition and without sentimentalising the funeral march. It was hardly a highly eloquent performance, neither rising to the heights nor plumbing the depths of the composition. She played Mozart's sonata in G in a wholly delightful manner, with a fine appreciation of the essential style, with a delicate firmness of rhythm and elegance of phrasing.

Her other numbers included Brahms's setting for two hands of his waltzes, originally written for four, and pieces by H. W. O'Donnell, a name unfamiliar on this side of the Atlantic, Arnold Dox and Ravel.

RUSSIAN OPERA POSTPONED.

Miss Garden Is Forced to Delay 'The Love for Three Oranges.'

Long-laid plans for producing here the Russian Prokofieff's "The Love for the Three Oranges" were dashed, temporarily of least, at the Manhattan last evening by the illness of Jose Mojica, who was to sing a leading tenor role. Miss Garden managed at short notice to reassemble the singers heard in "La Traviata" in the opening week. About 200 of the Russian composer's compatriots asked and got their money back, while a social reception to Mr. Prokofieff himself was also postponed to a later date.

In "Traviata" the young Spanish singer, Graziella Pareto, again gave her graceful and appealing impersonation of Verdi's Violetta, with a personal charm of youth recalling rather the original of the character in Dumas's Camille. "Traviata" had its problems once, but they are not those of a Prokofieff's futurist music, nor is the lyric world at this date appalled at the Dumas heroine's past. The repetition was frankly enjoyed, a result to which Mr. Schipa and Mr. Schwartz contributed liberally, as before, while Mr. Ferrari conducted.

GALLI-CURCI AS ROSINA.

Ruffo Is Unable to Appear in "The Barber" and De Luca Sings Part.

Mme. Galli-Curci sang to a brilliant assembly of the Metropolitan's Monday subscription last evening, appearing as Rosina in "The Barber," which she had not previously sung in that house. Mr. Ruffo, announced in the title rôle of Rossini's comedy, was unable to appear. Mr. de Luca, serving admirably instead, while Mr. Chamlee gave pleasure as the lively Almaviva and Mr. Mardones as the pompously amusing Fasilio. A largely familiar ensemble assisted under Mr. Papi's direction.

The Italian prima donna was again in her best voice, as she had been in "La Traviata" last week, following her return from the West. For Rosina's singing lesson scene she chose Thomas's polonaise from "Mignon," followed by the English Sir Henry R. Bishop's air to words by the American John Howard Payne—"Home, Sweet Home." The old familiar song was instantly redemanded to the singer's own piano accompaniment amid a roar of applause from the entire house.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Society of the Friends of Music has announced Gustav Mahler's "Das Lied von der Erde," with Mrs. Clarice Cahier, Orville Harrold and an orchestra under Arthur Bodansky, at a special concert on Friday afternoon, Feb. 17, at the Town Hall.

Rosa Raisa, the Russian soprano, of the Chicago Opera Company, will sing an air from Verdi's "Oselio" on Feb. 17 at the eighth and last of the season's Friday morning musicales in the ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore, appearing in a joint program with Giacomo Bindini.

Mary Garden has invited her hosts at a recent Lotus Club dinner to occupy boxes at the Manhattan tonight at her first performance of "Louise." By coincidence, Charpentier's opera will also be sung at the Metropolitan the next night by Geraldine Farrar.

Arbuckle's Third Trial March 13.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—The court today set March 13 as the date for starting the third trial of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle, motion picture star, on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, motion picture actress. Both previous trials ended in disagreements.

TO MAKE FIGHT FILMS LIABLE TO DESTRUCTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—An amendment to the law, governing the exhibition of prize-fight films, was proposed today by Representative Hoch of Kansas. Under it any film of this character, sent through the mails or found in interstate commerce, could be seized and destroyed. The amendment reads:

"That at any time after the commencement of proceedings to enforce the provisions of this act, a restraining order may be issued, enjoining the public exhibition of any films or other pictorial representation therein, alleged to have been deposited in the United States mails or transported in interstate commerce in violation of this act; and where it shall have been established in such proceedings that any film or other pictorial representation has been deposited in the United States mails or has been transported in interstate commerce in violation of this act, no right of property in such film or other pictorial representation shall exist, and if such film or other pictorial representation is within the jurisdiction of the court, the same shall be seized, confiscated and destroyed upon the order of the court."

The International Reform Bureau is backing the amendment. Dr. Wilbur S. Crafts, director of the bureau, said today that the continued violation of the law by subterfuge was a national scandal.

CUSTOMS BUREAU INQUIRY.

Hearing Conducted Here Concerns Conflict of Authority.

An investigation of the Comparative Value Reports Bureau of the customs service here was conducted yesterday at the Custom House behind closed doors. The inquiry was ordered by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Dover. It is charged that this board, originally created to act in an advisory capacity to the General Appraiser, has superimposed itself not only upon the General Appraiser but the Collector as well.

Details of the hearing were not given out. The committee conducting the investigation is composed of William H. Williams, Collector George W. Aldrich, Appraiser Frederick J. H. Kracke, George F. Land, special assistant to the Attorney General, and Nathaniel Van Doren.

98th Victim of Theatre Collapse.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Miss Caroline Upshaw of Atlanta, Ga., niece of Representative Upshaw of Georgia, died early today as a result of injuries received in the Knickerbocker Theatre disaster. Her death brought the number of dead from the disaster up to 98.

On Wednesday night, February 1, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Putnam, who have just returned to New York from Boston, where Mr. Putnam had been engaged for several months in important work on the Boston American, told me they selected the Hotel Belleclaire as their stopping-place, preparatory to going to housekeeping, because they believed it fully met their wishes regarding home attractions and home service.

During our visit together Mrs. Putnam said many nice things about the Belleclaire which I knew would please Mr. Guzzardi, the proprietor, very much. She has given me permission to repeat what she said, and to even use her picture, because she is very glad to endorse the Belleclaire in every way.

"This is the first hotel that I have ever been in that I haven't wished to get away from as quickly as possible. I don't mean this as a reflection on any of the good hotels I have stopped at in all sections of the country—from San Francisco to Maine and all along the Eastern seaboard—but I do want to say that the Belleclaire makes me so comfortable and is so much like home to me that I really feel I am in my own home. Both Mr. Putnam and I are so well satisfied with the Belleclaire that we have given up the idea of going into an apartment until next Fall, anyway, and perhaps not then.

"Not for an instant did we feel a bit strange after our arrival at the Belleclaire. Mr. Heath, the manager, personally took charge of us and located us in a charmingly furnished two-room suite. I admit to liking nice appointments. Our first impressions were most favorable. They have continued with us ever since.

"Our first experience in the dining room emphasized the good impressions we had formed. While the dining room is very much larger than any dining room in a private home, it was, nevertheless, as quiet and orderly as if we were dining in our own home and entertaining personal friends. We felt we were in an environment of refinement and that we were mingling with very nice people.

"I think every woman living at a hotel likes to indulge in the luxury of having breakfast served in her room. I know I do, and right here I want to say that I have never had prompter or better service in my life, nor have I ever been served with such UNFAILINGLY EXCELLENT COFFEE. The coffee comes to my room in a Thermos pot, and stays hot. And I get real cream, too. My husband has his breakfast served in the dining room. He eats about the same things every morning and tells me he doesn't tire of them in the Belleclaire because they are served as nicely as I would serve them if we were in our own home, and the dishes are prepared as invitingly as he says I can prepare them—which I consider a nice compliment to me as well as to the Belleclaire, because I think I know how to cook, too.

"My husband and I have been figuring up the cost of living at the Belleclaire, and we find we can live here more economically than we can in our own home. All in all, we are very happy and contented, and, so far as I can tell, everybody else in the hotel feels the same way."

On behalf of Mr. Walter Guzzardi, the proprietor of the Belleclaire, and his associates—and on behalf of the guests of the hotel—Mrs. Putnam, I thank you for the compliment you have paid this very home-like, sociable, friendly hotel, which specializes in service and courtesy.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM C. FREEMAN.

VOGUE'S Forecast of Spring Fashions

Feb. 15th Issue is Now on Sale

Lanvin

The short coat with the long revers, the low waistline, and Lanvin's plaited leather belt appear to advantage in green broadcloth plaided in red and white. With this is worn a white overblouse and a little double cape of plain green cloth.

Lelong

Renée

Crêpe de Chine with Renée's scarcely perceptible all-over embroidery in crystal beads, makes an evening gown with the favored low waistline and the ankle-length skirt that touches the floor. Vogue shows other evening frocks no less lovely.

Suits

There is to be variety in the all-important spring suit. As illustrated above, the coat with long revers, straight, hip length, belted low, and slightly bloused, has a more general appeal. The circular jacket, barely hip length, beltless, and worn with a narrow, straight skirt will be a noteworthy model for youth. The real tailor-made, straight or with a slightly nipped-in waistline, has returned to favor, aided by a waistcoat. In the Forecast Number—now on sale—Vogue shows charming examples of each of these styles. Your suit is undoubtedly among them.

Tailored skirts for the street are seven or eight inches from the ground. The uneven hemline is not used for the street. Covert cloth is a new note. Brown and beige are good in addition to navy blue and black. Tweed is better than ever.

Street Dresses—as illustrated above

The cape-completed dress of kasha, tweed, or crêpe de Chine, shows a matching cape, sometimes lined with contrasting material. The coat-dress with a long, tight sleeve has a straight silhouette, though it may be slightly draped, or circular, or it may add godets or panels. Such dresses are of suit length. The best of them are sketched in the Forecast Number of Vogue.

For the Afternoon

The afternoon dress of crêpe de Chine, faille, crêpe Roman taffeta or other soft material, is straight in line, and longer than the tailleur. Later in the season, there will be a feeling for foulards and other gaily printed silks. The success of many of your afternoons depends on your seeing all these things in the Forecast Number of Vogue before you see your dressmaker.

In the Evening

The formal evening dress is very long and straight with a low waistline, generally draped, an uneven hemline, and no sleeves. Dance frocks have shorter, fuller skirts. Rose, yellow, tangerine, and mauve are favored colors. Brocade sandals or slippers with square buckles, velvet or silver slippers with contrasting heels, blond rose or mauve rose stockings are de rigueur. For a more detailed survey—with sketches from Paris and New York—see Vogue.

The Summer Cottons

Embroidered voile, crêpes in various weaves, sponge both plain and patterned, linen, organdie in striped and changeable effects—all these will be good. Knitted dresses, which no longer sag, will also be worn for sport. White wool stockings promise well for the country. All skirts for formal wear are shorter than those for town.

The Wise Woman

not only knows the mode; she knows it in advance. Through the Forecast of Spring Fashions Number, she gets all her fashion information in time to insure herself against costly buying mistakes—in time to take advantage of full stocks at her department store—in time to profit by her dressmaker's least busy season.

ZBYSZKO IS STILL KING OF GRAPPLERS

LEWIS DEFEATS GARDINI

Kentuckian Gains First Fall in 40:45 and Second in 11:00 — 12,000 Enthusiasts Attend Carnival.

Stanislaus Zbyszko, veteran Polish wrestler, still is the world's heavyweight catch-as-catch-can champion. This remarkable old man of sport, engaging in his one thousandth match on the mat, defeated Earl Caddock of Iowa, former champion, last night in Madison Square Garden two falls out of thre. Zbyszko scored two rolling falls, the first after the men had been grappling for 25 minutes, and the second in 19 minutes 30 seconds. In between these falls Caddock pinned the shoulders of the champion to the mat in 10 minutes 30 seconds with an arm lock and chancery.

The victory came in less than one hour of wrestling in an exciting match which was witnessed by a crowd of about 12,000 wrestling enthusiasts. Exactly fifty-five minutes were consumed in action during the bout. The crowd, intensely partisan, did not agree with the decisions of Referee Johnny Fleeson on the falls awarded to Zybszko, and voiced its disapproval of the recognition which the referee was compelled, under the State Athletic Commission's rules, to grant. In the case of both falls, Caddock's shoulders were declared by Referee Fleeson to have touched the mat for the slightest fraction of time while the Iowan was on the defensive. With the first Zybszko fall, the crowd sent up a thunderous roar of disapproval. When Zybszko's shoulder was slapped for the Pole's second and decisive fall, the crowd yelled again and then ambled out of the arena animatedly discussing the rules which have worked a change in local wrestling.

Caddock Gets Ovation.

Caddock was the first to appear on the battle platform. The Iowan, looking comparatively slim in his silken bathrobe, clambered up the ring steps soon after 10 o'clock, amid a welcoming roar from the crowd. Zbyszko appeared soon afterward garbed in a mustard-colored robe. The reception which greeted the champion was as a whisper compared to the roar of welcome to Caddock. It was announced that Zbyszko weighed 233 and Caddock 190 pounds.

The men went to the mat for the first time three minutes after the bell sent them on their way. Caddock, feinting for a leg grip, caused Zbyszko to flounder and the Iowan quickly leaped upon his ponderous rival. Before Caddock secured a solid grip, however, Zbyszko bounded to his feet. After another minute, the men again went to the mat, Zbyszko on top, but, as was the case in the first tumble, no positive hold was secured.

Caddock massaged his rival's features with a head hold in the next five minutes. After seven minutes of work Caddock entwined his rival in a body scissors, but the mighty Pole broke the hold and shook himself free with ease. An arm hold likewise was easily shaken off by Zbyszko.

As the grapplers passed the 30-minute mark on their journey, Zbyszko grabbed his rival about the stomach and swung him down, the Pole on top. Then began a process of wearing Caddock down which ended with the first fall for the veteran Zbyszko, a rolling fall in 25 minutes. In seeking to escape from a half-Nelson and crotch hold in which Zbyszko held him, Caddock twisted and squirmed and in wriggling defensively touched his shoulder blades to the mat. The crowd thought Caddock had wrenched himself free when the grapplers jumped to their feet, but Referee Fleeson slapped Zbyszko's broad back vigorously in the midst of an excited offensive, notifying the Pole of the achievement of a fall.

Wears Caddock Down.

Zbyszko's great strength and the weight handicap under which Caddock was laboring contributed in large measure to the Pole's triumph for the first fall. After the first twenty minutes, Zbyszko simply roughed Caddock about and squatted on the Iowan, when the pair were on the mat, gradually wearing Caddock down and lessening the Iowan's resistance to a rolling fall. For five minutes before the rolling fall was awarded by Referee Fleeson, Zbysko had his rival twisting and squirming from arm holds and locks and painful half-nelsons. At one time Caddock, on the defense, secured a toe hold, but Zbyszko quickly broke the grip and crushed Caddock in a body hold. Zbyszko shifted to the head and then applied a half-nelson and crotch hold under which Caddock rolled on the mat and succumbed to the first fall.

The grapplers had hardly warmed to their task when the second fall was proclaimed, this time to the complete satisfaction of the great crowd. Caddock was the winner of this fall, and in a manner which impressed the crowd with the wonderful ability of the Iowan. Zbyszko was roughing his opponent about the ring after an unsuccessful effort on the mat to secure an effective hold when the Iowan suddenly broke loose. Caddock quickly leaped on the attack as the pair were near a neutral corner and, clasping Zbyszko firmly about the body and legs, up-ended the Pole. Like a flash Caddock was on his rival, applying an arm lock and chancery hold which pinned Zbyszko's shoulders to the mat in 10 minutes 30 seconds.

Zbyszko was cautious when the gladiators resumed the struggle in the test for the decisive fall. For two minutes the pair tugged and mauled on their feet before hitting the mat with Zbyszko on top. Caddock resisted his rival's efforts to secure a hold, however, and after a minute they were working in upright position again. Three minutes of lively scrimmaging ended with Caddock diving in a feint for Zbyszko's legs and causing the Pole to fall, on the defense. Zbyszko broke a body scissors and clutched Caddock in a toe hold. The Iowan broke the grip and applied an arm scissors from which Zbyszko wrenched loose without delay. After a few unsuccessful moves Caddock entwined Zbyszko in a body scissors and then added the pressure of an arm hold. Zbyszko withstood the pressure for about a minute and then released himself only to fall a victim of a head scissors. The Pole broke loose from this clutch and grabbed a toe hold, but Caddock broke the hold and the pair leaped upright.

The men tugged and mauled each other while standing for a few minutes, and then suddenly they went down with Zbyszko on top, his powerful arms embracing Caddock in a crushing body hold. On the floor Zbyszko released the body hold and spreading himself on Caddock began working for a half nelson and crotch hold. Caddock resisted his rival's efforts for a time and worried the champion with his efforts to grab a wristlock or head hold. Suddenly, however, Zbyszko applied a half-nelson and then reaching over, grabbed Caddock in a crotch hold. The Iowan started to squirm away and edged almost over to Zbyszko's corner, with Referee Fleeson on hands and knees in hot pursuit. Suddenly Caddock gave a mighty wrench in an effort to free himself. In the movement the Iowan's shoulders described a half circle toward the mat and Referee Fleeson slapped Zbyszko's shoulder, giving the Pole the third and decisive fall, a rolling fall, in 19:30.

Lewis's Strength Tells.

Ed ("Strangler") Lewis, burly Kentuckian, who formerly held the heavyweight title, defeated Senator Gardini, champion of the Italian heavyweight championship, in the semi-final match scheduled for an hour, two falls in three. For fifteen minutes Gardini gave a good account of himself and resisted the efforts of the former champion. As the match progressed, however, the Italian succumbed to the greater strength of Lewis and was defeated in two straight falls. The first came in forty minutes forty-five seconds with a headlock. The second was scored in eleven minutes with a hammer lock and a body lock.

Lewis was the aggressor after the opening rush of Gardini had subsided. The Kentuckian kept Gardini almost continually on the defensive after passing the fifteen-minute mark. At the half-hour mark, Lewis had his rival in danger in the vise-like grip of the famous headlock. Gardini broke the hold, however, and soon after broke loose from a punishing bar-arm hold. Lewis increased the vigor of his assault after passing the half-hour mark and it soon became only a question of whether Gardini would survive the one-hour limit. Lewis quickly settled this problem by leaping in and punishing his rival with four successive applications of the headlock for the first fall. As soon as the grapplers locked horns again Lewis resumed the offensive and forced Gardini steadily about the ring. In the first minute Lewis flopped his rival with a body hold, while Gardini winced from the pressure of the powerful arms of his rival on his mid-section. Lewis twice tried for another fall with the headlock, and failing, tumbled Gardini with a body hold. Once on the mat Lewis applied the hammer lock and body lock until Gardini's shoulders were pinned in eleven minutes.

Pendleton Gets a Draw.

Wladek Zbyszko, younger brother of the aged Stanislaus, and Nat Pendleton, former international amateur champion, were rivals in the second contest of twenty minutes. This bout went the limit and was declared a draw. Zbyszko, more experienced in the professional game than his rival, was the aggressor throughout and appeared to have an advantage in points. Pendleton's superb defensive work saved the former amateur the humiliation of a defeat. Several times Pendleton escaped from tight places when Zbyszko had his rival clutched in punishing body holds. At one stage of the match, Zbyszko entwined his rival in the grip of a body scissors and for a time it looked as if Pendleton's shoulders would touch the mat. By a superhuman effort, however, the former amateur escaped from the hold and defended himself against a fall thereafter.

Favors Waiver Change.

Declaring that an article published in a newspaper last Sunday in regard to the waiver rule was not based on fact, Charles H. Ebbets Jr. of the Brooklyn Baseball Club said last night that it might be well for Judge Landis and other officials of the baseball leagues to take out the peculiar twist in the waiver rule law, which is neither fair to the players nor to the baseball club.

"This peculiar twist in the waiver rule law," said Mr. Ebbets, "is apparently what misled the writer of the article that appeared in a Sunday newspaper. Let me explain the point I wish to make. Both leagues sign waivers on a certain player on May 1. Instead of sending the player to the minors he is kept with his club until the end of the season. Then all the clubs in that league are asked for waivers on him. But the other league is not consulted at all because its waiver of May 1, under the present rule, remains in effect for practically a year. In other words, you don't have to secure a waiver on a regular player who has already been through the waiver process.

"It is this little twist in the waiver rule that permits players to get out of the league. The little joker should be rectified by Judge Landis and the other baseball magnates.

"Perhaps I can better explain it by the following example: It is May 15. Heads of baseball clubs are beginning to cut down the number of players. Some one asks you for a waiver on so-and-so. You are not interested. Later you need a good shortstop, catcher or other ball player. You hear that a club has let out a good ball player. The seven other clubs of that league are asked to waive on him, but you don't get a chance. You lost it on May 15.

"The rule was originally passed, I presume, to protect the player sent to the minor leagues. If a club pulls him back at the close of the minor league season waivers of the clubs in both leagues must be asked for. The present joker in the waiver rule favors the league which is not in favor of the draft."

League Meeting Tomorrow.

At or near the midnight hour tonight the advance guard of the Yankee bosses will begin the march on Washington, where the forces of Ruppert and Huston hope to pick up a stray outfielder at the Spring meeting of the American League tomorrow. Leaving from this city will be the Messrs. Ruppert, Huston and Barrow, and they will be joined in the capital by Miller Huggins. The quartet will then deploy on the scene of the American League conclave, get Frank Navin, Charley Comiskey and others into secret converse and perhaps emerge with an outfielder. In any event, the Yankee delegation is going prepared for anything and hoping for nothing, and if there is anything in earnest wishes, they will have interesting news for New York fandom some time Wednesday.

After the meeting Huggins will come to New York and spend a week or so here going over the situation and giving a finishing touch to the Spring training plans. It is probable that Huggins will find a formidable list of holdouts awaiting his attention, and some action may be expected in the matter of swinging several balky athletes into line.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 6.—Louis Gordon, left forward on the Harvard basketball team, left today for New Haven, accompanied by a tutor. The Crimson five engages Yale tomorrow in a junior prom game and Gordon had an examination scheduled here. He endeavored to have the Faculty allow him to take the examination under a Yale professor, but this did not meet with favor. In consequence a tutor went along as Gordon's private examiner and the Hotel Taft will furnish the examination room.

MAY MATCH CHAMPIONS.

Rickard Plans Title Bout Between Leonard and Britton.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, will get a chance to realise an ambition at Madison Square Garden on the night of March 17 if plans of Promoter Tex Rickard materialize. Rickard said yesterday that he is planning to arrange a welterweight championship battle between Jack Britton, holder of the title, and Leonard. Plans for the contest already have been discussed with Billy Gibson, manager of Leonard, and Dan Morgan, Britton's manager, and Rickard says both managers and boxers are agreeable to the proposition for a fifteen-round bout to a decision.

The contest, undoubtedly, would be a treat for boxing fans. Britton and Leonard are recognized as two of the cleverest exponents of boxing in action today and this, with the popularity of the two champions, Rickard is confident, would bring a record crowd to the Garden. Leonard has aspired to Britton's crown for several years and his admirers are confident the lightweight champion will carry off the welterweight title if the proposed bout materializes. Twice before the men have clashed in the ring in no-decision bouts. Soon after winning the lightweight title from Freddie Welsh in 1917 Leonard engaged Britton in a ten-round encounter and in the following year the pair met over the six-round route.

Rickard yesterday had a conference with Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, the world's heavyweight champion. The confab, however, did not involve matches in which Dempsey might be concerned. Kearns declared that he had made no progress toward arranging a bout for Dempsey since his arrival here. The $200,000 offer of William A. Brady for a match with Harry Wills has not yet been directly submitted for Kearns's consideration, the manager said, and he has no other arrangements in prospect just now.

FOR DECISION BOUTS IN N. J.

President of State Boxing Body Would Amend Evans's Bill.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 6.—Robert H. Daugherty, President of the New Jersey Boxing Commission, advocated amendment of the present boxing laws to permit fifteen-round championship bouts for a decision before the Assembly Judiciary Committee at the legislative hearing today on the Evans Boxing bill. He urged also that the bill be amended to allow a maximum charge of $25 instead of $15 for seats and opposed the provision that boxing referees and other officials must be residents of New Jersey for at least three years.

In response to a question by Assemblyman Joseph A. Corio of Atlantic City, he confessed he did not know "the difference between a boxing exhibition and a prizefight." He asserted that in his opinion $50 was not too much for a seat at the Carpentier-Dempsey fight last Summer, but declared he thought the amounts paid the participants entirely too large.

Former Assemblyman Hurley, author of the present Professional Boxing bill, called the committee's attention to the fact that the State has received revenue of $356,000 from boxing since 1918, when the present law was passed.

FENTOUR GAINS VICTORY.

Billy Fentour scored a one-sided victory in the eighth round of a scheduled twelve-round final bout of the Star Sporting Club of Harlem last night when Nick Scanlon, a substitute fighter, failed to appear for the bell in the ninth round. Fentour had his opponent badly battered, and the club doctors ordered the bout stopped. The weights were: Fentour, 144 pounds; Scanlon, 143. In the semi-final bout Moe Herskowitz, claimant of the Canadian welterweight championship, won a popular decision over Jimmie Kelly, knocking him out in 2:30 in the first round. The weights in this bout were: Herskowitz, 140 pounds; Kelly, 138.

BANCROFT ALREADY ON WAY TO TEXAS

To Join Snyder in San Antonio for Hunting Trip—Will Not Go to Hot Springs.

Captain Davy Bancroft, star shortstop of the Giants, is feeling so fit and fine that he has decided to forego the usual advance pilgrimage to Hot Springs, Ark., and has gone on to San Antonio to await the arrival of the main squad there on March 1. This was the pleasing news that filtered into the office of the Giants yesterday, coming from no less a person than Bancroft himself, writing from Long Beach, Cal., under date of Jan. 31. Bancroft will do some hunting with Snyder, whose home is in the Texas city.

Bancroft's letter, which was sent to Secretary James J. Tierney, conveyed the additional information that Davy has not yet received his 1922 contract, which was mailed from New York about Jan. 15. The document was sent to Bancroft's home in Superior, Wis., but Banny has been reported prowling around Mexico, Honolulu and way stations and, naturally, he was not at home to welcome the mail man. The letter, however, said that Bancroft had wired to his mother asking her to send the contract to San Antonio, where he will be able to scan the papers and see what figure John J. McGraw has inscribed therein.

The news of Bancroft's fine condition was decidedly pleasing to the Giant officials, for during and after the world's series the little shortstop was far from being in good health. Last Winter he was affected with nervous trouble and a stomach complaint—so much so that he had to go to Hot Springs to recuperate and get into condition. When he finally reported at San Antonio he was still far from well and ran into the additional complication of having to submit to an operation to remove his tonsils.

All these troubles, it seems, are now past and done with, for Bancroft reported to Secretary Tierney that his health is first class and his nervous ailment has entirely disappeared. In fact, Davy felt so chipper that he decided to accept an urgent invitation from Frank Snyder to go to San Antonio and help reduce the available supply of fish and game. Snyder's home is in the Texas city. Bancroft, so his letter runs, had decided to leave Long Beach on Feb. 1, and he is now undoubtedly wielding the gun and fishing rod in the far Southwest. He will stay there and, with Snyder and Ross Young, form the reception committee when the Giants leap from their train on the first day of March.

Bancroft had previously sought and obtained permission to go to Hot Springs for the hot baths and advance work on the roads. The only Giants who will now be at the Arkansas resort are Fred Toney, Phil Douglas, Claude Jonnard and Earl Smith. This quartet will not report at San Antonio until about March 4.

First Gift to U. S. Olympic Team Fund to Be About $1,000

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—The movement begun by the Boston A. A. to raise the fund to finance the United States team at the next Olympic Games by a percentage of the receipts from all athletic contests meantime will have as its first contribution approximate $1,000. Announcement that the B. A. A., in setting aside 5 per cent. of the net receipts of its annual games, held before a full house at the Boston Arena Saturday night, would contribute that amount was made today.

CLUBS ARE URGED TO AID OLYMPIC FUND

President Frederick W. Rubien yesterday sent the following letter to the Board of Managers of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union:

"The Finance Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union authorized the appropriation of 5 per cent. of the net receipts of all of its athletic activities during the year to be donated to the American Olympic Association for the fund being raised by the Amateur Athletic Union to aid in financing America's participation in the Olympic games of 1924.

"The Boston Athletic Association started this movement with a guarantee that 5 per cent. of its net receipts of the games held Feb. 4 be donated to this fund, and President William C. Prout of the Amateur Athletic Union requested all of its associations and clubs to make similar donations. The Millrose Athletic Association at its recent games held at Madison Square Garden announced that a percentage of its net receipts of these games would be donated to the Olympic Fund. The Wilcox A. A. authorized a similar announcement as to its games to be held on Feb. 18.

"In order to finance properly an American team to the Olympic games in Paris in 1924, a campaign should be started at once to raise the funds necessary for so large an undertaking, and all clubs in the Metropolitan district are urged to contribute a percentage of the profits of all of their athletic endeavors to the end that a sufficient sum of money shall be realized.

"What action will your club take in this matter? Please take a personal interest in this matter in order that it be properly presented to the members of your club. All checks are to be mailed to Charles A. Elbert, Secretary-Treasurer of the Metropolitan Association, who will see that the funds are credited to the organizations contributing."

LEITCH'S FALL IS COSTLY.

Goes Down on Final Lap and Goldberg Skates to Victory.

Starting from scratch in the two-mile handicap skating race at the 181st Street Ice Palace last night, Al Leitch, New Jersey State champion, had the victory within his grasp when he slipped and fell on the last lap. Sam Goldberg, the Tremont distance skater, went by the Jerseyite and took first place with something to spare over Jimmie Smith of the home rink. Leitch, with his recent successes at Long Branch and Englewood, had to concede long marks to the large field that started in this event, but he had overcome his handicaps and was leading the race by five yards when he fell, less than a lap from the tape.

The summaries:

LANG IS SUSPENDED AFTER BANNER DAY

Pilots Three Winners at New Orleans, but Is Set Down for Rough Riding in the Sixth.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—Jockey Charles Lang, the sensation of the Winter racing season, had another of his big days at the Fair Grounds this afternoon, but it ended disastrously when he was set down for five days for rough riding in the sixth race. The decision of the judges followed a complaint lodged by Jockey Bruening, who protested on the grounds of interference. The race was allowed to stand as run with Lang's mount, Verity, placed first and Escarpolette, on which Bruening had the leg up, third. Including this race, Lang had six mounts during the day and brought three of them to the finish line in front, while the other three took the place honors their respective events.

The young Canadian jockey had no mount in the opening race. In the second number of the program he had the leg up on Matches Mary, the favorite, and had to ride her in the final stages to score a victory over Lt. Sagamore. Lang's mount in the third race, came from the string of the boy's employer, James Arthur, and was likewise the choice in the betting. In this case all that the jockey had to do was to sit reasonably still aboard the gelding's flanks and let the thoroughbred decide the margin of victory.

Riding Lost Effort in the Recruit Purse, the fourth event on the card, Lang had to yield to an outsider, but saved second place without any trouble, and in the next contest, the Diplomat Purse, the feature of the afternoon's entertainment, he followed the favorite, United Verde, home with a long shot, Blarney Stone. The sixth race was captured by Lang on J. J. Hayes's chestnut mare, Verity, which paid a liberal price in a small field. This victory was the seventh straight for Verity. In the final test of the afternoon he bestrode Search Light III and found Peterson's entry, Broom Peddler, possessed of enough speed to spreadeagle the field, but nailed the place by a block or so.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For maiden two-year-old colts and geldings; purse $1,000; three furlongs. Billy Whiskers, 115 pounds (Weiner), 4 to 1, 6 to 5, 2 to 5, first; Athlete, 115 (Walls), 3 to 5, 1 to 4, second; The Muleskinner, 115 (King), 1 to 6, third. Time—0:38. PLAYFELLOW CASE MONDAY.

Retrial in Turf Suit to Start Next Week, Though Set for Tomorrow.

The date for the second trial of the Playfellow case in the Brooklyn Supreme Court has been set for tomorrow, and the case will probably be reached next Monday, it was said today. Fred S. Lyke of counsel for Harry F. Sinclair of the Rancocas Stables, plaintiff, said that he thought the trial would probably begin next Monday before Justice Cropsey.

James Johnson, defendant, is being sued for $100,000, purchase price of the horse Playfellow, full brother of the celebrated Man-o'-War. Sinclair said he bought the horse from Johnson on the representation that shortly after he bought him found the horse to have the habits of pointing and wind sucking.

EDGAR APPLEBY IS BALKLINE CHAMPION

FINAL STANDING IN CLASS A 18.2 BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

E. T. Appleby	5	0	343	17	11-17	1.000
F. S. Appleby	4	1	186	15		.800
E. A. Renner	3	2	65	9	13-65	.600
F. N. Collins	2	3	91	27	9-21	.400
T. H. Clarkson	1	4	57	9	8-17	.200
E. W. Gardner	0	5	47	9	5-32	.000

Fraternal friendships cease when it comes to a question of the winning or losing of a billiard championship. Accordingly, Edgar T. Appleby showed little or no mercy last night in taking the national Class A 18.2 balkline final and title match from his brother, Francis S. Appleby, in the tournament at the Crescent A. C. The match that decided the title was not phenomenally played in any particular. Neither brother was in his smoothest stroke. Both had their troubles in keeping the balls gathered, Francis, especially, setting himself difficult tasks on numerous occasion by faulty control. The score in Edgar's favor was 300 to 194.

No records were even approached in the match that decided the title. Edgar Appleby, who had set a new amateur high run record of 142 in an earlier session of this tournament, had runs of 51, 43 and 34 for his best innings. His brother counted 37, 34 and 29 in his three most profitable turns at the table. Edgar's average was a flat 12 and his brother's was 8 2-24. Edgar finished the 300 points in 25 innings.

The brothers fought out the final round of the tournament before a full gallery of billiard lovers at the Crescent Athletic Club. William J. Ryan refereed. When they started each had a record of four victories and no defeats. Edgar won the flash and ran two in his first inning. Francis made some good angle shots, but could not get the balls together, and sat down after a collection of six. Edgar did better in the next frame, running nineteen, but still failing to avoid a spread and working hard for every button.

Edgar Secures Lead.

The lead see-sawed until Edgar made a run of twenty-three in his fourth inning. From that point on he continued in the van, playing steadily, but failing to realize several opportunities for nursing the balls for long runs. At the end of thirteen frames he had but a four-point advantage over his brother.

In the fourteenth inning Francis went into the lead for the first time since the third inning by a score of 106 to 156. He had been making no extraordinary runs, but when he missed he usually left the balls safe. Edgar in his twelfth inning had halted what looked like a good chance for a profitable session when he tried a difficult follow shot and failed on it instead of attempting a comparatively easier cushion shot. Edgar again went into the lead in his eighteenth inning, wherein a collection of thirty-four buttons made the score 199 to 180 in his favor. He never was headed after that. From then on to the end he played steadily and consistently while his brother added but fourteen more points to his total, divided between two innings of seven points each.

The prettiest shot of the match was made by Edgar in his twenty-first visit to the table. This was a spectacular jump shot, the cue ball hurdling the red and connecting. It was the sort of shot frequently affected by the Dutch expert, Ary Hos, and it stirred the big gallery to long and vigorous applause. Edgar's play was still more notable for around-the-table shots than for close manipulation in and out of balk. But he never left his brother set-up, and his lead mounted steadily until he ran out in his twenty-fifth inning with an unfinished run of 31.

No Masse Shots Missed.

Neither brother missed a single attempt at a masse shot, and both made several exceedingly pretty ones. Francis's best run of 37 was ended after he had made a beautiful three-cushion shot and failed on a two-cushion shot that followed. Edgar's high run of 51 required considerable effort in shots the length of the table with some good line-nursing mixed in.

Edgar Appleby's victory brought the championship back to the East after it had been in the custody of Charles Heddon and Percy Collins for the last two years. Edgar Appleby's average of 17 11-17, made in his opening match with Collins, stands as a record for an amateur championship tournament. The general average of the players, it is to be noted, was higher than in any previous tournament. The figure for the tournament was approximately 9, about one point better than in any preceding year.

The score by innings:

Edgar T. Appleby—3 19 18 23 51 0 3 4 2 23 1 2 17 11 1 7 2 0 7 26 0 42 1 31. Total, 300. High runs, 51, 43, 34. Average, 12.

Francis S. Appleby—2 3 5 3 0 16 6 22 20 1 1 57 0 15 1 0 10 3 0 7 6 7 0 0. Total, 194. High runs, 37, 34, 29. Average, 8 2-24.

RAY AGAIN SHOWS HEELS TO RIVALS

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Feb. 6.—Joie Ray, Illinois A. C. star, won the one-mile special invitation handicap before a crowd of 5,000 at the second annual games of the Newark Athletic Club at the First Regiment Armory here tonight. There was wild cheering in the prettily decorated drill shed as Ray flashed to the front two laps from home and then made a show of the field as he broke the worsted an easy winner. Ray was out to break the world's record, but failed, although his performance was excellent. His time for the mile was 4 minutes 22 1-5 seconds.

Seventeen athletes faced the starter in this race, with the limit man almost on Ray's heels when the pistol barked. Joie, running in his usual machine-like precision, mowed down one runner after another until he was out in front and had the race won two laps from the finish.

Now the service schools meet only in football, baseball and basketball. West Point has taken up boxing, wrestling, swimming, water polo and gymnastics in competition with outside teams. The Naval Academy has been playing all of these for some years and will be glad to meet the soldiers.

COLUMBIA'S SEXTET LOSES TO HAMILTON

CLINTON, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Hamilton College won its third hockey victory last night, defeating Columbia 2 to 1. Fast ice made the game lively and kept the players at top speed.

In the first period the Buff and Blue were on the offensive. Marlow, after a dribble down the ice, scored the first goal for Hamilton. Five minutes later Yates sent the puck into the cage from a scramble in front of the goal.

The second period was scoreless. In the third period the Blue and White made a desperate rally and opened up with a four-man offensive. The stiff defense of the Buff and Blue tightened and let one lone tally get by when Anderson scored Columbia's only point.

The line-up:

HAMILTON (2).		COLUMBIA (1).
Yates	L. W.	Rollins
R. Thompson	R. W.	Church

R. G. Reeder	G.	Jennings

GREEN SNATCHES VICTORY FROM ELIS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 6.—Dartmouth wrested victory from apparent defeat today by tieing Yale in the closing minutes of the junior promenade week hockey game and, with the final period almost elapsed, shooting the winning goal for a final count of 2 to 1. Airtight defense by both sextets resulted in scoreless hockey for the first two periods, but Yale broke the ice with the initial tally 4 minutes after the third session opened when a clever run by Fergie Reid and a quick pass to Chisholm resulted in a side shot for goal by the latter player.

Dartmouth penetrated the Bli's defense for the first time two minutes later and brought the ball close to the Yale cage for a merry mix-up in which Foster, who had slipped and lay prone, drove the puck past Vogel for the tieing goal after Calder had brought the rubber down the surface. Yale rallied and forced the play for ten minutes, Jack Speeden and Reid starring in the down-the-ring marches which were invariably wrecked by the impregnable Dartmouth defense. Osborne finally emerged from the scrimmage near the Yale cage, skated along the side of the rink, and by a deft diagonal shot lifted the puck into the netting for the final and winning tally.

Vogel and Tobin were in rare form and kicked away apparently impossible attacks. Extreme roughness prevailed, Reid and Red Hall figuring incessantly in collisions. Speiden and Hall were penalized for exceeding the body checking restrictions.

The line-up:

DARTMOUTH (2).		YALE (1).
Hall	C.	Reid
Calder	L. W.	Farnsworth
Osborne	R. W.	Chisholm
Foster	L. D.	Tricom
Perry	R. D.	Speiden
Tobin	G.	Vogel

Goals—Third period: Chisholm, Yale, (2 Eq. seconds; Foster, Dartmouth, 2 minutes 30 seconds; Osborne, Dartmouth, 7 minutes 4 4-5 seconds.

Substitutions—Dartmouth: Sheehy for Calder, Calder for Sheehy, Perry for Hall, Hall for Perry. Yale: Murray for Chisholm, Chisholm for Murray.

Referee—McKinnon, New Haven. Time—Three fifteen-minute periods.

For a time she had been troubled with gas after her evening meal. The distress was most painful after eating potatoes or other starchy foods, of which she was very fond.

Then she started taking two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every night between her evening meal and bedtime. She poured about a half cup of boiling hot water over the yeast cakes, stirred them thoroughly, added a little cold water and drank.

She found she could eat anything and sleep splendidly afterward.

Thousands of men and women are finding that Fleischmann's Yeast corrects stomach and intestinal troubles. It promotes the flow of bile and pancreatic juices. Appetite is always kept normal and you are protected against indigestion.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM CONTAGION

EVERY time you breathe you inhale thousands of infectious germs, and these immediately find a resting place in the soft tissues of your throat.

Keep a convenient bottle of Formamint Tablets in your pocket, dissolve one slowly in your mouth every time you are in a place where disease germs are prevalent—in street car, theatre, railroad train, store or on dusty street.

A pleasant tasting but powerful antiseptic is released, and, mixing with the saliva, will quickly spread to every part of the mouth and throat, checking the germ life and preventing throat infection; possibly laryngitis, tonsillitis, "flu." Relieves hoarseness.

PIUS XI.

Cardinal RATTI's election so early in the conclave is a surprise to the sage vaticaters and believers in precedent. He was the candidate most in the public view, and from his very conspicuity seemed likely to be one of those "Popes before the conclave" whose expectations have so often been disappointed by the choice of obscurer men. His scholarship, his intellect, his experience and his character are worthy of that majestic office. As Papal Nuncio in Poland he exercised with great wisdom and tact in a difficult time the ecclesiastical and political powers now to be broadened over the world. As Archbishop of Milan, the most famous historically and still the most eminent of Italian archdioceses, he has shown himself equal to the duties and problems of a region the heart of the industrial life of the peninsula and filled with the most intense anti-clerical, Socialist and Communist activities.

It is rather idle, it seems to us, to talk of his "liberal" tendencies or to predict his course as the head of the Church from his course in Italian affairs and politics, or to assume that he is more or less "liberal" than Cardinal MAFFI, Archbishop of Pisa, much spoken of as a candidate. Italian politics, or the relations between the Vatican and the Quirinal, are but a facet of the many-sided international contacts of the Papacy. Collisions and contentions arise, are smoothed over, modified or left unsettled. Politicians and political and diplomatic questions are born and die. The Church, regarded always sub specie aeternitatis, goes on in its unending and ecumenic career. It is not Italian but universal; and its general ecclesiastical powers and policies transcend immeasurably the necessarily shifting and mutable accidents and compromises of diplomacy.

The fruitful labors of BENEDICT XV., so bitterly misunderstood and calumniated in the distresses and passions of the war, remain to praise him; and time has largely justified him, even in the minds of his former detractors. He left the Church much stronger than he found it, for all the wounds of war. PIUS XI. is in his sixty-fourth year, unusually robust, young as Papal age is reckoned. Talent, energy, will and a comprehensive and statesmanlike mind are his. He should be a strong, perhaps even a great, Pope.

THE END OF THE CONFERENCE.

President HARDING displayed engaging personal qualities in both of his addresses to the Washington conference. In the first one, on Nov. 12, he showed himself a man sincere, modest and willing to be effaced—he was, in fact, immediately effaced, or at least thrown into the background, by the sensational proposals made by Secretary HUGHES. Yesterday the President summed up the work of the conference with simplicity and good faith. With a kind of homely but sure instinct he struck his hand upon the really essential point of the treaties negotiated in respect to the Far East. They have their legal aspect, but in the President's mind this does not mean so much as their moral aspect. He spoke of the faith plighted at the conference as something to be "kept in national honor." And a little later, as if admitting tacitly that the international obligations assumed in some of the treaties are very loose and may easily be evaded, he declared that the conference has drawn "the indictments of national dishonor," and that "the world is ready to proclaim the odiousness of perfidy or infamy." Critics may say that this breathes of Mr. HARDING's simple-mindedness. But is it he speaks the native thought and faith of the great mass of the American people. They will be glad to reaffirm their confidence in the President as one who is as kindly by nature and as well-intentioned as they are.

While there was interest in advance concerning the way in which the President would pass judgment upon the achievements of the Washington conference, the chief curiosity in looking forward to his speech at the finish was to see if it would contain any clear indication of his future policy. Some predicted that he would take occasion to show how the conference might easily expand into an association of nations. Others believed that he would go no further than to hint at other conferences like the one at Washington. He did indeed give such a hint, but it was vague and faint. Mr. HARDING did not go beyond saying that what had been attained at Washington might well suggest "like conferences in future." Evidently, the President is not yet ready to announce his plans in this matter.

His cautious attitude is distinctly warranted. In regard to the conference at Genoa, for example, this Government needs to be enlightened and assured on many points before agreeing to take part in it. And there is another reason why the President has to walk with extreme prudence along all these international paths. He does not know how far the Senate will be disposed to go with him, or how soon it might demand that he turn back if he were to venture ahead alone. This complication reflects itself also in the question of securing ratification for the treaties signed at Washington. If the Senate cannot be induced to accept them, it will be obviously useless for the Administration to go forward with other international agreements. It is fair to infer, therefore, that the President and Secretary HUGHES will continue for some time in a wary attitude; will take up questions one by one as they arise; will carefully limit the scope of any negotiations in which this Government may participate—in a word, will give to the nervously excited Senate what doctors call "expectant" treatment.

This course is, under the circumstances, the wisest one for the President to follow. His endeavor must be to soothe rather than inflame the Senate, and quietly to lead his party step by step to a realization of the way in which the fortunes and the hopes of America are linked with those of all the rest of the world.

ARMY PLUCKING BOARDS.

Major MALCOLM WHEELER-NICHOLSON, who in a letter to the President makes a sensational attack upon the ranking officers of the regular army responsible for its efficiency, is a man with a grievance. It is that "they" put me in Class B because I had "been in debt as a Second Lieutenant." Class B includes officers to whom is given the option of accepting retirement at reduced pay or asking for a court to inquire into the charges preferred against them by superiors. There has been a great deal of complaint that officers have not had a square deal when they asked for a court of inquiry. The constitutionality of that section of the Army Reorganization act that provides the machinery for eliminating inefficient officers from the service has been challenged. The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia has just decided, in the cases of Colonels JOHN W. FRENCH and WILLIAM P. CHEARY, that the law is not unconstitutional, but an appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Major WHEELER-NICHOLSON may be a victim of prejudice and injustice. But some of the assertions he makes are mere ranting. For instance: "Seniors are not only protected in "wrongdoing but are rewarded for "oppressing their juniors." Again: "A veritable reign of terror exists "among the junior officers of the "army today." The reason given is that no one is safe from the clique which selects names for Class B. "The host of ex-officers throughout "the country should demand," says this officer, "such a system that "they or their children will not be "led to slaughter under inefficient "regular army officers." That all the regular army officers who served in France were competent leaders cannot be maintained, but the average of efficiency was obviously much higher than among the officers who had never had West Point or regular army training. It has been charged that a "clique of officers," to use a phrase of Major WHEELER-NICHOLSON's, controlled the army in France. In a sense it is true, for the fortunes of the American Army were in the hands of West Pointers, happily for the nation and for our allies. General PERSHING was at the head of that "clique." When Major WHEELER-NICHOLSON says that the army "is a "useless expense to the taxpayer "in its present state," he talks nonsense.

As to Class B legislation, the principle of it is commendable, but "plucking boards" are sometimes arbitrary and unfair. Furthermore, officers put into Class B have not always had the opportunity to prepare their cases. Time was needed to summon witnesses, but no extension was allowed. Consequently charges have been puerile. The alleged misconduct, impropriety, offense, venial perhaps, is two years old. An enemy, or an irascible superior, would like to see his junior "walk the plank." A good many officers demanding a court of inquiry have been "acquitted," although such a tribunal is sometimes called a Star Chamber. When accusers are allowed to sit in the court it may deserve that name. The law governing the jurisdiction is not as clearly defined as it might be. But when the worst is said about the operation of Section 24-b of the Act of June 4, 1920, the good intentions and the conscientiousness of most of the officers forming these courts must be admitted. It is hard to believe that Major WHEELER-NICHOLSON was put in Class B only because he "had been in debt as a Second Lieutenant." If he has not had fair play, if he has been deprived of any of his rights or persecuted, the War Department should stand by him.

TAXES, SURPLUS AND WASTE.

The Controller of New York State reports a surplus in cash of $43,600,000 and in revenue of $11,564,000 for last year. Any who may be surprised to find so much money in the till can hardly be aware that in the last forty years there have been only seventeen years in which the State has spent more than its taxes. For the whole series of years there has been an excess of $32,311,550 of receipts over expenditures. The most recent excesses of taxes over expenditures have been the largest. The greatest before the war was less than six millions, but next year the Controller estimates that it will be $22,400,000.

The resulting temptation to extravagance is patent. The surplus is a serious obstacle to Governor MILLER's plans for further economies. Yet the increase of expenditures from about ten millions forty years ago, and fifty millions in the last year before the war, to more than $90,000,000 for the last year or two, offers a great opportunity for vigorous retrenchment. When the State debt was negligible, and the direct tax hardly worth mention, no Governor could promise relief from taxation. Now the taxpayers cry out for relief. Such is the reaction from the establishment of innumerable bureaus and commissions. Some of the legislation creating them deserves to be called, as the Governor has called it, "gold brick legislation." He has plans to dismiss 2,000 State employes. Their wails will be loud, but the money they would have received will do more good if applied to the reduction of taxation. The Controller says that $12,800,000 was devoted to that use last year. Double that sum is hardly more than next year's estimated surplus revenue, and any excess saving could easily come out of the large surplus.

It is the direct tax which is the direct cause of increasing the assessment of real estate in every county in the State, and therefore of increasing rents. The rentpayers are the real taxpayers, although they do not see their tax bills. The rentpayers therefore are as much interested as the taxpayers in helping the Governor to apply the surplus to reducing taxes and so rents. For support of his plans the Governor must look to those who are not charges on the State salary list, or "wheelhorses" in politics.

REVOLUTION NOT AS ADVERTISED

It was an act of courage for the editor of Forward to tell our belated League for Industrial Democracy that the cause of proletarian world rule "has lost ground." To give specific reasons for its failure required even more hardihood.

BELA KUN had assured Mr. ABRAHAM CAHAN that the Hungarian revolution would come off before the Allies could forge the "iron band" about him; but, as it turned out, his chronology was wrong. In Austria, said Mr. CAHAN, there could be no revolution because "there was no bread there." In Italy the expropriators expropriated to the top of their bent, yet the revolution failed because, in addition to bread, the workers lacked coal and iron. Likewise in Germany "nothing was done but the spilling of blood." Of all the countries of Western Europe, England was intellectually the best prepared for revolution; but a fact developed which seems to have come as a surprise. The English are a nation of shopkeepers. "Being a "shop with the world as her custo-"mers," England "could not afford to revolt." The proletariat never knew the curse till now!

If Mr. CAHAN explained the breakdown at Moscow the fact was not reported; yet that was the crucial test. In Russia, at least to begin with, there was bread a-plenty and unlimited means of producing more. All necessary raw materials were available. Only one thing was lacking, a body of energetic and trained administrators to organize the new rule. The Bolshevist theory is that the middle classes should be exterminated and their place supplied from the proletariat. It was tried, and it failed to work. In Italy the fundamental lack was the same—not that of coal and iron but of the middle-class managers and technicians.

Having failed to convince the former intercollegiate Socialists who have so tardily become Industrial Democrats, it is scarcely probable that Mr. CAHAN will labor with the trade-unions that are inspired by the "great results" accomplished by the Triple Alliance in England. By amalgamating the "strategic crafts" of miners and railway brotherhoods, their spokesmen declares, "the very power "and function of the Government can "be dictated by the sovereignty of the "nation—the working class." The Triple Alliance greatly dared, with the result that it very speedily discovered who and what is sovereign.

JUDGE SCOTT.

FRANCIS MARION SCOTT served his native city and State in many ways, and was in the service till his death. He was an admirable public-spirited citizen. He was a singularly able Judge, one of the best Judges, by the consent of his associates on the bench and of the bar. A Justice of the Supreme Court for twenty years, a member of the Appellate Division for twelve, in that division, as at Special Term and Trial Term, he showed the same invariable impartiality accompanied with ripe and solid learning, an easy comprehension of facts, swift dispatch of business. When he resigned four years ago, the age of retirement nearly reached, he possessed in an unusual degree the confidence and respect of the bar and the public.

His support of Judge NEWBURGER, denied a renomination by the boss, was one of his many contributions to upholding the independence of the judiciary; and in the Bar Association he was always active. He was one of the special counsel for the Transit Commission. The work laid upon his old age, as Chairman of the Charter Revision Commission, was not to be finished. He was fitted for that work, not merely by the quality of his mind and his legal knowledge, but by his experience, in the Corporation Counsel's office, as Aqueduct Commissioner and as Judge, of the redundancies, ineffectualities and high-piled amendments of the Charter. He had followed Charters for forty years.

FRANK SCOTT began his public life more than fifty years ago as a fighter against Boss TWEED. The County Democracy, JOHN KELLY, GRACE, HEWITT, HUGH GRANT (who beat SCOTT for Mayor), STRONG—a vanished age and many now but dimly remembered figures come to mind, reviewing this once young reformer, who accomplished so much. He was in the plenitude of his faculties. If so to die is a personal good fortune, to the public the loss is large.

THE BROADWAY VOICE.

The Actors' Equity Association has explained that the "Equity Shop" is not in the least a closed shop, but only a practical means of collecting dues from its members. The explanation is convincing in proportion as one knows actors; but at best (or at worst, depending on the point of view) it leaves a margin of doubt. Now, according to report, Mr. GOMPERS has advised the association to close the entire nation to those English actors who have so long been welcome guests. The motive, presumably, is to insure that Equity members have engagements on the basis of which dues may be collected. Yet more than ever the situation takes on the aspect of union domination. Also, a question of art emerges. Says a manager who has lately produced a costume play with a cast mainly English: "You can't convey an eighteenth "century atmosphere with Broadway "voices!"

Morals may be, as the cynics declare, merely a matter of geography; but surely art is international. "The Broadway actor," says Mr. GILBERT MILLER, "has not trained himself vocally." These words have the superlative emphasis of understatement. As an enthusiast for soft speaking once declared, a prairie burr "shatters all the dramatic unities." Precisely as art tends to be international, moreover, so does the closed door. Already there are rumbles of transatlantic retaliation. Will "equity" as imposed by England be as sweet?

American plays enjoy an increasing vogue in London, and with them American actors. In crook melodrama and tank-town comedy, laryngeal burr and nasal twang are appropriate and welcome. But, in the absence of Americans abroad, such plays must be entrusted to English actors of the corresponding type. The floor-cloth of crook melodrama and tank-town comedy will be covered deep in drifts of fallen aitches. What will happen then to the dues of English origin which the Equity has been wont to collect? What will happen to the dramatic unities?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Chain of Parks for Westchester.

Parks are admirable things, and Westchester County is a region where a great public playground would have more than ordinary beauties as well as more than ordinary utilities. So New York City folk will regard with satisfaction and approval the ambitious scheme the beginning of which is seen, or said to be seen, in Assemblyman MASTERS's bill empowering the State to sell to the county for $1 duly paid the Mohansic Reservation in sleepy little Yorktown, on condition that it forever is devoted to park purposes.

From the metropolitan point of view the proposal will be regarded with commendation because the establishment of the new park system apparently is to be achieved by the expenditure of Westchester's own money. Whether that will have many charms for the Westchester taxpayers, already moaning and groaning under their burdens, will be manifested later. It is to be feared that some of them, cynical or suspicious, will note the names of the eminent owners of great estates who are enthusiastic supporters of the park chain plan, and will say in a mean way: "Oh, yes, their motives are plain enough! All the land turned into parks will be in effect additions to and protections for their properties and enable them to maintain for several lifetimes longer the rural seclusion that is their delight for part of the year."

But there is more to the Westchester activities than a park or several parks. The local politicians, large and small, are worried over the possibility that Westchester, or the southern and politically most valuable section of it, may be annexed to New York City, the ravening monster that already has devoured so many once independent towns and villages. Why they fear this is not quite clear, but they do, and they have dreamed a dream of making the whole county into one great municipal corporation, as yet named only "the City of Westchester."

They are a shrewd and crafty lot, the Westchester politicians, and they have a habit of doing a good many of the things they set out to do. But the common folk of the county as yet only laugh at the idea of a "Westchester City."

A Lamentable Change Has Arrived.

Even to men, wayfaring and other, the advertisements have revealed that big sleeves are "coming in" again. It is only natural, perhaps, that as the women for a year or two have been going without any sleeves at all, they should now proceed to the opposite extreme.

The change will not be prevented or even delayed by the fact that it is one from beauty and convenience to ugliness and no end of bother. As the arbiters of fashion, whoever they may be, recently could persuade not a few women to disfigure themselves by wearing "arctics"—unbuttoned and flapping, at that!—when there was no need or excuse for that sort of protection, it is evident that any decree of theirs will be obeyed. The big sleeves will be accepted by the feather-brained merely because they are new and "the style," and by the more or less intelligent on the poor excuse that they have to take what the shops offer.

The only plausible explanation of the big sleeves comes from France, and is to the effect that the textile manufacturers told the dressmakers that in the interest of business they simply must use more cloth. Scantiness of garments never meant cheapness for the wearers, but it did mean loss of profits for the manufacturers.

Whether or not that is a sufficient reason for abandoning the most esthetic styles that have been in vogue for several centuries is a question for which there should be only one answer. Unfortunately, there are two, and neither the manufacturers nor the shopkeepers seem to have any doubt as to which answer will be made. They think, and in all probability are right, that what they say "goes," regardless of the effects on health, comfort and beauty.

But one thing is certain—the big sleeves will be welcomed by the possessors of ugly arms.

Resolutions That Are Confessions.

As was observed long ago, it is possible from the laws of a nation to deduce the sins and crimes to which that nation's people are most inclined. Extending this principle a little, a disquieting conclusion might be reached as to journalism on the Pacific Coast, or at any rate on a part of it.

At a recent convention of the Oregon State Editorial Association it was deemed either necessary or desirable formally to "adopt" a code of professional ethics—a code prepared, curiously enough, not by a newspaper man, or even a journalist, but by the Dean of the State university.

Reading over this code, one observes that in effect the Oregonians solemnly declare that newspapers should be run honestly and be regardful of public interests. They should pursue truth and accuracy, be considerate of everybody's feelings except when good purposes are to be served by a stern frankness, refuse to advertise frauds, guard against giving publicity to propaganda that has evil or selfish motives, not exaggerate circulation figures—in short, should be conducted just about as reputable papers always have been, are and should be conducted.

There is not a word of adverse criticism that could be applied fairly to the Dean's rules, but why do the Oregonian editors feel compelled to endorse them—to sign them on the dotted line, as it were? Nobody has observed any special departures from ordinary morality on their part, though, like the rest of us, they have been no better than they should be and sometimes not quite so good. That is because they are only human, and a proclamation of intention to be virtuous hereafter—well, in a way, it confesses past wickednesses.

Their Powers Should Be Exercised.

One of THE TIMES's readers tells it that it erred in holding college Presidents responsible for the behavior of the students in their charge. They have to take, he writes, the boys sent to them by the preparatory schools, public and private, and when they get poor material they cannot work miracles on it.

There is some basis for this protest, but by no means enough measurably to decrease the responsibility of the college Presidents. They have much to say as to qualifications for entrance, and more as to the qualifications for remaining.

So, again it can be said that when the Presidents apply harsh epithets to their students they are condemning their own methods of selection and discipline.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You were good enough to publish my communication, some little time ago, on the League of Nations, which encourages me to give expression to my thoughts for the second time.

I still believe that it has been unfortunate for the world at large, and for America in particular, that our country deemed it inadvisable to add its signature to the League. I am fully convinced, if this had been done, a more rapid adjustment of the world's financial and other difficulties would be more easily and successfully solved. While I am sure that it is generally conceded that America can come nearer living and succeeding within itself than any other country, yet it cannot be denied that we are all, from every part of the world, dependent and interdependent upon each other to a more or less degree.

I was not afraid to continue to stand by those with whom we were associated for five years, at least. I have confidence in the intelligence of the American people sufficiently to know that they could not be used by other nations to our own disadvantage. At the same time it now appears to me that France, or rather her legal representatives, are seemingly forgetting what would have happened to her if she had failed to receive the support of England and America. She is in my opinion too exacting, too self-willed and self-opinionated.

AGAINST BONUS.

"Gold-Striper" Feels That Disabled Man Has Received All He Needs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

First, I desire to express my sincere appreciation of the editorials concerning the so-called bonus which I have read with much pleasure as they appeared from day to day in THE TIMES.

I, for one, would welcome from some enlightened hero a definite, concrete answer to the following simple, perhaps, yet to my mind not wholly clear, questions:

1. Why should we (yes, I was in the fray, and I am entitled to add an "s" to the word chevron when speaking of gold chevrons I am authorized to wear) have a bonus? What special line of reasoning leads so unmistakably to that conclusion?

2. What percentage—estimated, of course—of unemployed ex-soldiers, would now be employed had they never been called to the colors? Excluding the disabled and possibly a few at least who are purposely loafing, with the idea of stimulating interest in and sympathy with their wail and tale of woe.

3. Should the bonus bill be passed, would not just about 99 per cent. of the bunch who are now idle and in such direful straits be in just as deplorable a condition a year hence?

4. If this much-talked-of thing called patriotism is to be measured in dollars, why make so much fuss about Bergdoll? Because he didn't need the dollars.

5. Is one to infer from all this talk about the grafter who remained behind and cheated and robbed the Government that our being called away was all that prevented us from joining the gang?

6. If an accurate census were taken, definite proof required rather than a few decidedly ambiguous claims set forth in generalities, would there not be a very small percentage indeed who could lay claim to a bonus because of their financial circumstances being worse today than they were before the war?

I may have a wholly wrong idea of this much-talked-of proposition, but in my present unenlightened state of knowledge any plea for a bonus for the man who has been returned to civil life sound in body and limb is as uncalled for as would be the plea for a bonus for the farmer, the railroader, the coal miner or any other who contributed in any way to the country's need.

My unqualified plea is to give the disabled man all that he needs. This the Government has done, at least has tried to do, is trying to do and will do. For the hale and hearty, whining, would-be grafter, give him, too, what he deserves, which, so far as a bonus is concerned, can be expressed in one simple word—nothing, which I sincerely hope will be our portion. I am not one of the disabled. I have exactly the same position I had before the war. I was through the whole game. I have at no time during or since the war received other than my salary. I have nothing at present except my salary, which is not so high but what it is exempt from income tax. I could use the bonus as well as the majority who would get it, yet I do not consider that I or any other who returned with a whole skin has any claim to a red cent in way of a bonus.

LAW AND THE NATIVE-BORN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the genealogical history of a man is to be made a prerequisite for admission to the bar, we would be entertaining an utterly un-American movement. I therefore disagree with your correspondent in last Monday's issue, "Is Law a Business." The American idea is a door wide open to the people of all countries, who adopt this country as their own and pursue life in the same manner with the same advantages that belong to the descendants of the founders of this Republic, and they have a right to enjoy the blessings of our liberty in this country. It is utterly untenable to say that lawyers of foreign extraction menace the legal profession and that only lawyers who spring from the founders of this Government should be admitted to this honorable profession.

Many lawyers of foreign extraction are shining lights in our profession. Indeed, I feel, as a native born, a natural pride in my birthright, but Americans by choice cannot help but remember their gratitude for their opportunity. They point to the use they make of the chance, ask the native born to acknowledge that the balance swings level.

America, oldest of republics, cradle of liberty, extends its welcome to the youth that is and is to come, as its welcome has been extended to the youth of generations past.

A SONG OF YOUTH.

O World, they say you are old, you are old—
But, oh, my eyes, they are young to see!
And Life, they say, is a tale that is told—
But, Life, I listen—tell me! tell me!
Ah, yes, I am eager of eye and ear!
I would see, O World—O Life, I would hear!
They say that Hope is a false beacon light
Set over the sunken rock, Despair—
That good ships go aground in the night,
By its lying, beckoning light lured there!
But, I hope, I believe that your light shines true—
I will set my galleon's course by you!
And Beauty, they say, is a siren cold
Whose lovers die and she does not care—
But bend to me, Beauty, my heart is bold!
Death does not daunt me, I dare, I dare!
Though your name be bandied on every tongue,
Still—smile on me, Beauty, for I am young!
Love, they declare, is a bird on the wing!
Catch it, they say—and its talons tear!
Cage it and make it a prisoned thing—
And it droops and dies in its prison there!
But, Love, when you pass me—fly low, fly low!
For oh, I am young—I would know, I would know!
Bubbles bright are the dreams of Youth.
Touch them, they say—and they burst in air!
Let the old ones mutter—but fair to see

Senate Committee Acts to Relieve Court Congestion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—An addition of thirteen to the number of District Judges was agreed upon today by the Senate Judiciary Committee as a means of relieving the congestion in the courts.

The new Judgeships would be distributed to the following districts under the committee's recommendation: Massachusetts, Eastern New York, Southern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania, Northern Texas, Eastern Michigan, Northern Ohio, Middle Tennessee, Northern Illinois, Minnesota, Northern California, Northern Georgia and Arizona.

As first introduced the bill proposed an increase of twenty-two. The committee decided to amend the original bill by giving Massachusetts and Southern New York one Judge each instead of two, as proposed, and by striking from the bill the increase of one each proposed for Western Pennsylvania, Southern Florida, Eastern Illinois, Eastern Missouri, Western Missouri, Eastern Oklahoma, Montana and Southern California. The committee added the Northern District of Georgia, which was not proposed in the bill as introduced.

The committee also agreed to report favorably that section of the bill which provides that whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of any of the Judges appointed under it the vacancy shall not be filled unless Congress so provides.

Other provisions of the bill, especially that with reference to the assignment of District and Circuit Judges, will be disposed of tomorrow.

SENATE GETS FORD'S OFFER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A report and appended documents identical with those sent last week to the House by Secretary Weeks, covering the offer of Henry Ford on the purchase and lease of the Government's properties at Muscle Shoals, Ala., were sent to the Senate late today by the Secretary.

At the request of Chairman Kahn of the House Military Affairs Committee Mr. Weeks agreed to appear before the body Wednesday to supplement his written report and explain in greater detail some opinions briefly expressed in writing regarding certain features of the Ford offer. The Secretary will be accompanied by Major Gen. Beach, Chief of Army Engineers; Major Gen. Williams, Chief of Ordnance, and Colonel Hull, Acting Judge Advocate General of the army, who constitute the heads of all the departmental branches which had to do with the negotiations conducted by the War Department for more than six months with Mr. Ford and his representatives.

Action on the plan of Senator Harris of Georgia to have the Senate Agriculture Committee begin consideration immediately of the Ford offer was delayed in the Senate today by the absence of several Senators interested in the subject. Mr. Harrison's motion to instruct the Agriculture Committee to begin work on the report was withdrawn, with the understanding that it may be renewed tomorrow.

DENIES HARDING'S REQUEST.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The House refused today to suspend its rules and pass a bill authorizing an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of food and clothing and other supplies for destitute Indians. With a two-thirds vote required, a motion made by Representative Cramton of Michigan to pass the bill by this method was lost, the vote being 154 for to 104 against.

Representative Riddick of Montana declared that he personally had investigated the situation at the Blackfeet reservation in Montana, where the Indian service had reported the situation especially bad, and found there was no need for Government relief.

President Harding, forwarding a request recently from the Interior Department for funds to relieve destitution on thirty Indian reservations, urged prompt action by Congress. A sum of $156,000 was asked, but this was cut by the House Appropriations Committee in favorably reporting the resolution.

Advocates of the measure said they planned to bring it up soon under a rule which would require only a majority vote for passage.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Senator King introduced in the Senate today two resolutions bearing on American relations with Haiti and Santo Domingo.

One calls on the Secretary of State to inform the Senate "by what authority" a loan of $14,000,000 is being negotiated in behalf of Haiti in the United States and directs the Secretary to supply details of the terms with the reasons for its flotation. The resolution stated that the loan is not desired by the Haitien people and asserts they regard it as unwarranted and illegal and against the best interests of their country.

The second resolution calls on the Secretary of the Navy to furnish to the Senate details of the cost to the United States of naval occupation of Haiti and Santo Domingo.

DANIELS ON BLOC-HEADISM.

Democrats Could Easily Win House Today, Says Ex-Secretary.

Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, who is at the Hotel Astor, declared in a brief discussion of the national political situation yesterday that if an election were to be held at this time the Democrats would carry the House "hands down," what with these blocs of one sort another—all the result of bloc-madism.

"As to the four-power treaty," he added, "let's have a real alliance—a forty-power treaty, admitting Portugal, Spain and other small nations. It stands to reason that a forty-horsepower vehicle will go faster and further than a four-horsepower one. There never was a small alliance that did not cause an opposing alliance to be formed."

Mr. Daniels said he had come here on business and would remain several days.

SAYS HYLAN DIDN'T GET PORT LETTE

ASSAILS RAILROADS' STAN

Declares If Present Harbor Facilities Are Adequate There Is No Need for Any Tunnel.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert issued a statement yesterday, explaining that Mayor Hylan had not personally received the letter from Samuel Rea, Acting Chairman of the Committee of Railroad Executives, refusing to join in the city's contemplated plan of port development. The letter was received at the Mayor's office the day before the hearing on the Port of New York Authority plan at Albany last Tuesday, and Eugenius H. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Port Authority, in making public Mr. Rea's letter, intimated that the city officials, who opposed the Port Authority plan at the hearing, had withheld the letter for fear of weakening their arguments.

"Upon inquiry, I found that this communication was received at the Mayor's office on the eve of Mayor Hylan's departure on a well-earned vacation," said Mr. Hulbert. "It was not brought to his personal attention but referred to his executive secretary, Captain Kain, who, upon his return from the hearing on the Port Authority bill at Albany, transmitted the communication in the ordinary course to Chief Engineer Arthur S. Tuttle, who as Chairman of the Tunnel Committee of the Board of Estimate, is carrying on negotiations with the Engineering Committee of the Railroad Executives."

The charge of Mr. Outerbridge that Mayor Hylan suppressed the letter was ridiculous, Mr. Hulbert said, because an examination of the letter showed that it could not have been used to any great advantage by the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in the presentation of the Mayor's case to the present considerations of the Meyer-Mastick bill. If, as the railroad executives point out, the present facilities are adequate, there is no more need for the tunnel proposed by the Port Authority than there is need for the tunnel proposed by the Legislature, which the Board of Estimate is unauthorized to construct in accordance with its mandate.

In an analysis of Mr. Rea's letter, Mr. Hulbert said that there seemed to be no reason for the existence of the Port Authority if the statements of the railroads were correct. Mr. Hulbert, however, did not accept these statements and said:

"The cool dismissal by the railroads of the invitation of the city to negotiate for the use of the State Island Tunnel is very curious if, in dismissing it, they show that its operating savings that would be effected through the use of the Narrows Tunnel on their own assumptions would be sufficient to pay 5½ per cent. on their own estimate of cost, or nearly 8% per cent. on the city's estimate.

"When it is remembered that the growing congestion of the New York passenger terminals will soon make necessary some means of trunking passenger access to the 2,500,000 people lying east of the harbor, such as is provided for adequately only under the Narrows Tunnel route, it will at once be appreciated that to their own admitting of freight saving should be added this anticipated passenger revenue.

"The analysis, it should also be noted, did not include any credit resulting from the freight movement from Staten Island piers. This, it is believed, will amount to more than $500,000 per annum, from this development alone, which will take place at once in Jamaica Bay or from other waterfront development which unquestionably will be inaugurated in the immediate future if such a belt line as has been under consideration were actually built.

"The narrow view of the proposition taken by the Railroad Executives' subject to the criticism heretofore made of the plan submitted by the Port Authority, in that the service proposed is largely limited to the particular group of New Jersey railroads which are in position to secure a direct connection with the Pennsylvania-Lehigh Valley Railroad low level trestle when its drawbridges over Newark Bay."

PORT BILL PASSAGE SURE

Republican Senators Pledge Support by Vote of 26 to 2.

The Senate Finance Committee will consider the bill in executive session tomorrow and will report it favorably, so that it will be on the Senate calendar for second reading on Wednesday.

SEES SHIPPING REVIVAL.

Steamship Owners' President Wants Government to Aid.

Belief that this year would be marked by steady improvement in the steamship business was expressed by H. H. Raymond, President of the American Steamship Owners' Association, in an address at that organization's annual meeting yesterday at 11 Broadway. Mr. Raymond reported that the total gross tonnage of steamships owned by companies that are members of the association aggregated 3,809,478, a gain of 345,400 tons over the tonnage in that year before.

"The past year, as we all know, has been a year of difficulty and world wide depression, but we are convinced that if the Federal Government keeps its pledge of giving the ocean shipping industry proper aid comparable with that long extended to other industries there will from now on be a steady improvement in the status of the American shipping trade

Reick, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. James's Protestant Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street, by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Crowder. Miss Reick was attended by her younger sister, Miss Louise Reick, as maid of honor, and the other attendants were the bride's elder sister, Mrs. Chandler Bates, Mrs. Reginald L. Hutchinson and the Misses Julia Domerich, Elizabeth Remson, Louise Baker and Virginia de Haven. Mr. Stearns's best man was Henry W. Wilson, and the ushers were William D. Fennell, William Ketcham, E. B. Dickinson, Francis M. Bangs, Donald Hyde, Clyde Martin and Thomas Eastman. The church ceremony was followed by a small reception for relatives and a few intimate friends at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Reick, 778 Madison Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda, and on their return will live at East Seventy-fifth Street.

Train-Miller Wedding.

George Francis Train, a grandson of Citizen George Francis Train, and Miss Gertrude Allan Miller, a daughter of Cyrus C. Miller, former Borough President of the Bronx, and Mrs. Miller, were married yesterday at the Church of the Transfiguration. The Rev. H. C. R. Thomas officiated. The young couple had not expected to be married until Fall, but a sudden order for Mr. Train to go to South Africa on business for six months made a change in their plans. The wedding was quiet, only the families and a few friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Train sail today on the Aquitania on their way to Cape Town. On their return they will make their home at 778 West End Avenue.

ARTHUR H. MURPHY, BRONX LEADER, DIES

He Had Been Democratic Chief Since the Borough Became a County in 1913.

WAS MEMBER OF TAX BOARD

He Served Six Years on Board of Aldermen and Ran for Borough President.

Arthur H. Murphy, long identified with the political life of the Bronx and Democratic leader there since the borough was made a county in 1913, died yesterday in St. Vincent's Hospital, where he had been operated on a week ago last Thursday for gall stones.

Following the operation Mr. Murphy showed a steady improvement and his friends looked for his speedy recovery. Early on Monday, however, a turn for the worse came, and the patient's family and immediate friends were notified and hurried to the hospital. At his bedside when he died were his wife, Mrs. Mary Murphy, and her son, Arthur Murphy Jr.

Mr. Murphy is survived by his wife, four daughters, the Misses Elizabeth Mary, Catherine and Ursula; three sons, Arthur H. Jr., John, Henry and Charles, and four sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Weyland, Mrs. Frances Conlon, Mrs. Edward McShane and Mrs. Rose Gillen. The three former live in the Bronx and the latter in Brooklyn. The funeral will be held Thursday morning from the family residence, 630 Crotona Park North, the Bronx. Burial will be in St. Raymond's Cemetery, the Bronx. Requiem mass will be celebrated in St. Joseph's Church, Bathgate and Tremont Avenues.

Mr. Murphy was 53 years old. He was born in the Eleventh Assembly District, Manhattan, and moved to the Bronx thirty years ago, where he engaged in the liquor business and was also interested in real estate holdings. He was educated in parochial schools and was a graduate of Ottawa University. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen from 1906 to 1909, and was an unsuccessful candidate for Borough President of the Bronx in the latter year. When the Bronx was made a county in 1913 he became Democratic leader and was later appointed a member of the Tax Board.

Many lawyers of the Bronx paid tribute to the dead leader. Dr. James A. Hamilton, Commissioner of Correction and President of the Arthur Murphy Association, said:

"In the death of Tax Commissioner Arthur H. Murphy the City of New York has lost an able real estate expert and public servant and the Democratic Party a worthy leader. The loss of his leadership will be hard to fill."

PAUL DURAND-RUEL DIES.

Famous Art Dealer Championed the Barbizons and Impressionists.

Paul Durand-Ruel, head of the Paris art firm of his name since 1862 and founder of the New York house, died Sunday in Paris in his ninety-first year of pneumonia. He had not been in this country for twenty-five years.

For many years M. Durand-Ruel was the only dealer to buy paintings of the Barbizon group, more properly the school of 1820, which included Corot, Daubigny and Dupre. In 1848 he purchased every work of Rousseau obtainable and held them for twenty years before he could sell any of them. At one time he had in his gallery 300 examples of Corot. Millet for many years derived his sole support from his advances.

The same exceptional appreciation and independence were shown in his encouragement of the so-called impressionists—Manet, Monet, Degas, Renior, Sisley, Pisarro and Puvis de Chavannes. At a public sale in 1873 the indignation aroused against this school made it necessary to summon the police. Canvases of Monet now worth thousands of dollars then went begging at $200 each.

His firm was in financial distress in 1886 and the next year M. Durand-Ruel came to New York, giving a notable exhibition of the painters he had championed at the National Academy of Design. The reception led to the establishment of the New York firm in 1887.

YOUNG HARPIST DIES.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 6.—Dorothy Ruth Wason, aged 7 years, but already well known for her playing on the harp, died at the Greenwich Hospital last night following an attack of acute appendicitis for which she had undergone an operation. Because of her age, physicians regard the case as unusual in medical circles.

Dorothy was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wason of Greenwich. She was a pupil of Miss Maud Morgan, the New York harpist, and at a recital given by Miss Morgan on Dec. 7, last, in Aeolian Hall, Dorothy appeared for the first time to her own accompaniment, "Love's Lullaby," the words and music of which were written by Augusta A. Stetson, C. S. D.

She had been heard at numerous society and social functions in Greenwich and elsewhere and her handling of the instrument was regarded as phenomenal for one so young in years.

ALLESANDRO FABBRI DIES OF PNEUMONIA

He Built Wireless Station at Bar Harbor and Made Motion Pictures of Microscopic Organisms.

Alessandro Fabbri, who built the wireless station at Bar Harbor, Me., through which most of the official communications between Washington and the battle fronts and the Peace Conference were exchanged, died after an illness of three days from pneumonia early yesterday morning at his home, 7 East Ninety-fifth Street.

Mr. Fabbri, who was a son of Ernesto G. Fabbri, a member of J. P. Morgan & Co., offered his radio station gratis to the United States Government early in the war. His offer was declined, but the plant was commandeered, and Mr. Fabbri, with the rank of a Lieutenant in the navy, was placed in command. His wireless station was picked by a commission of engineers and radio experts sent to this country by the Allies as the best station for their purposes on the Atlantic seaboard. After the Government had taken over the plant it paid Mr. Fabbri the amount of his estimated expenditures on it.

Mr. Fabbri, who achieved distinction as a naturalist, hunter, yachtsman, explorer and inventor, died as the result of a cold he contracted a week ago when he went duck hunting on Great South Bay with a party from the South Side Shooting Club, of which he was a member. He complained of having a chill when he returned home, but felt sufficiently recovered next day to venture out again. He contracted another chill and then developed pneumonia.

He perfected a moving picture machine with which it was possible to take pictures of microscopic organisms showing their development. This he worked out in connection with the experimental work of Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute.

Mr. Fabbri was born in this city 44 years ago. He was educated in Westminster School, Simsbury, Conn., and subsequently under private tutors abroad. When he began to make his research investigations he equipped himself with a laboratory which he kept expanding up to the time of his illness. Mr. Fabbri is survived by two brothers, Ernesto G. and Egisto Fabbri, all of whom made their home together. He is also survived by his mother, who lives in Florence, and four sisters, living abroad.

TWO WOMEN BURNED, TWO SAVED IN FIRE

SCALING LADDERS IN RESCUE

Two women were seriously burned, another was rescued by firemen with scaling ladders and a fourth, suffering from influenza, was rescued by a policeman in a fire that spread rapidly yesterday afternoon through the five-story tenement house at 314 and 316 West Sixteenth Street. The fire started in an apartment on the first floor and gained such headway before the arrival of the fire apparatus that Battalion Chief Edward Quinn sent in a second alarm and the reserves were called from the West Thirtieth Street Station.

Mrs. Lucille Pohlman, who occupied an apartment on the third floor, was burned about the face and body and was about to jump from a window to the street when Firemen Moinerny and Kern climbed the front of the building with scaling ladders and held her until an extension ladder was raised. Then they carried her to the street, where she was attended by Dr. Sciafe and later removed to New York Hospital with Mrs. Ethel Thorne, who had jumped to the yard from the window of her apartment on the second floor before the firemen arrived. Mrs. Thorne had suffered burns about the body and it was said at the hospital that her condition was critical.

The fire was discovered by George James, 7 years old, who lived with his parents in the rear of the first floor. He notified Policemen Vengenberg and Costa of the West Thirtieth Street Station. Vengenberg turned in an alarm and Costa hurried to the house, where he learned that Mrs. Gertrude Krist was trapped in her apartment. Neighbors told him the woman had been ill with influenza several days. Costa carried the woman to the street as the fire engines arrived. She was attended by Dr. Sciafe and taken to the apartment of a neighbor.

While directing the firemen Battalion Chief Oliver was struck in the face by a piece of glass from a window. He was attended for a cut under the right eye by the ambulance surgeon and remained on duty for forty-five minutes until the fire was under control.

The cause of the fire was a mystery. When young James smelled smoke shortly after 2 o'clock he ran into the hall to find flames belching through the door leading from the front apartment. By the time the firemen arrived the flames had spread to the opposite apartment and up three airshafts, mushrooming at each floor.

Thirty-two families occupy the house. Many of the tenants were out shopping and most of the others got to the street in safety when they heard the boy's warning cries. Mrs. Pohlman and Mrs. Thorne, however, did not hear the alarm and were cut off by flames from the airshafts. They ran through the flames to the windows, and their garments caught fire. Mrs. Pohlman managed to quench the flames, but Mrs. Thorne, in agony from her burns, jumped to the yard. The fire was confined to one side of the building.

On arrival of the reserves several policemen were stationed at the entrance to St. Joseph's Home for the Aged, which adjoins the tenement on the east, as a precautionary measure. None of the inmates was removed, however.

CITY GIVES FULL AID TO POOR, SAYS COLER

CITES FAKE COLLECTORS

Many Use "Poor Soldiers" as Lure, He Declares—Praises Efforts of Churches.

Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of the Department of Public Welfare, before the Government Club at the Hotel Astor yesterday pleaded that the people of the City of New York understand how much the municipal authorities are doing to relieve the sick and needy before they give their money to private organizations.

"If you want your money to go the whole distance," said Commissioner Coler, "find out what your taxes are doing, first."

The Commissioner described the work done by Social Service Committees connected with the various city hospitals, supplementing the help the Department of Public Welfare was permitted to give under the law. He declared that the city was making every effort now to stop collections on the street.

"We sent a man to jail, the other day," he said, "for collecting money for wounded soldiers. He had collected about $9,000, and I believe disabled veterans got about $50 out of the amount. Nowadays it's a good business, collecting for the 'poor soldiers.' All a person has to do is to get a tin can and go out on the streets. It is possible to make a pretty good living if you don't get caught."

"I want you all to remember that the City of New York has never turned down a real veteran when that veteran needed help. All such a man has to do is to present his proper papers showing that he has been a real soldier, and then, whether he served in the Mexican, the Spanish or the World War, he can get aid from the City of New York. We have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in this sort of work."

The Commissioner declared that in the last analysis, the churches were the best agencies for charitable work. He urged the 200 women present to "stick to their faith" in giving aid to the poor. Dr. Henry Clay Risher and Register Annie Matthews also spoke. Mrs. George E. Owens, President of the club, presided.

What did Michelangelo get for a Painting?

WHATEVER Michelangelo received, it was nothing compared to the value of the work to mankind.

For certain wares in which men deal—paintings and books, for instance—have a dual value. They have a marketable value because people want them, but their deeper value rests on the processes behind the making. You cannot touch, see, or hear these processes, for they exist only in the brains and characters of the makers.

A newspaper is one of these wares, and there is no currency for expressing the exact value of its service, any more than you can measure the value of electricity or of Abraham Lincoln.

As the translation and interpretation of the world's daily life it is like a crystal into which man gazes each day. What he sees this morning cannot but influence him today and tomorrow.

This mirror-like quality makes a newspaper in its characteristics the nearest like man of all man-made things and the most potent in its influence upon him, for it is man's own valuation of his daily life.

Because of this power for good or evil, a newspaper puts marked responsibility on two groups—those who make it and those who read it.

HARDING WON'T TAKE BONUS BILL BURDEN

MUST PROVIDE THE FUNDS

BOND ISSUE NOT FAVORED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee left the White House this afternoon after a conference of an hour and a half with President Harding, with an agreement still to be reached on methods of financing a soldier bonus.

The Republican legislators went to the conference hopeful that the President would indicate his preference among the many schemes brought forward for providing revenue for service men's "adjusted compensation." They found Mr. Harding unchanged in his position that, if the bonus is to be passed, Congress must accept the responsibility for finding the money.

Mr. Harding is understood to have told the Republican Senators and Representatives that he would not approve legislation that left the financing of the bonus still in the air. To other callers recently he has intimated that he would veto any measure that did not place on Congress full responsibility for raising the money as well as the bonus.

Bond Issue Not Favored.

Suggestions by some of the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee, including Chairman Fordney, for a bond issue to be backed by Government loans to Great Britain and France, did not meet the approval of the majority at this afternoon's conference. Mr. Fordney admitted that all forms of taxation were discussed, "with the exception of taxing China and Japan," and it is understood that one of the positive evidences was the opposition to any payments, at least, of proposals to link the bonus with the allied debt.

At the conclusion of the conference it was said that the matter would not be discussed further with President Harding until Republican Senators and Representatives had framed a measure to finance the bonus. This is taken as indicating that the President "stands pat" in his original position not to accept responsibility for his Administration for passage of any such legislation.

Chairman Fordney reiterated this afternoon his prediction that a bonus bill would be reported out of committee within two weeks in such shape as to be acceptable to Senate Republicans after it had passed the House with few, if any, amendments.

Worse of Farmers' Opposition.

Farmers will not stand for any more taxes "while profiteers go unscathed, as they did during the war," Benjamin C. Marsh, Managing Director of the Farmers' National Council, declared today at the hearing before the Ways and Means Committee considering soldier bonus legislation.

Mr. Marsh, expressing opposition to a sales tax or any other levy on consumption, urged restoration of the excess profits taxes. He contended that at least $1,000,000,000 a year could be raised by the Federal inheritance tax if steps were taken to prevent persons from avoiding it by transferring property as gifts before death.

Mr. Marsh and Chairman Fordney clashed at one point, the Chairman declaring the witness could not proceed unless he was more courteous, and civil. Mr. Marsh contended certain members of the committee were not courteous to him.

ACCEPTS FARM BLOC RATES.

Senate Committee Substitutes Many for Fordney Figures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Majority members of the Senate Finance Committee who are framing tariff rates on farm products are understood to have approved the recommendation of the Senate Republican Agricultural tariff bloc in the case of about two-thirds of the items thus far considered. These rates are generally higher than those in the Fordney bill.

Some of the items covered in the agricultural tariff bloc proposals, notably short staple cotton, are on the free list in the House bill. Committeemen declined to say what items had been agreed upon or the rates that had been fixed.

It was indicated that the committee would be busy several days more on specific rates. After these have been cleaned up the vexing question of the valuation principle to be written into the bill will be taken up.

COURTSHIP AIDS SWINDLE.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Posing as a wealthy New Yorker who was soon to marry the daughter of Louis Goldman, a Herman Street tailor, a versatile young man who introduced himself as Dr. Max Eastman succeeded Saturday in swindling two jewelers out of diamonds valued at $2,325 and attempted to get a ring valued at $1,000 from another jeweler. The latter declined to accept a check for the ring unless Goldman endorsed it. Eastman said he had been humiliated and walked out. Then he vanished. Today the police were asked to find him.

Eastman arrived here three weeks ago and made the acquaintance of Miss Goldman. He cards to be known as a wealthy young physician. Goldman was not averse to having him as a son-in-law. Goldman went to Harry A. Hurwits, a jeweler he had known for years, and said his prospective son-in-law wished to buy a diamond ring. Hurwits called at Goldman's home with a ring gem. There he met Dr. Eastman, who examined the stone and gave a check to Hurwits. Hurwits found the check was worthless. Stuart Darshag, another jeweler, was defrauded out of two rings, valued at $1,000, in the same manner. Eastman represented himself to be a friend of Dr. Wolin, a prominent Jewish physician in Rochester, and was received without question at the homes of Dr. Wolin's friends.

Checking Creek Revolvers Is Chicago Saloon Industry

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—There are millions in Chicago where checking revolvers for bandits and burglars is the chief source of income to the proprietors, according to the statements of police officials, judges and officers of civic organizations for the suppression of crime at a meeting held here today.

These clearing houses have done more to allow the carrying of weapons and keep up the crime wave than any other one factor, they said.

The system of checking revolvers was described by Detective Chief Hughes, who said that an intelligent criminal did not carry a revolver, except when he was out to commit a crime.

"They don't jeopardize their freedom by carrying concealed weapons around," he said.

FOCH OUTLINES HIS RULES FOR SUCCESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Le Petit Parisien publishes an interesting interview with Marshal Foch by Charles Le Goffic, a well-known French author, whose book on his experiences when fighting with a brigade of Breton marines classed him among the foremost descriptive writers of the great war.

Marshal Foch, having briefly sketched to Le Goffic the history of his youth and military career, of which the salient facts frequently have been told, continues by refuting certain stories spread lately. The great soldier denies, for instance, that during his recent American voyage he was won over to teetotal doctrines and practices.

"The truth is," said the Marshal, "that I drink two glasses of wine with every meal—two glasses of Bordeaux. That's not too much, I think, but it is enough, and in all things I like a reasonable measure. Without being a gourmet, without having a marked preference for any special cuisine, I have an appetite and eat well—and quickly. It is not good to sacrifice too much to the beast. And, anyhow, I am always in a hurry to get back to my pipe. My pipe is my vice.

"I no longer ride horseback, perhaps because I did so much riding in the past. Yes, for forty years, less from conviction than from duty, because it formed part of my military creed that in wartime one would always have to ride horseback. I rode every morning, Summer and Winter, from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. And look at the irony of fate. When the war broke out for four years, except during a few parade ceremonies, I was obliged to conceal my love of my equestrian talents. In other words, I ceased to ride when I began to fight. It's funny."

Replying to the question whether it was true that he was an optimist in life, General Foch replied: "People are wrong about optimism and pessimism—words without meaning. Optimism is nothing but a temperature. In any case it has nothing to do with war nor with action, generally speaking.

"Yes, my friends may well have taken me for an inveterate optimist. Why? Just because I always turn my eyes toward success, not failure. I involuntarily turn my back on disaster and eliminate the hypothesis of failure.

"This is my philosophy of action: Every time you've a task before you examine it carefully, take exact measure of what is expected of you. Then make your plan, and in order to execute it properly create for yourself a method. Never improvise. The fundamental qualities for good execution of a plan are, first, naturally, intelligence; then discernment and judgment which enable one to recognize the best methods to attain it; then singleness of purpose, and, lastly, what is the most essential of all, namely, will—stubborn will.

"A leader is, above all things, an animator. His thought and faith must be communicated to those he leads. He and they must form but one at the moment of executing a plan. That is the essential condition of success."

RAIL UNIONS NOW SEEK TO END GERMAN STRIKE

After Getting Assurances From Government, They Decide to Ask Men to Return to Work.

BERLIN, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Representatives of the Railway Union, it is unofficially stated, have approved the assurances given at parleys for arranging a settlement of the railroad strike and in consequence the leading labor organization will issue an appeal to the strikers to resume work.

The decision of the Railway Union representatives came after a protracted conference attended by Andreas Hermes, Minister of Food and Acting Minister of Finance, and officials of the General Federation of Labor Unions and of independent organizations. At this conference the Government gave the striking railroad men and the organizations pleading for them assurance that the disputed wage schedule and the reclassification of workers would be adjudicated immediately.

The Burgomaster of Berlin has notified the striking public service workers that their jobs will be forfeited unless they resume by noon tomorrow. Emergency orders have been issued for the gas, water and power plants, although the coal shortage threatens continuation of gas illumination.

The strike of public utility employes is hampering hospital work and making it impossible in many instances to obtain physicians for sick in homes.

Radical agitators, it is charged by the Police President, are trying to use the strike for political purposes, openly advocating a general strike.

BIG ENGLISH ROADS MERGE THEIR LINES

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Manchester Guardian announces today the fusion of the greatest two English railroads—the Midland & London and the Northwestern. Each has a capital of £200,000,000 (roughly $871,250,000), and together they own 14,122 miles of track and 5,000 locomotives.

The amalgamation is a result of the Government grouping of railways for administrative purposes and is simply anticipating making a closer union which would be enforced later.

The administration will be concentrated at Euston Station, London, and great economies will be brought about.

INDIAN MOB KILLS SEVENTEEN POLICE

RIOTERS SHOT AT BAREILLY

LONDON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press.)—Renewed rioting in several parts of India, involving the killing of at least seventeen police officials and four members of attacking parties, in addition to the wounding of a number of persons and some destruction to property, occurred over the week-end, simultaneously with the issuance of a declaration by the non-co-operationist leader, Gandhi, that civil disobedience would become effective unless the Government granted amnesty.

On Saturday police officers at Chauri, on the Bengal Northwestern Railway, were stormed by Indian Nationalist Volunteers. The mob of 2,000 killed the entire staff and a watchman and eight armed policemen who were rushed to the scene to give aid to the staff. Then the Nationalists burned the offices and stripped the bodies of those killed and burned them.

On the same day rioting took place at Bareilly, in the Middle United Provinces, where several attempts were made by a large crowd of volunteers to seize Town Hall. Insufficient police forces charged them without success, and then were ordered to fire. The mob eventually was put to rout after two persons had been killed and five others wounded, among them the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police.

Gandhi's declaration was made in a letter to the Viceroy. He said he was prepared to advise postponement of civil disobedience until the whole situation was considered anew if the Viceroy was ready within seven days to declare all political prisoners liberated and the freedom of association and the press restored. He asserted the Government's repressive policy made the adoption of civil disobedience immediately imperative and that the non-co-operators under the existing circumstances were unwilling to attend the proposed conferences.

The Government of Madras has issued its first statement regarding the progress of civil disobedience in Madras, showing that at the end of January peasants were beginning to pay taxes previously withheld and that even some of the leaders of the agitation were coming forward with their taxes, lest their property be confiscated.

Arriving in Bombay on Saturday, Prince Aga Khan, spiritual head of the Mohammedans in India, declared he was working his hardest to secure a favorable settlement of the Khalifat question. He counseled the Indians never to despair, but that it was necessary that co-operators and non-co-operators should work together in the interest of the country.

A serious riot of mill workers in the Pondicherri settlement of French India took place on Thursday, according to a London Times dispatch from Madras. Several thousand men employed in the mill demanded more pay, and many of them went on strike. Then the extreme section barricaded themselves in the mill and assaulted the supervising staff.

Police reserves were summoned and are reported to have fired on the crowd, but inflicted no casualties. The Governor of Pondicherri and the Mayor interviewed the strikers, but could not bring them to terms. There was a further collision with the police, and the mills, owned by a prominent Madras firm, are now closed.

VEILED WOMAN RULER HAS WALES AS GUEST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BHOPAL, Feb. 4.—The Prince of Wales began a visit today to the only woman who maintains princely state in India.

Jehan, Begum of Bhopal, is the only one of her sex now occupying the throne and wielding the powers of life and death within her territories. For over twenty years she has held this position. She has used her great authority with unfailing judgment and industry, and always with the happiness of her subjects as the sole end and aim of her policy and action.

She has strictly maintained the rule of Islam as to concealment of the faces of women. At the coronation in 1911 she was a strangely veiled figure. It was the same veiled, dignified and wholly invisible Princess who went down to the station today to greet the Prince and who an hour or two later received in due form within her palace walls the visit of her royal guest.

Within a white and sunny courtyard, set with scarlet pathways and a shimmer of green water ruffled by a perpetual fall of iridescent spray, the Court of Bhopal gathered in honor of the Prince.

It was understood that the real story of the Durbar Hall was displayed. Nowhere else throughout the tour has such profusion of rich silk and golden embroidery been shown. Into this Arabian Nights vision the Begum led the Prince of Wales and the time-honored ritual of the formal ceremony of welcome was gone through.

RAND MINERS DEFIANT.

Strikers Call on M. P.'s at Pretoria to Proclaim a Republic.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (Associated Press)—The strike situation in South Africa appears to be working toward a crisis, according to Johannesburg messages.

Dispatches to the Exchange Telegraph Company and the Central News say that amid wild cheering a huge meeting of mine strikers Sunday passed a resolution requesting those members of Parliament now in Pretoria to proclaim a Provisional Government and declare a Republic.

Reuter's Johannesburg correspondent details various disorders. Several isolated attempts have been made in the last few days to wreck railway lines, and a concerted attack was made Saturday on the mine telephones, but was frustrated by the police.

At a mass meeting held in the Town Hall the Chairman intimated that despite the negotiations in progress with Premier Smuts, all the strikers must obey orders and "pull out" all strike-breakers. Another speaker warned the officials who are working the essential services that they would be "pulled out" Monday.

A Pretoria dispatch states that Premier Smuts, with F. S. Malan, the Minister of Mines and Industries, is conferring with deputations of the Industrial Federation and the Chamber of Mines in an attempt to reach a settlement of the labor dispute which has tied up the Rand gold mining district for the better part of a month.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 6.—From Reval the steamer Gladiator has reached Stockholm, with from thirty-five to forty tons of gold, or 100,000,000 to 120,000,000 kroner, said to be the largest amount of gold which ever arrived in that city. It is consigned from the Soviet Government to two banks in Stockholm, but most of it will be forwarded to western European countries.

Says Color Electrons Are Vital to Atoms, Binding Positive and Negative Together

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Daily Mail's scientific correspondent writes:

"A remarkable theory has been evolved by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh as a result of philosophical calculations dealing with the constitution of matter, which, as we now know, is composed in all cases of electrons, or negatively electrified particles, attached to central charges of positive electricity. The result of his work, says Lord Clifford, has established that all wave lengths that are smaller than 34,360 to the inch are what we term positive electricity, and all wave lengths above 68,720 and below 103,078 to the inch constitute negative electrons.

"Intermediate waves, Lord Clifford suggests, should be called 'color electrons,' as all shades of color are produced by these waves of electricity. Radiations of ether, which produce color, are essential, according to this theory, to the adhesion of negative and positive electricity which constitutes atoms.

"The new theory suggests that electrons themselves are inseparable from ether waves, and once the wave length can be found of radiation, responsible for the combination of any one electron with any other, we shall be able to calculate the conditions under which elements are formed. It opens up a vista of unlimited alchemy, and foreshadows the day when the chemist will be able to make just what he desires.

"Lord Clifford stated yesterday: 'I intend to try to ascertain, if possible, the relative figure at which waves of electricity move to create elements of matter, but I am afraid that until the electrical experimenters have carried their work further, it will be a difficult undertaking.'"

SAYS BURLESON PLEADED WITH HIM

George Sylvester Viereck, former editor of Fatherland, testifying yesterday at the hearing in the libel suit of Mayor W. H. Thompson of Chicago against The Chicago Tribune, said that former Postmaster General Albert S. Burleson and United States Senator Stone, then Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, pleaded with him for the support of the German-Americans in the campaign of Woodrow Wilson in 1916. Viereck declared that both Republican and Democratic party leaders had consulted him during that Presidential campaign.

The Republicans were successful in enlisting his aid in behalf of Secretary of State Hughes, the Republican nominee, he said. He named Count Von Bernstorff, then German Ambassador, as among the many who sought him in behalf of Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Viereck told Commissioner Thomas W. Henry, appointed by the Illinois court to take testimony of New York witnesses, that a Major Dickinson, who had offices with the National Democratic Committee, had arranged a conference for him with Senator Stone and Postmaster General Burleson. At this conference Burleson, the witness testified, assured him that President Wilson was "purely and absolutely neutral."

His sworn statement Miss Birkhead charges that the alleged seduction took place in Mr. Russell's private office at the State House in July, 1918.

Miss Birkhead alleges that soon after she accepted employment as a stenographer in Mr. Russell's office his attitude became more than friendly and that declarations of love and promise of marriage quickly followed, the marriage to take place when he could obtain a divorce from his wife, whom, he told her, he hated. Mr. Russell told her, he was not happy. Under these promises, she avers, she consented to clandestine meetings and "yielded to his will."

In October, 1918, Miss Birkhead's statement declares, she grew fearful of becoming a mother and brought the aid of Mr. Russell, who, according to her statement, suggested self-treatment, and advised consultation of a physician only if it became imperative. She later visited physicians in Memphis and New Orleans, she asserted.

"When it became evident that Governor Russell was not going to furnish me the necessary funds to go to some hospital, as suggested by his own statement confirmed, I decided that I would of necessity have to adopt his suggestions, and told him I would consent to the operation."

This operation, she alleges, was performed at Memphis and was followed by serious illness. A trip to Atlantic City at Mr. Russell's expense followed, Miss Birkhead declares, and efforts were made later through his agents to effect a financial settlement.

The Governor in his statement asserts that Miss Birkhead made in 1918 similar charges against a prominent citizen of Jackson and that when her campaign failed she began to frame a plot against himself, aided by his political enemies. He appeals to the people of Mississippi to withhold their judgment on this "villainous issue," which he stands ready to meet.

BOYS SEIZED AS ROBBERS.

Police Say One, Who Got Tired, Betrayed Two Others.

Albert Schmidt, 14, of 58 Division Street, Jamaica; Albert Kruger, 15, of Baldwin, L. I., and Herbert Sofield, 15, of Great Neck, L. I., according to police charges, robbed an army store across from the Jamaica Police Station of $15 and clothing late Sunday night. Sofield, derided as a sleepyhead by his companions, wanted to call it a night. The others insisted on further operations. Sofield got mad and "peached" to a policeman and detectives gathered in the two others.

Kruger escaped from the Rochester Trade School and reached Jamaica Saturday night, the police said. The boys, it is thought, tried to break into another army store that night and failed, but eluded twenty-one policemen sent to capture them. Just before that, the police say, they had taken 90 cents from the cash register of a butcher shop. The police say Kruger committed thirty burglaries in his home town, Schmidt, they said, held up another boy and robbed him of $4, picked four locks in an effort to escape from the Children's Shelter in Brooklyn, and snatched a pistol from the pocket of a policeman who arrested him in Jersey City.

Royalist Plot in Czechoslovakia.

PRAGUE, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—A number of persons belonging to the Christian Social Party of Czechoslovakia, including Count Berchtold, a brother of the former Foreign Minister of Austria-Hungary, have been arrested on charges of plotting against the Republic. Several persons implicated in the alleged plot are said to have taken refuge in Hungary.

THEATRE OWNER DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.—R. W. Bulkley, principal owner of the Knickerbocker Theatre, which collapsed in Washington on Jan. 29, died tonight in the home of Mrs. Fred M. Farwell, 146 Chilean Avenue. Physicians say he suffered from heart disease, and that it was apparently worry over the disaster which brought about the attack.

Mr. Bulkley has a Winter home, the Palmetto Plantation, four miles west of Jupiter, which is seventeen miles north of here. He heard of the theatre disaster through the local papers, and at the time came to West Palm Beach to send telegrams, saying that he was horrified beyond words. He became ill soon afterward, and was taken to Mrs. Farwell's home on Feb. 2. He was about 57 years old.

WOMAN ACCUSES GOVERNOR RUSSELL

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 6.—A $100,000 damage suit, alleging seduction, was filed by Miss Frances G. Birkhead, a stenographer, against Lee N. Russell, Governor of Mississippi, in the Federal District Court today, and officials say it means one of the bitterest legal and political fights in the history of the State.

Governor Russell refused to discuss the suit further than to declare it "the most damnable blackmail conspiracy in the history of Mississippi." Friends of the Governor, however, said that it did not come entirely as a surprise, rumors of such an action having been more or less common gossip in political circles.

In her bill of particulars, Miss Birkhead asks $50,000 on each of two counts. The first, alleging seduction, avers that she was persuaded to "yield to his will," and that as a result plaintiff's reputation and character were ruined, and she was caused to lose her employment, and her health was ruined, to her great damage, in the sum of $50,000."

In the second count Miss Birkhead alleges that she underwent an illegal operation "at the instigation of Governor Russell, which totally ruined and wrecked her health, causing her to suffer untold anguish and pain, and that she is now an invalid and must remain so the rest of her life."

In a sworn statement Miss Birkhead charges that the alleged seduction took place in Mr. Russell's private office at the State House in July, 1918.

Miss Birkhead alleges that soon after she accepted employment as a stenographer in Mr. Russell's office his attitude became more than friendly and that declarations of love and promise of marriage quickly followed, the marriage to take place when he could obtain a divorce from his wife, whom, he told her, he hated. Mr. Russell told her, he was not happy. Under these promises, she avers, she consented to clandestine meetings and "yielded to his will."

In October, 1918, Miss Birkhead's statement declares, she grew fearful of becoming a mother and brought the aid of Mr. Russell, who, according to her statement, suggested self-treatment, and advised consultation of a physician only if it became imperative. She later visited physicians in Memphis and New Orleans, she asserted.

"When it became evident that Governor Russell was not going to furnish me the necessary funds to go to some hospital, as suggested by his own statement confirmed, I decided that I would of necessity have to adopt his suggestions, and told him I would consent to the operation."

This operation, she alleges, was performed at Memphis and was followed by serious illness. A trip to Atlantic City at Mr. Russell's expense followed, Miss Birkhead declares, and efforts were made later through his agents to effect a financial settlement.

The Governor in his statement asserts that Miss Birkhead made in 1918 similar charges against a prominent citizen of Jackson and that when her campaign failed she began to frame a plot against himself, aided by his political enemies. He appeals to the people of Mississippi to withhold their judgment on this "villainous issue," which he stands ready to meet.

DEATHS BRING MORE RUM CONVICTIONS

Colonel Hayward Says Federal Jury Rate Has Risen From 10 to 73 Per Cent.

MANY ARE SENT TO JAIL

Poison liquor deaths have caused a change in the attitude of Federal juries toward rum law violators, said Colonel William Hayward, United States District Attorney, yesterday. "Before the first of the year only one in ten liquor defendants was found guilty, but since Jan. 1, with its wake of wood alcohol victims, juries have maintained a 73 per cent. average of convictions.

This showing, according to Assistant District Attorney Victor House, compares favorably with the record of convictions for other Federal crimes, such as counterfeiting, smuggling and dealing in narcotics. He said that out of the twenty-two cases tried in Manhattan since Jan. 5 last convictions had been obtained in sixteen cases, while thirty-three defendants had entered pleas of guilty when their time for trial came. As for the attitude toward the State act, twenty-five alleged offenders against the Mullan-Gage law were before County Judge McLaughlin in Brooklyn yesterday and fifteen of the defendants pleaded guilty.

In the cases of the thirty-three Federal defendants who pleaded guilty Mr. House's records disclosed that twenty-three were sentenced to serve two weeks in jail, one was committed for three months, two for two months, two got two days in jail while the remainder received fines of from $25 to $500.

"In my opinion," he said, "the change of sentiment by juries is largely attributable to the recent deaths caused by wood alcohol poisoning."

Acting on a rumor that the La Brocque Warehouse, in Newark, which holds thousands of dollars' worth of seized liquors, was to be destroyed, twenty agents were sent there to guard it.

Eight members of the crew of the tug Harbinger seized on Sunday night were sent to Newark yesterday for examination.

Chief City Prohibition Agent Chris Fortman and five of his agents yesterday made and raised six barrels and five of whisky in what they called the first blow toward smashing a bootlegging band operating between this city and Pennsylvania.

A truck which came across the Christopher Street Ferry was followed to Allen Street and seized. Samuel Lasster, wholesale butcher, of 102 Second Street, Bethlehem, Pa., and Irving Huber, a chauffeur, of 13 West North Street, Bethlehem, Pa., were arrested for illegally transporting whisky.

IDLE HOME BREWER SLAYS HIS FRIEND

Several weeks ago Thomas Sullivan, truckman, installed a five-gallon still in the two rooms that he, his wife and their five-year-old child occupied in the basement of 354 West Eighteenth Street. After much experimentation Sullivan, according to the police, began to produce home-brew with a kick.

So strong was the liquor and so well did Sullivan like it, the detectives added, that a week ago he was discharged by a big downtown trucking company. There were no funds to speak of available and when Sullivan failed to get work, his wife got a job and the five-year-old ran errands for neighbors to earn pennies.

Yesterday, the police said, Sullivan looked up his friend, Henry Schaeffer, also a truckman, who lived at 513 West Nineteenth Street. Schaeffer's family, besides his wife, included three children, 10 years old, 5 years old and 2-year-old Peter. Whether the truckman sampled Sullivan's brew or got it elsewhere the police did not know, but at about 5 o'clock last night the two men resorted to Sullivan's cellar flat. Peter Schaeffer, rather tired out by the day with the two men, was still with them when the Sullivan flat was reached.

Soon thereafter Mrs. Sullivan returned from work. According to the police, she entered the flat, saw what was going on, but said nothing, merely bursting into tears. This, the detectives said, infuriated her husband and he demanded that Schaeffer "hand up with my friend." Indicating Schaeffer, Mrs. Sullivan, it was said, had known Schaeffer before her marriage, but she refused to do as she was bid.

A quarrel between husband and wife then developed and charges were flung back and forth. While this was at its height, little Peter Schaeffer, who had wandered out to sit on the steps leading into the basement, re-entered. He saw a boy belonging to Sullivan's child, and his cries of fear halted the quarrel. The lull was momentary. The argument was renewed with increased vehemence.

Then, as his wife looked on helplessly from the doorway of the adjoining room and as the boy played with the toy in the corner of the room, Sullivan attacked Schaeffer. The men fought back and forth in the small room, upsetting furniture and, as they backed against walls, knocking pictures to the floor.

Finally, the police said Sullivan freed himself and snatched up the lid of a big butter crock. He brought the heavy stone down on the head of his friend, and Schaeffer staggered and fell, his head striking the stove. He got to his feet and came back, but again was sent crashing to the floor. This time his head plunged through a window and he was still.

The sounds of the fight had been heard and neighbors got Policeman Francis Hunt of the West Thirtieth Street Station. Hunt summoned Dr. Nute from New York Hospital, who said Schaeffer was dead. In his hand, tightly held, was one of his son Peter's brown mittens.

Meanwhile Sullivan had disappeared. A general alarm was issued for him last night. Both Mrs. Schaeffer and Mrs. Sullivan are in delicate health.

LINCOLN PLANT REOPENS.

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—The Lincoln Motor Company plant reopened today and W. C. Leland, Vice President and General Manager, said, that the orders for cars during the day would exceed $1,000,000 in value.

A hopeful army of men began to form in line at the plant before dawn this morning, despite the announcement Saturday that only such men would be taken on as were notified in advance. The former workers are to have first chance. These will be taken back in groups as there is work for them.

Henry and Edsel Ford arrived in the morning for an inspection of the plant. There was a conference, after which it was announced that "an effort is being made to make out some definite program."

Wants Hand Organs Forbidden To Play the National Anthem

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—A bill to prohibit the playing of the national anthem on street hand organs and other musical instruments in public where a private collection is taken, will be introduced this week by Assemblyman Arthur H. Brundage, Orange County Republican.

POSE AS HORSEMEN; GET A STABLE STILL

BLAST WRECKS DWELLING

Still in Janitor's Quarters Explodes as Tenants Flee in Bomb Panic.

The versatile Izzy Einstein, prohibition agent chameleon, yesterday became a hostler and captured the biggest still in his or the city's home-brew history. Almost at the hour that Izzy was making his raid on a Greenwich Village stable, another still, operated by a janitor in East Twenty-sixth Street, blew up, rocking a tenement and driving twenty families in a "bomb" panic to the street.

A tip caused Einstein to tell his raiding companion, "Moe" Smith, to make himself look like a stableman about three days ago. Izzy and Smith, looking as if they had spent all their lives in a White Horse Cellar, began to hang around "—as Izzy put it—Leo Lotterie's stable at 33 Perry Street. And all the time, he added, Moe and he were sniffing and watchin' and waiting for a clue. Eventually, he declared yesterday, he and the stableman got chummy, and yesterday last he persuaded United States Commissioner Hitchcock to issue a search warrant for the Perry Street stable.

Armed with the warrant and reinforced by Chief City Agent Chris Fortman, the agents, minus their "beards" togs, swooped down on the premises. Down in a specially constructed room in a corner of the basement the agents declared they found the still. It was about eight feet high and had a capacity of between 200 and 300 gallons, supplemented by an auxiliary still with a capacity of about fifty gallons.

Unlike the stills that agents have come across so far in their seizures, the apparatus captured was designed solely for redistilling. According to the agents, the plan pursued was to go into the market and purchase large quantities of denatured alcohol, unfit for beverage purposes, untaxed and designed for use in the manufacture of toilet waters and tonsorial preparations. About 350 gallons of redistilled alcohol were found, and the product, they said, was almost as poisonous in its redistilled form as in the original. The plant, the agents said, had cost more than $3,000 to install.

In addition to Letterie, the agents arrested Corrup Cliberti and Veineco Briguglio, helpers in the stable.

As the result of a still explosion that shook the tenement at 235 East Twenty-sixth Street, the police arrested Carl Gabbert, 68 years old, the janitor, after surgeons at Bellevue Hospital had treated him for severe burns of the head and hands. The police charged Gabbert with operating a fifty-gallon still in the three-room janitor's apartment in the basement of the tenement.

Housewives in the house were just beginning to prepare suppers when there came a roar like the explosion of a bomb. All of the windows of the apartments on the first floor crashed out on the sidewalk to join the fragments of the windows of Gabbert's basement apartment. Women and children of the twenty families ran down the stairs and out onto the street, where their cries drew a crowd that jammed the street from Second to Third Avenue. Tenants in other houses poured out into the street to ascertain the cause of the explosion and the screams that chorused after it.

The reserves of the East Twenty-second Street Station were called. The policeman reported the finding of what was left of the still in Gabbert's home and also told how great clots of mash had been shot in all directions to stick where it struck.

CURLEY SEEKS 5-CENT FARE

Boston Mayor Asserts Appeal Will Be Made to Legislature.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—Restoration of the 5-cent fare for street car rides within the limits of this city will be sought of the Legislature at once, Mayor Curley announced in his inaugural address today. The present unit fare is 10 cents, with some short hauls on a 5-cent basis.

The Mayor recommended the creation of a municipal employment bureau "as a means of aiding the service man to maintain his American independence, and his family without aid from the municipality." He said that an alarming increase in the costs of the soldiers' relief department reflected neglect by Federal authorities.

He called on the Legislature to cease "undue, unwarranted and unwelcome interference with Boston in the conduct of its own business."

TRENTON, Feb. 6.—The Republican Joint Conference Committee of the Legislature tonight rejected the prohibition enforcement bills drawn by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, to take the place of the Van Ness act, set aside last week by the Court of Errors and Appeals as unconstitutional. Assemblyman Hobart of Essex County, who aided in the preparation of the rejected measures, was instructed by the conference to draft legislation which in essentials will duplicate the Volstead act. Stringent search and seizure measures, together with bills for injunction and abatement, brought about the downfall of the measures submitted.

Mr. Hobart plans to have his bill ready for the committee next Monday. If it is approved it will be introduced in the Assembly that evening.

BRITISH INSURANCE OFFICE HERE SEIZED

LONDONERS HEAVY LOSERS

General Dawson and Lord Ribblesdale Said to Have Offered a "Salvation" Fund.

DIVIDENDS WERE LIBERAL

Company Said to Have Increased Them to 50 and 200% on Two Classes of Stock.

The State Superintendent of Insurance was directed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ford to take possession of the United States branch of the City Equitable Fire Insurance Co., Ltd., of London, of which Brig. Gen. Sir Douglas Dawson, State Chamberlain to the Court, who is in charge of the arrangements for Princess Mary's wedding, and Lord Ribblesdale, husband of the former Mrs. John Astor, are Directors.

An investigation of the United States branch, at 26 Beaver Street, of which Siebel, Collins & Co., are managers, was ordered by the State Insurance Superintendent after cable advice had been received here that a provisional liquidator had been appointed for the company in London, and that many persons high in society there were confronted with large losses.

The application by the Insurance Superintendent was made to Justice Ford yesterday by Attorney General Newton, upon the report of Richard A. Elmer, an examiner, who investigated the condition of the American branch. He reported that the company's affairs were such that further transaction of business would be hazardous to policyholders, creditors and the public, because the capital statement of the branch showed an impairment of $1,000,000. A. Terry Pest, secretary of Siebel, Collins & Co., consented to the order.

The report of Examiner Elmer says that although the City Equitable has reinsured virtually all its unearned premium liability with the Underwriters Fire Insurance Company, and thereby has improved its condition somewhat, "it is doubtful whether the assets will be sufficient to pay all creditors after the payment of reinsurance premiums."

The examiner's report says that the company has $224,080 deposited in New York, and $100,000 in Ohio, while the total value of the securities held in the United States branch, including the deposits, is $1,065,000. The minimum deposit capital of $200,000, the impairment is of the amount named.

The report says that the City Equitable reinsured its policies with the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance Company, under a contract by which the City Equitable is liable for 4 per cent. of the unearned premiums, and must pay $1,300,000 additional.

A cable message attached to the Insurance Superintendent's petition was from the head of the United States branch, now in London, and said that while

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The two points of interest in financial markets as the week began were the activity and strength shown by outstanding investment bonds in the face of the pending subscriptions to large new loans, and the firmness of European exchange. The sterling market, which had risen nearly 5 cents last week and 16 cents from January's lowest, was naturally confronted yesterday with heavy profit-taking sales, coming from speculators and probably also from merchants who were anticipating payments on foreign markets for merchandise shipped abroad. The rate declined to a figure nearly 2 cents under Saturday's highest, but before the end of the day it was back again at last week's top rate of $4.33⅛.

French exchange moved similarly; both closed at the best. Maintenance or enhancement of these present valuations for exchange on European markets outside of the central nations would pretty much settle the question why the rates should have risen so violently and persistently since November. People who are seeking for some special and all-controlling cause in the events of recent weeks are apt to forget that, long after economic recovery in such countries as England and France was strikingly evident last Autumn, the American banking community was discussing the "financial collapse" which was bound to follow Germany's declaration of inability to keep up reparations payments.

Despite the lately familiar irregularity and a fractional decline in the United States war loans, there were numerous advances in the investment bond market. But the mere question of a further rise is less important than the fact of the present stability of values at a moment when the Great Northern Railway's $30,000,000 new loan and the $75,000,000 Federal Land Bank bonds were being taken by investors. Each test of this kind is of high interest, because there can be little doubt that, in addition to home borrowings of this kind, the absorption of European securities by American investors is only in its beginning. A year or two ago, a good part of the banking community would have doubted the possibility of our market taking without the depression of outstanding securities even the new loans which it has absorbed already. But Wall Street has never yet in its history failed to underestimate the investing power of the American market after a period of liquidation and retrenchment. The recent readjustment occurred, moreover, as the course of our gold reserve has indicated, at a time when the actual capital resources of the country were of wholly unprecedented magnitude. In such an international situation as now exists, economic logic and economic forces are extremely apt to have their own way in the long run, regardless of even expert incredulity.

Yesterday's stock market went higher on a good-sized volume of business. There were fairly numerous advances of a point or more, but as a rule the day's changes were fractional. No measure of the existing financial position would be complete which did not take account of yesterday's rise of nearly 4 cents a bushel in wheat for delivery in May. This brought the price, at $1.25⅝, to the highest since the last week of September and to a figure very nearly 20 cents per bushel above the $1.09 at which wheat sold in Chicago as recently as Jan. 11.

In some respects the wheat market is the key to the situation—not because wheat around $1 would stand permanently in the way of trade revival but because, with prices of other commodities where they stand today, it would undoubtedly postpone it. Whether the eventual value of wheat on the world's markets will greatly exceed the dollar price is no doubt a debatable matter; we are long past the time when even infatuated grain speculators could talk, as they did in 1920, of "four-dollar wheat with the Government guarantee removed." But there is no dispute over the agricultural distress and the curtailment of national purchasing power which were bound to attend continued depreciation in the grain markets, so greatly out of proportion to the cost of the farmer's necessaries.

Money on call on the Stock Exchange opened and renewed at 5½ per cent., dropped to 5 in the second hour, at which figure it ruled for the remainder of the session. In the outside market, loans were arranged at 4½ per cent. Funds were in plentiful supply, the lower rate coming as a result of liberal offerings. The time money market was dull, with no important trades reported, brokers bidding 4½ and banks holding funds at 5 per cent., both classes, all maturities. Discounts were unchanged in both commercial credit markets—on choice name merchants' paper and prime eligible acceptances up to 120 days.

TO REVIEW STATUS OF RAIL WAGE AIMS

Committee of Eastern Managers Will Meet Preliminary to the Hoover Conference.

LIST ROADS TO TAKE PART

The Conference Committee of Managers of Eastern Railways will meet tomorrow to review the status of wage negotiations leading up to the regional conferences suggested recently by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, according to John G. Walber, Chairman of the Bureau of Information for Eastern Railways. All of the fifty-five roads in the territory East of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio have finished with their individual wage conferences, Mr. Walber said, and have filed all disputes with the Railway Labor Board involving the shop crafts. Only about six cases bearing on differences with the train-service men have been submitted to the board, however, as most of the companies chose to await the outcome of the regional negotiations with the brotherhood chiefs.

Commenting on Secretary Hoover's proposal the Association of Railway Executives passed a resolution making participation optional on the part of each railroad. The committee of managers is now conducting a canvass of all the roads, Mr. Walber explained, to ascertain how many wish to be represented in the conference with the union heads. F. E. Crowley, Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, is Chairman of the committee, which is made up of the following executives: C. W. Galloway, Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio; Charles H. Ewing, Vice President, Philadelphia & Reading Co.; L. Bartlett, General Manager, New York, New Haven & Hartford; M. S. Connors, General Manager, Mocking Valley, and John G. Walber.

The committee has already received a reply of acceptance from Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief Engineer, Brotherhood of Engineers, and William S. Carter, President Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. The engineers and firemen, however, desire, to confer with the railroad representatives separately, and not in conjunction with the trainmen and conductors, it was explained. W. G. Lee, head of the trainmen, has agreed to the conference, but W. S. Shepherd, head of the conductors, has not yet been heard from.

"The fact that representatives of the railroads are to carry out Secretary Hoover's idea and confer with the representatives of the brotherhood unions immediately following individual conferences on wage adjustments does not necessarily mean any duplication of effort," said Mr. Walber. "In these individual conferences the roads paid practically no attention to rules and working conditions, but devoted their efforts to readjusting the wage scales. These regional conferences will focus attention on disputes arising out of rules and working conditions. We hope also to come to definite conclusions as to wages, so that recourse to the Labor Board will not be necessary.

"It is the purpose of the railroads to give the idea a fair and honest trial and test the sincerity of the workers. If we can come to conclusions we will lighten the burden of the Labor Board enormously."

Our Thanks

WE take this means of thanking our clients and friends for their expressions of sympathy and offers of assistance so freely given on account of the fire in our office on Saturday night.

We are glad to announce that owing to the extraordinary efficiency of the Telephone Company, the various ticker companies and the management of the Broad Exchange Building, our facilities for the transaction of business were restored to normal before the opening of business Monday morning.

WORKING CAPITAL ENLARGED

The F. W. Woolworth Company reports for the year ended Dec. 31, 1921, a surplus of $13,022,960, after depreciation, inventory adjustment, Federal taxes and preferred dividends. This was equivalent to $20.04 a share earned on the $65,000,000 common stock outstanding. In 1920 the surplus after the same deductions amounted to $8,917,751, or $12.31 a share on the same amount of stock. Reserves for taxes for 1921 aggregated $3,500,000, against $4,500,000 in 1920. Net profits per dollar of sales were 9.34 cents in 1921, which is reported to have been the best yield since 1917.

HOLLAND MAY BORROW HERE

Bankers Also Have Peruvian Loan Under Consideration.

Two new foreign loans are under negotiation and while neither has reached a stage to permit announcements it is considered probable that both will be offered here within a short time. One of them is an issue of from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 for the Government of Holland, to take over part of the Netherlands floating debt of $120,000,000.

Bankers interested in the proposed loan to Peru, which has been dormant for several months, say that negotiations have been resumed and that an announcement may be made within a short time.

NO HITCH IN STEEL MERGER.

Valuation of Midvale, Republic and Lackawanna Plants Going On.

There has been no hitch in the plans calling for the consolidation of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, the Republic Iron and Steel Company, the Lackawanna Steel Company and some of the smaller concerns, according to reports circulated in the financial district yesterday. It had been rumored a short time ago that the merger had been called off because of the failure of some of the interests to agree.

It is said that the delay in the announcement of the consummation of the plans is due to the great detail connected with fixing the valuation of the various plants and that an announcement cannot be expected for some time, in view of the many complications arising in fixing proper valuations.

PARTIAL PAYMENTS

It is not a man's income so much as his ability to conserve a part of his earnings and increase it by careful investing that spells success.

The development of odd lot and partial payment purchases of securities enables the investor to purchase good issues without waiting until he has accumulated a comparatively large sum.

Our interesting free booklet describing the terms and benefits of our payment arrangement will be sent to anyone interested on request.

ERIE IN 1921 MADE $19,127,815 GAIN

Net Railway Operating Income $2,133,697 After Charging in $3,000,000.

EARNING BASIS 4 PER CENT.

Data on Guaranty Period Distorts Report—Gross and Expenses Both Lower.

The Erie Railroad Company showed a net railway operating income or the year 1921 amounting to $2,133,697, according to an official statement by the company yesterday. This profit was made after charging in for 1921 approximately $3,000,000 on account of transactions applicable to the guaranty period. Excluding such charges, the net railway operating income for the year would have been $5,065,541. As compared with the company's report to the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1920 showing a net railway operating deficit of $16,994,118, the Erie's 1921 record represents an increase of $19,127,815.

In 1920 surplus over charges, based on federal compensation for eight months, was $4,438,583, equal to $1.87 a share on the $112,481,900 common stock after preferred dividends. Its earnings last year were equivalent to 4 per cent. dividends on both classes of preferred stock, with a balance of $138,265.

Operating revenues for the year 1921 aggregated $143,539,096 compared with $122,163,099 in 1920, a reduction of $8,624,001, or approximately 7 per cent. Operating expenses during 1921 were $105,167,156, a decrease from 1920 of $27,857,003, or approximately 21 per cent. Transportation expenses were reduced from $60,152,499 in 1920 to $52,289,221 in 1921, a reduction of $16,863,278, or 24 per cent.

"Maintenance expenses in 1921," the statement points out, "were $10,921,308 less than in 1920, but $4,497,734 greater than in 1919 and $3,493,304 greater than in 1918.

"Due to the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring carriers to make in their accounts, as of Dec. 31, 1921, on either an actual or estimated basis, provision for transactions relating to the guaranty period, which would not have been recorded in the accounts, the Erie Company's income statement for the month of December and for the year are in consequence distorted. It was necessary to make in the accounts for the month of December and for the year substantial charges (largely estimated) to operating expenses on account of guaranty period transactions, in order that the same would be considered at the time of final settlement with the Government for the guaranty period."

The income statement for the year 1921 (including the Erie Company's non-operating income, which consists chiefly of dividends from its coal companies and claims against the Government on account of guaranty period transactions charged in the operating expenses and other accounts during 1921) is as follows:

Operating expenses	105,157,156
Net operating revenue	$8,381,942
Railway tax accruals and uncollectible railway revenues	3,781,355
Operating income	$4,600,587
Net railway operating income	2,133,697
Non-operating income	14,682,052
Gross income	$16,815,729
Interest on funded and unfunded debt, rentals of leased lines and other fixed charges	14,121,304
Net income	$2,694,425
Surplus for the year	$1,595,254

In 1920, during two months of which the railroad was operated by the Director General and during six months of which it was operated under the guarantee, the net income was $4,458,585, or $1,744,160 larger than during 1921. The surplus in 1920, after applying $876,015 to sinking funds, was $3,442,570.

PENNSYLVANIA NET FALLS.

The December statement of the Pennsylvania Railroad System, one of the last of the larger roads to report for the month, showed net operating income of $64,223, representing a decrease of $638,148 from the final month of 1920. For the twelve months of 1921 the company saved a net railway operating income, according to Controller E. A. Stockton's statement, of $40,628,144 out of gross revenues of $862,756,803. Although this represented a decrease in gross of $82,092,161 compared with 1920, the net showing was $104,653,856 more than the same item of 1920 when the company had a deficit.

The explanation for this increase in net was found in the saving in railway operating expenses, which the management cut down $191,223,429 to $580,310,839. The greatest single saving was in transportation expenses, reduced $98,573,375 to a total on Dec. 31 of $288,274,305.

In December, 1921, the Pennsylvania's gross revenues amounted to $50,992,145, representing a decrease of $19,959,214 compared with December, 1920. Expenses decreased $17,749,942 to $48,420,260 at the end of the month. Of this saving $14,595,601 resulted from paring down transportation expenditures, which totaled $21,412,116 on Dec. 31.

GASOLINE UP AND DOWN.

Advances and reductions in the price of gasoline in various sections of the country were announced yesterday. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana has advanced gasoline 1 cent a gallon in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma in order to equalize prices there and elsewhere in its territory. Due to local competition prices had been lower in the States mentioned.

The Invincible Oil Company, according to Shreveport advices, has reduced gasoline 4 cents a gallon, from 24 to 20 cents. It is expected that the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana will also reduce prices.

The reduction of 2 cents a gallon in the New England States, announced by the Gulf Refining Company and the Atlantic Refining Company, is expected to be followed by a similar reduction by the Standard Oil Company of New York. The first two named companies are now quoting gasoline at 24 cents, tank wagon price. The price at New Haven and Bridgeport, usually below the remainder of the territory, is now 22 cents a gallon.

RETURN OF CAPITAL EXEMPTED IN STATE

INSURANCE FEES TAXABLE

The Income Tax Bureau of the State Tax Commission, in a new instalment issued yesterday of questions and answers on the State income tax, explained for the guidance of taxpayers a number of points relating to its administration. Some of the questions and answers follow:

Suburban—Eleven years ago, when I built my house, I constructed a private sewer for 400 feet past vacant lots to meet a public sewer. In 1921 a builder paid me $100 for the privilege of entering this sewer. Is this income? Answer—No. This is a return of capital, and, therefore, not subject to tax.

Butcher—My brother and I are in partnership. I am an ex-service man. Are my earnings from this business taxable? Answer—Yes. Any compensation, however, which you receive from the Government for vocational training, disability payments or the like is not taxable under the State law.

Secretary—Inquiries are being received as to deduction by union members of out-of-work fund, mortuary fund, old age pension fund and monthly union dues for organization expenses. Answer—Only union dues are deductible. The other payments are similar to insurance premiums, and, therefore, personal expenditures.

Executrix—I was obliged to pay out attorney's fees in an effort to collect life insurance on the death of my husband. Are these expenditures permitted under Section 360 of the law? Answer—No. None of the subdivisions of this section recognizes these payments as deductions.

Status of Realty Deal.

Banker—A client has sold for cash several lots from property which he bought years ago. His total payments are less than one-fifth of what the property cost him. Has he derived any income? Answer—Under Articles 35, 36 and 38 of the regulations profit is realized as to each transaction determined on the difference between the cost plus the proportionate part of any betterment expense and the price realized at sale.

Attorney—To relieve my clients from the annoyance of referring to me any inquiries received on returns may I substitute my office address instead of their addresses in their returns? Answer—No. You may, however, attach to each return a statement requesting that correspondence should be addressed to you.

Retired—I lent $1,000 on a mortgage with yearly payments of $100 on the principal and interest at 6 per cent. Do I have to report both the $100 and the interest? Answer—No. You report only the interest. Amounts paid to reduce the principal are return of capital.

Trustee's Problem Solved.

Trustee—Under the trust of A, power was vested in me to sell capital assets and reinvest proceeds, but no provision was made as to treatment of gains or losses therefrom on beneficiaries. Securities were sold at a loss of $5,000 and the interest and dividend income of the trust amounted to $6,000, leaving net income of $1,000. The beneficiary was paid her share of $6,000. What must I report on Form 205 as to the beneficiary's distributive share and what must she report in her return? Answer—$6,000 on both. This holds whether the entire amount was distributed during the year or is held for future payment to beneficiary. Loss on sale of capital assets is not deductible in computing the beneficiary's distributive share as it is not affected thereby. Such loss would be deductible if the fiduciary was filing return for the trust as an entity.

R. L. & Co.—Our non-resident returns are ready for 1921. Some of these men have not had settled their claims for overpayment on the 1920 tax which we withheld. May they offset these credits on Forms 102, non-residence certificate filed, for 1921? Answer—No. Employers are only permitted to recognize non-residents's claims for personal exemptions. The audit of the 1920 returns will be completed by March 1.

Stenographer—Under what heading can I deduct last year's State income and Federal income taxes? Answer—No income taxes are deductible in your New York return.

PEACE BOND FREES HOWAT AND DORCHY

Deposed Miners' Leaders Agree Not to Call Strikes in Kansas Field.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Feb. 6.—Alexander Howat and August Dorchy, deposed President and Vice President, respectively, of District 14, United Mine Workers of America, were released from the Cherokee County Jail at Columbus tonight. The $2,000 peace bond in which they agree not to call strikes in the Kansas coal fields was signed late today and was approved by District Judge Frank Boss. They had served the fifth month of a six-month sentence for violating the criminal provisions of the Industrial Court law.

Friends of Alexander Howatt explained that he yielded to the advice of his followers in giving the peace bond, so that he may go to Indianapolis to attend the adjourned International convention of the United Mine Workers and seek to present his side to the Kansas controversy.

Barco's Maracaibo Concessions.

The Barco Petroleum Company has entered into a contract with the owners of a large concession for the exploitation of petroleum on both sides of Lake Maracaibo, in the proved oil district of Venezuela, according to a statement issued by the Commercial Agency of Venezuela in this city. A group of geologists and engineers will leave shortly to make preliminary surveys.

Up-State Farmers Fix Tomato Price

SILVER CREEK, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Farmers hereabouts have made a gentleman's agreement to sell next year's tomato crop at not less than $15 a ton. This was decided at a meeting held at Hanover Center, it was announced today by Secretary R. M. Clothier.

Cities Service PREFERRED

In its last fiscal year Cities Service earnings exceeded $20,500,000, of which nearly $5,000,000 was available for Preferred dividends.

Total reserves and surplus, June 10, 1921, exceeded $52,000,000.

HOME STILL TAXED IF IT LOSES VALUE

No Allowance for Depreciation on a House or Auto by the Government.

WORTH OF LAND ALSO FIXED

Claim May Be Made for Loss on Business Property and Permanent Equipment.

Deductions for depreciation in computing Federal income returns have been the subject of frequent inquiries at the offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington. In an article on "income tax facts," issued yesterday by the bureau, the provisions of the revenue act of 1921 applying to deductions were interpreted for the information of taxpayers.

"The word 'depreciation' is not used in the revenue act of 1921, which provides 'a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence,'" said the statement.

"In claiming depreciation the following fundamental principles must be observed: Only such depreciation as results from exhaustion, wear and tear of property resulting from its use in trade, business, profession, or vocation is allowed. Depreciation in the value of a home or property such as an automobile used for pleasure or convenience cannot be claimed.

"Depreciation due to changes in the social or business condition of a neighborhood, or changes of street grade, or fluctuations of market values cannot be claimed.

"Depreciation in the value of land, whether improved or unimproved, due to erosion, exhaustion, or any other cause cannot be claimed.

"When in the course of years the owner of property has claimed its full cost of depreciation, no further claim will be allowed.

"The value to be cared for by depreciation is the cost of the property. However, in the case of property acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the deduction shall be computed upon the basis of its fair market price or value as of March 1, 1913.

"Depreciation may be claimed on all business property which includes not only buildings, but machinery of a permanent character, automobiles, farm tractors, mine and mill equipment, office furniture and books.

"To compute the amount of depreciation which may be claimed, a taxpayer should determine the probable life of the property, then divide by the number of years it will be usable in the business in which employed. The result thus obtained will represent the amount which may be claimed as a deduction. For example, a frame building the probable lifetime of which is twenty-five years cost $5,000. Divide $5,000 by 25 and claim $200 each year as a deduction.

"While each taxpayer may determine the probable lifetime of his property without regard to the following figures, it has been estimated that the average useful lifetime of a frame building is twenty-five years; a brick building thirty-five years; a stone or concrete building fifty to 100 years. The estimated life of ordinary machinery, that of automobiles used for business or farm purposes and farm tractors, four to five years."

COMMODITY PRICES.

Again the grains featured the dealings in the local cash markets yesterday, predicated, no doubt, by the higher futures markets, with the result that wheat, corn and oats in substantial advances soared to the highest levels so far this year. Wheat was up 1¼ cents the bushel; corn 2½ cents and oats 1 cent. Another staple article which has been moving steadily forward upon a sharp buying movement is that of lard, Middle West, which went still higher yesterday to 11.10, a record point for year to date. Other articles, including the groceries, metals and other provisions were firm, with spot cotton fractionally lower.

AGREE ON TAX LEGISLATION.

Governor and Leaders Decide on Two Measures for Consideration.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—A 2 per cent. tax on net incomes exceeding $5,000 of unincorporated businesses, which, it is estimated, would yield between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, is proposed in legislation to be introduced this week by the Davenport Committee on Taxation. Repeal of the personal property tax is sought under other proposed legislation.

Announcement that a conference between legislative leaders and Governor Miller had agreed on the introduction of certain tax legislation was made today by Speaker Machold of the Assembly. While considerable tax legislation will be suggested by the Davenport committee, only the two proposals are likely to be considered, according to agreement at the conference.

THINKS OIL FAILURE WOULD AID MEXICO

NEW EXPLORATIONS LIKELY

Changes in Laws and End of Strangehold on Producers Regarded as Near Developments.

The producing oil fields of Mexico may be exhausted before the end of this year, with the result that the Mexican Government may be driven by poverty and panic into a mood which would enable it to begin to make solid progress after the orgy of the last twelve years, Wallace Thompson, a writer on Mexican affairs, told the City Club members last night.

The essential problem, so far as the United States was concerned, he said, was the reassertion of the Monroe Doctrine as applied to the right of American capital and individuals to develop Latin-American resources under the protection of the Department of State, and supported by just laws in the countries in which they worked. In Mexico oil was the great complex problem, he said.

"Oil has been the lure of all the revolutions of Mexico since that of Madero in 1910," Mr. Thompson said, "and today the wealth oil pours into Mexican Government coffers makes revolution in Mexico the most profitable industry ever known in all Latin America. It was a combination of Mexican shortsightedness and the weakness of attitude of the oil companies which brought on the condition where Mexican laws and decrees have come to confine virtually all oil activities to the narrow, rapidly shrinking bed of oil pools known as the Southern Fields of Tampico.

"Certain wells outside the field have recently come in, but very few are now drilling, and no pipe line or other transportation has been provided. When the present single producing pool, known as the Toteco-Cerro Azul, is exhausted, there will inevitably be an appalling slump in production of light oils in Mexico, in this the companies will not be embarrassed, for those interests are solely upon Mexico's reserves for their own needs coming on. Few indeed, will be great sufferers, for all will have production of some sort, chiefly in heavy fuel oil. But the price of oil and gasoline here in Mexico will go up, furnishing 30 per cent. of the gasoline oil of the world. More than that, the Mexican Government will be forced to the edge of desperation by the cutting down of its oil taxes, its chief and almost sole source of income today.

"When that time comes we may look for certain definite developments. First, the rosy bubbles of inflated promises of progress will burst. Next, the Mexican Government will encounter grave difficulties in maintaining its hold without money to support the temporarily faithful. Then, perhaps, revolution; although, with the oil shut off, the bait may not seem great enough. I rather hope that this poverty will be the means of bringing the Mexican leaders to a clear conception of their duty to their people. I should look to changes in the laws and decrees, perhaps in the Constitution itself, which would make possible the normal development of the oil industry again through exploration, prospecting and the acquirement of oil properties on workable terms.

"Such a change would not benefit the oil companies alone. Most of us have little sympathy for oil companies, they seem so safe in their prosperity and in the chiefest complication in the Mexican situation has come through their vast development, through their mistakes and through their standing out as a shining light in the horizon of foreign capital, so through them more than any one the fundamental changes in present Mexican Government methods. The stranglehold which Mexico has kept on the oil companies will be loosened, at least enough to encourage them to explore and open up new fields."

SEES PERIL IN MOVE IN OBREGON'S BEHALF

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Another investigation into alleged propaganda that would interfere with relations between this country and Mexico was asked for to the House today. Representative Connelly of Texas already has a resolution before the House urging an inquiry into accusations that certain American organizations are seeking to overturn the Obregon Government. Representative Benham of Indiana introduced today a resolution asking the Foreign Affairs Committee to conduct an investigation "of the activities of all individuals, organizations, publications and corporations in behalf of the de facto Government of the Republic of Mexico, otherwise known as the Obregon Government."

Mr. Benham's resolution says that the maintenance of friendly relations between the people and Government of the United States and Mexico is earnestly desired; that, after years of discord, Mexico has established a Government pledged to keep order, protect the rights of foreigners and discharge her national obligations, and that negotiations have been proceeding for many months looking toward the recognition of Obregon.

Mr. Benham believes that the propaganda lately exerted in some quarters in behalf of the recognition of the de facto Government is detrimental to the best interests of the country and of Mexico.

It has been publicly charged that an extensive campaign has been waged in the United States and in Mexico to the end that the friendly relations that should exist between the two countries, and inimical to their interests, confidence and good will," reads the resolution.

The proposed investigation would cover "activities exercised with a view to influence the executive or legislative policies of the United States" in behalf of the Obregon Government.

There is a strong feeling among certain members of Congress that the Obregon Government should be recognized. It was said today that if the House Foreign Affairs Committee did not report very soon one way or the other on either the Connelly or Benham resolutions, the request would be made that the committee quit the custody of these proposals. In this way a debate on the Mexican situation, so far as regards this country, would be started on the floor.

COTTON UNCHANGED IN NARROW MARKET

Activity in stocks and grain detracted from cotton so that trading proved lighter yesterday than for some time. An early decline of a quarter of a cent, owing to weakness abroad was followed by a slow recovery of the entire loss. Operators who sold at higher prices last week took back contracts on the break. This covering, together with the usual trade calling, furnished sufficient support to steady the market. There was less urgent demand for March during most of the session and for a time premiums narrowed considerably. Final prices showed a loss of 6 to a gain of 1 point.

Early trading reflected weakness in both Liverpool and New Orleans. For the first time this season March contracts abroad sold only 190 points over New York, a situation so abnormal that sentiment was somewhat disturbed. At the same time March in New Orleans ran 120 points under March here, thus leaving New York comparatively the highest market in the world. With a break of half a cent abroad, rather heavy selling took place the first hour, carrying March to 16.45 and May to 16.15.

Below 16.20, several lines of cotton which sold on last week's advance above 16.65 were taken back with steadying effect on all positions. Instead of active covering such as occurred on the recent upturn, March showed more pressure. One time prices were only 25 points over May instead of 35 points as last week. Foreign interests sold against purchases abroad and scattered commission houses liquidation became noticeable. Brokers had limited orders to sell May at 16.25 soon after the opening, a fact that encouraged room selling. On the decline of a quarter of a cent from Saturday and half a cent from Friday's level, more demand appeared. A recovery of about 30 points American points before Liverpool closed removed pressure from that quarter, so that a reaction started before the end of the first hour.

Another sharp rise in wheat with a strong stock market brought an improvement of 20 points. During the early decline demand for new crop positions increased. This was in part assigned to reports of small fertiliser sales to date. According to reports from Southern sources companies are slow about extending credits, as many bills for last season still remain unpaid. Sales of fertilizer tags have been only about one-third of two years ago, so that this important question will claim attention for some months to come. While fertilizers are not so important for success in the western portions of the belt, without free use in Atlantic States there is a direct connection between growth and boll weevil devastation. It is generally conceded that a vigorous plant tends to minimize insect damage.

A slowing down in demand for March remained a feature of later trading. Not only did these having hedges outstanding fail to take March, but a definite tendency on the part of some holders to liquidate developed. This ran March back to only 60 points over July and 25 points over May. It is rather early in the month for anxiety to appear among interests with March contracts sold against cotton elsewhere, and a lessening of premiums was not surprising. After touching 16.45, March recovered to 16.63 when trading quieted down the movement in support of March became evident. Outside speculative interest seemed to be centred in stocks and wheat, leaving cotton to trade and professional operations.

More demand for March stirred some activity the last hour with an advance to the best figures of the session. Not only did May and July recover all early loss, but May sold at 16.45, 4 points over Saturday's closing. Scattered trade buying was reported during the day with, however, room operators to cover morning sales at higher prices.

Spot sales at Southern points amounted to less than 5,000 bales, about the smallest this season.

START FIGHT TO END GRAFT ON IMPORTS

Goods Entering Port Pay Flagrant Toll to Helpers, Says Merchants Association.

"GRATUITIES" $20 A CASE

Brokers Levy on Consignees—Steamship Companies and Appraiser to Help Stop Extortion.

The acceptance of tips and the levying of graft to expedite the movement of imports through this port have become so flagrant and widespread that the Merchants' Association has begun an attack on the system. In announcing yesterday that it intended to break up such grafting, the association named four classes that have been demanding tribute from commerce: Government employes at the Appraiser's stores, employes of steamship companies, loaders and those employed by public cartmen. The steamship companies and Appraiser of the Port F. J. H. Kracke, are cooperating with the association to break up the practice.

Complaint has also been received, it was said, that unscrupulous brokers in turn have been grafting from their consignees, sometimes charging as much as $20 a case under the heading "gratuities" for merchandise moved through the Port of New York.

"It appears from complaints received by the association that tipping has become so thoroughly established that the payment of fees is necessary in order to receive any attention from employes, and that these fees are billed to inland consignees by customs brokers as part of their regular charge," said a statement announcing the beginning of the association's fight. "Not only does this practice enhance prices and demoralize the customs service, but it gives New York City a bad name. There is a specific provision of law which forbids any person from offering and any employe in the customs service from accepting gratuities."

The association has sent a letter, signed by C. A. Mead, Secretary to customs brokers and importers urging them to co-operate in breaking up the system. The large steamship companies have already taken steps to see that prompt service is furnished by employes on piers without the payment of tips. Brokers and importers are urged to pay no more tips to delivery clerks, but to report in detail all unnecessary delays or any intimation that a tip is desired. Complaints will be taken up at once with the head of the steamship line.

"Payment of gratuities or tips to loaders is hard to control, since these men are not employed by steamship companies and are a more or less floating class of labor," said the letter. "Conferences have been held on this, termins some plan of relief. That phase of the problem will be followed up earnestly. We may state that certain steps have already been taken in this direction also.

"We wish to emphasize in this letter is the reported tipping of Government employes. Rumors are current that employes of the Appraiser's stores are in the habit of accepting gratuities and that this system is becoming extremely prevalent, to the annoyance and expense of all importers. All these systems of tipping had their origin in the desire of the importers for preferred service, but have apparently extended, however, until ordinary prompt service is demanded unless tips are given."

Appraiser Kracke has notified importers through the association to report at once if there is the slightest suspicion that goods are needlessly delayed at the Appraiser's stores. Every person in charge of the stores has been instructed to see that tipping is stopped.

"It is importers who are forced, directly or indirectly, to bear the cost of this tipping, said the letter. "If they refuse to pay, the system will break down and the service will be what it should be and as the Appraiser wishes it to be, on a fair basis to all."

WHEAT AT HIGHEST SINCE SEPTEMBER

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Speculative interest in the grain markets is increasing by leaps and bounds, causing a somewhat general impression among wheat traders that strong concerted efforts are in progress to bring about a better outlet for farm products at remunerative figures. Prices advanced today to a new high on the present upturn with May wheat equaling the high point of Sept. 26, while July was within ⅛ of the best figure on the drop, and the market closed with every indication of getting into new ground at the opening tomorrow.

July corn and July oats sold at new highs on the crops, and all grains finished at about the best figures, with net gains of 2¼ to 2⅝c on wheat, 2⅛ to 2¼c on corn and ⅞ to 1⅜c on oats.

The strong constructive influences at work under the surface were not apparent to the trade in general. Heavy profit taking was on in wheat by houses with Eastern connections, but the offerings passed into strong hands, and at no time could the market be called weak. At the outside figure today May showed over 200 over the low of last week. Exporters were good buyers at Winnipeg, and sales of 750,000 bushels or more No. 3 Manitobas were made to the United Kingdom.

Foreign markets are advancing faster than Chicago, with Liverpool up 2¾d and Buenos Aires 3c for the day, the close on the latter coming long after the finish at Chicago. It is expected that May wheat will open around $1.30 in sympathy with the strength in Buenos Aires, providing there are no untoward devalopments overnight. Country offerings were not large.

A local cash house has picked up around 150,000 bushels No. 2 yellow hard Winter in store for a mill. Premiums on spot were 2@3c lower, while No. 3 red sold at May price to 1c over.

Of the 13,300,000 bushels world's shipments last week, non-European countries took about 3,500,000 bushels. The Grain Corporation will buy 300,000 bushels Durum seed wheat for Russia on Wednesday.

The corn market duplicated the performance of wheat and advanced steadily, after sharp reaction followed the wild openings. Bearish news received no consideration and shorts were heavy buyers, which, with the increased speculative buying, more than offset hedging sales against country purchases. An increase of 4,040,000 bushels in the visible was practically ignored, although it brought the total up to 30,770,000 bushels, against 26,729,000 the previous week and 20,366,000 last year.

A decrease of 1,561,000 bushels in wheat was rather surprising in view of the trade forecasts of an increase. Total stocks are 42,280,000 bushels, against 43,871,000 the previous week and 32,555,000 last year. The combined domestic and Canadian stocks showed a decrease of around 3,000,000 bushels of wheat for the week.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,388,000 bushels; week ago, 1,542,000; last year, 1,360,000. Shipments were 456,000 bushels; week ago, 422,000; last year, 666,000.

Corn receipts were 3,121,000 bushels; week ago, 2,643,000; last year, 1,067,000. And shipments, 1,537,000 bushels; week ago, 1,490,000; last year, 452,000.

ASK CHANGE IN GAS STANDARD AND PRICE

Public Service Commission Begins Hearing on Application by Companies and by Users.

SERVICE CHARGE PROPOSED

Would Meet the Decrease in Income Due to Cutting Rate to Large Consumers.

Hearings were begun yesterday by the Public Service Commission to determine whether large consumers of gas should not be charged a lower rate than house holders and other small consumers and whether the present 22-candle power standard should not be changed to the British Thermal unit, or heat standard. The proceedings are based on a report made by a joint committee representing large consumers and the gas companies which recommends the heat unit standard and the establishment of the block system of charging so that the rate should be graduated according to the amount of gas used down to a certain point.

It is stipulated that the charge shall not be more than $1.25 per thousand cubic feet to any consumer and that non-users, who have a meter, shall pay a service charge of seventy cents a month. This is intended to supply the decreased income caused by any reduction in price. The hearing was held in the large assembly room of the Merchant's Association and was largely attended, many women being present. Chairman Prendergast of the commission said that the advance in the price of gas had caused much complaint from business men because it increased the cost of doing business and had raised the price of some goods to a prohibitive figure. Many large consumers of gas, he said, had announced their intention of moving their business out of the city if the present high rate was maintained.

He said that he could not understand why there should be a candle power standard for Bronx County and a different standard for Westchester County. He said three companies in this city were selling gas on the heat unit basis and that one of these was doing it without authority. He referred to the fear of those who use gas for lighting that heat gas would not give as much light as illuminating gas and said that everybody who had anything to say on the subects would be heard.

Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien made a futile effort to have the hearing postponed until the courts had decided the various gas questions now pending. Applause greeted a statement by him that the gas companies have been selling gas of not more than four or five candle power instead of the 22-candle power required by law. He called this a disgrace.

William Merrifield, the gas expert of the commission, was called as a witness. Mr. O'Brien sought to prove that he was not competent and that his appointment was due to politics. In reply to a question about how he got his job, Mr. Merrifield replied that it was through the influence of Edward J. Gleason, who was secretary of Lewis Nixon when the latter was a Public Service Commissioner.

Chairman Prendergast said that a committee headed by George W. Sweeney of the Hotel Men's Association had recently informed him that if the gas situation remained as it is the hotels would be obliged to stop the use of gas which would revolutionise the business. The hearing will be continued today.

Penn Seaboard Reopens Steel Plant.

The Penn Seaboard Steel Company has resumed operations at the Tacony plant, which has been shut down completely for some time. The Titusville Forge Company, another subsidiary, is reported to have increased production 300 per cent. above the recent minimum, and a further increase is expected, according to officials of the company.

Fire Fails to Hamper Brokers.

Paine, Webber & Co. announced yesterday that their business was not interrupted to any great extent as a result of the fire in the company's offices on Sunday. This was due to the assistance given by clients and friends and the efficiency of the telephone company, the various ticker companies and the management of the building where the firm occupies office space.

Carpet Body Discontinues.

At a meeting held yesterday at the Madison Square Hotel it was decided to discontinue the Carpet Association of America. No reason was assigned for this action. Victor G. Beutell of the Hodges Fibre Carpet Company, who is President, would have nothing to say concerning the action taken at the meeting. He promised a statement later.

Jewelry Sales Shaping Up Well.

Although many of the retail jewelers are still in the throes of stocktaking, salesmen now on the road are turning in a fair amount of business. The retailers can hardly be said to be buying as freely at present as they would at this time of the year in a more normal period, but the indications are that a marked improvement will be seen during March and April, in the business that is being put through, however, medium-priced merchandise is showing up strongly. All things considered, sellers say there is little fault to be found with the present situation.

***

New in Use for Hats.

With the spread of the vogue for tweed outergarments for women, both for sport and street wear, there has come a marked demand for hats of the same material. They are offered in a variety of tam and brimmed shapes. The mixtures of the material include black and white, black and gray, brown and white and tan and brown. Other hats of this nature are shown in sand, orchid, coral, red, sorrento, buff, tangerine, green, &c. Tweed hats for children and young girls are also on display here in the favored colorings. For the most part they are bare of trimmings.

Dress Goods Openings About Due.

The feeling is growing in the local dress goods trade that the time is about due for Fall openings of the so-called corporation goods. In fact, it would not surprise many buyers of these clothe if at least one of the prominent corporations put out prices in the course of the next few days. In view of what happened at the American Woolen Company opening, buyers are loath to predict the trend of the new figures. In the jobbing end of the trade there has not been much change in the character of the demand in the last several weeks. Tweeds, homespuns and other goods of that nature continue to have the call with the retail trade.

Tweeds Popular But Uncertain.

The sentiment regarding tweeds in the women's wear trade is very uncertain regarding the outlook for a continued "boom." While these fabrics have the support of some of the leading retail garment distributers, the belief is general that both the materials and the apparel made from them admit of too wide a competition to make a long run on them desirable or possible. The mill agents are keeping very closely posted on every development and are on the lookout for the slightest sign of waning interest. The foreign manufacturers who have taken business on tweeds are advised to be careful unless they possess very strong contracts.

English Piece Goods High.

Samples of English piece goods received in this market are considered high priced, compared with domestic fabrics. This is said to hold not only for overcoatings, but for staple suitings. One Bradford manufacturer, for instance, sends samples of serges and a gabardine priced from 9s. 8d. to 15s. The lowest priced serge in his price list is 8s. The trade here is accustomed to figure the landed cost of woolens at about 30 cents a shilling, so that $2.40 would represent this manufacturer's lowest value. As the trade hesitates to buy even fancy worsteds at over $2.50, it is felt the imported lines will have difficulty in finding much demand.

To Push Minimum Size Plan.

A meeting of manufacturers of "athletic" underwear will be held today in the rooms of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers for the purpose of working out plans for the adoption of standard minimum measurements in this type of merchandise. These measurements were worked out some time ago, but had been lost sight of by several manufacturers. The result was that the actual sizes of the garments did not jibe with the sizes marked on the tickets or on the goods, with the further result that the public began to lose faith in them. It is with the primary idea of restoring this confidence that some way of pushing the standard measurements plan will be sought for today.

Gray Goods Prices Weak.

Some easing off in gray goods prices was seen in this market yesterday, accompanied by a little wider interest in printcloths. Nearby deliveries of 39-inch 64-72s were sold at 9 cents, while similar shipment was done in 36½-inch 64-60s and 36½-inch 60-48s at 8 and 7 cents, respectively. For nearby 39-inch 56-44s buyers paid 6½ cents. A few scattered lots of lightweight sheetings were sold on the basis of 6 cents for 6.15s, but the general market was more or less nominally held at 5½ cents for 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings. In the sateens there was some business done, 39-inch 64-108, 4.20-yard goods being sold at 12¾ cents.

Overcoatings Are Withdrawn.

Six or seven lines of fancy back overcoatings have been withdrawn by the American Woolen Company, and the market expects to see a complete withdrawal of such goods in the near future. Some of the mills whose product has been sold up are the Valley, Foxcroft and Indian Spring. While the company and the independent trade are having very good business on the fancy back overcoating lines shown for next Fall the demand for suitings lags. It is not at all improbable that some of the men's wear production will be put upon dress goods because of the larger consumption of such fabrics. The condition of the clothing market explains the success of fancy backs and the dullness in suitings since overcoat stocks are light, but suits are in plentiful supply.

Unloading Clothing Stocks.

Some criticism is heard among retail clothing dealers because of the action of several large houses in unloading big stocks at prices which make competition very difficult. The complaint is chiefly directed at those branded lines with which the consumer is familiar. The retailers handling such merchandise feel that the "ground has been cut from under them" in having stocks unloaded at lower prices than they can offer on their own accumulations. The answer of the manufacturers is, of course, that they were forced to find a market for their surplus goods, and, in the failure of their regular agents to purchase, had to sell them elsewhere. Their regular trade having refused the opportunity, in some cases, to make additional purchases, the manufacturers consider themselves justified in using other outlets.

WEST'S NEW BUSINESS HOPE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—As a result of increased mining activity in the Butte (Mont.) district, one of the leading wholesale houses here has received the largest number of orders from retailers in that territory in several years.

The marked strength in grains is being generally commented on, and a much more optimistic tone is noted among business men.

Advertising Men to Discuss Farmers

A luncheon under the auspices of the Agricultural Press Committee of the New York Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies will be held in the Hotel Pennsylvania on Feb. 14. James R. Howard, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will speak on "What's Wrong With the Farming Business."

No newspaper and no combination of trade papers in the textile industry has, as regular readers, so many buyers and merchants as the Business Page of The New York Times.

THACKERAY FARCE TOPS SALE AT $2,380

SESSION TOTALS $18,603.50

"Flore et Zephyr" Fetches $1,900, and First Edition of "King Glumpus" $1,150.

The sale of the Thackeray library collected by Henry Sayre van Duzer of New York was begun at the Anderson Galleries last evening. The session realized $18,603.50.

The highest price was paid by Miss Belle Da Costa Greene, $2,380, for a copy of "The Exquisites," a farce in two acts, with four plates from drawings by Thackeray, published in London in 1839. Only three copies are known to be in America. This farce was printed for private circulation only, and there is no proof that the play was ever acted. The text is by John Barrow and was first identified in 1898. The present copy was formerly in the William H. Lambert collection.

J. D. Kern gave $1,900 for a large copy of "Flore et Zephyr," a rare piece, the nine plates being drawn by Thackeray and signed with the pseudonym Theophile Wagstaff. Gabriel Wells gave $1,150 for the rare first edition of "King Glumpus," an interlude in one act, London, 1837, with three illustrations by Thackeray. The author was John Barrow.

William R. Hearst was a big purchaser. He paid $700 for five pencil and water color drawings by Thackeray of Dr. Birch and his Young Friends, and the same amount for "Literature Presenting Science to Britannia," original drawing by Thackeray. This represents Bulwer Lytton presenting Dr. Lardner to Queen Victoria, with five lines in Thackeray's hand.

Mr. Hearst also gave $600 for fourteen drawings and tracing by Thackeray for "The Irish Sketch Book," and $700 for the "History of Pendennis," London, 1848-50, first edition, with an autograph of Thackeray inserted. James F. Drake paid $975 for "The Gownsman," 1830, Cambridge, to which Thackeray contributed. It is excessively rare, each number containing one sheet of four leaves, except the last, which has five leaves.

The sale will be continued this evening.

FIRE FAILS TO HURT A FORD.

Takes Three Engines to Put Out Blaze, but Owner Drives Away.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 6.—Anthony Loder, owner of one of those cars about which so many vaudeville jokes are written, left his car at the curb near Georgia and Atlantic Avenues today when he went on an errand in a nearby building. The car caught fire and three engines were called to extinguish the blaze.

Loder came out as the firemen completed the job. After a glance at the car he laughed, spread a couple of newspapers over the charred seat, stepped on the self-starter and rolled away, without question or comment.

"Can you beat that?" asked Deputy Chief Miller.

Many Buyers in Attendance and Prices of Pelts Rule High.

With marten and the other so-called Spring and Summer furs attracting the bulk of the attention of buyers, and in many cases bringing very good prices, the seventh annual Winter sale of raw furs in this city made an auspicious start in the Masonic Hall yesterday. Between 400 and 500 buyers were present when the first lot of fisher pelts went under the hammer of the auctioneer, and the attendance continued large throughout the day. At the end of the afternoon session it was estimated that about $750,000 worth of furs had been disposed of.

Prices for fisher averaged high, due to ken, though rather slow, bidding on the part of manufacturers and retailers "Top" for this fur was $103. The collections of stone and baum marten were small and not of extra good quality, but the prices obtained for them were said to be up to the high levels of the open market. Otter, which is in good demand for export, also did well.

Marten, which is a particularly strong Spring article, was the day's star. The best price paid for this fur was $115, and the final drop of the auctioneer's hammer on the lot that fetched it brought applause. Mole and muskrat took up the rest of the day. All things considered, mole did well. Bidding for muskrat was good, the highest price for these skins being $2.35, which was paid for a prime lot of Northern pelts.

The following table shows the low and high prices of the furs sold yesterday, together wit hthe percentage of advance they showed when compared with the average prices obtained for similar skins at the September sale here:

	Low price.	High price.	Advance (per cent).
Fisher	$42.00	$103.00	25
Stone marten	2.60	27.00	25
Baum marten	4.00	37.00	25
Otter	4.00	34.00	15
Lynx	2.00	43.00	15
Marten	11.00	115.00	*40
Mole	.01	.23	20
Muskrat, brown	.22	2.35	10
Muskrat, South'n	.14	.90	15
Muskrat, black	2.00	2.05	15

Wolverine will be the first article to go on the block today. It will be followed by Russian sable, which will undoubtedly be the "high spot" of the day, and by chinchilla, black, brown and Polar bears, wolf, timber wolf, marmot, Australian fox, ermine and skunk.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

$1,000,000 APARTMENT DEAL

Benjamin Winter Sells West End Avenue Corner—Lehigh Concrete Co. Buys Garage Site.

Several quick and profit-taking resales of upper west side properties were closed yesterday, and a couple of other similar transactions are reported pending.

The largest and most important of the resales involved the twelve-story apartment house at the southeast corner of West End Avenue and Ninety-eighth Street, and the three-story dwelling at 700 West End Avenue, the latter acquired for light protection by the builders, T. J. McLaughlin & Sons, when they put up the taller structure several years ago.

They were sold by the Winter Realties, Inc., of which Benjamin Winter is President, and held at $900,000.

The sellers acquired the property last week from Rudolph G. Leeds, tinplate magnate, who bought the property shortly after its completion from the builders.

Yesterday's transaction involves considerations said to exceed $1,000,000, and, by a peculiar turn, the property is again in possession of a branch of the family that built the apartment, having been bought by Thomas J. McLaughlin and the Joseph Gordon Realty Corporation.

The apartment stands on a site fronting 91.10 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street, and returns an annual rental of approximately $125,000. It contains suites of five, six and seven rooms. The dwelling is on a lot 18 by 100.

In part payment the McLaughlin-Gordon interests gave the four-story building at 115 West Forty-seventh Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5, which is valued at $70,000 and is under lease to the Actors' Equity Association at an annual net rental of about $6,000.

Resale of Garage Site.

The Occidental Holding Corporation, of which Nathan Wilson is President, resold to the Lehigh Concrete Company the plot of eight lots on the north side of 133d Street, 90 feet east of Broadway, and extending through to 134th Street, for the erection of a garage.

The site measures 85 feet on 133d Street, 117 feet on 134th Street, and has a total depth of 199.10 feet.

Operators Resell Eighth Avenue Corner.

Mandelbaum & Lewine, operators, resold to the New Amsterdam Realty Company the four-story business building, occupying a plot 28.9 by 58.11 feet, at the northwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street; also the four-story building adjoining at 301 West Twenty-ninth Street, on a lot 29.1 by 98.9 feet.

The property, which was free and clear, was purchased for all cash last week by the sellers from Sarah E. Sands. D. H. Kempner negotiated the sale.

An $80,000 Resale.

The six-story apartment house, on a lot 46.6 by 100 feet, at 113 and 115 West 102d Street, was resold by Butler & Baldwin, as brokers, for a client, to Robert E. Osborne. The property brings an annual rental of $14,000, and was held at $82,000. The original sale was made last week.

Estate Sells Sixth Avenue Site.

Bank Adds to Holdings.

The Importers and Traders National Bank at Broadway and Murray Street purchased from Joseph Hilton, the clothier, the five-story building at 2½ Murray Street, on lot 12.8 by 50.11. William H. Whiting & Co. negotiated the sale.

With this purchase the bank controls a plot with a Broadway frontage of 50.11 feet and a frontage of 128.2 feet on Murray Street.

DU PUYS SUES FOR $162,048.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—Suit to recover $162,048.12 from the Crucible Steel Company of America was filed here today by Herbert du Puy, former Chairman of the board.

Mr. du Puy alleged in his petition that, as an officer of the company from Nov. 6, 1917, to Oct. 1, 1918, it was his duty to supervise methods of determining Federal income and excess profits returns, and in doing this he followed the advice of other officers of the corporation. Mr. du Puy declared that he was indicted Nov. 8, 1920, by a Federal Grand Jury, with George A. Turville, Treasurer, for conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with the Crucible's income tax returns, of which charge he was found not guilty.

Mr. du Puy alleged that the company did not assist him in his defense, but, on the other hand, was "hostile." As the acts for which he was tried were done by him as an officer of the company and "in the belief and expectation they were for the best interests of the company," Mr. du Puy seeks to recover the amount as the expenses of his trial.

OPEN TUNNEL BIDS TODAY.

Bids for what probably is the largest single contract ever let for any public work will be opened this afternoon in the office of the New York and New Jersey Vehicular Tunnel Commission for the two vehicular tunnels under the Hudson River and the sinking of the shaft on the west bank. It is believed that the lowest bid will be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

Two hundred sets of contracts and specifications with drawings were sold at $5 a set, but it is not expected that more than five bids will be submitted because of the size of the job. Few contractors, it was said, have the necessary equipment to undertake such a task, which, under the provisions of the contract, must begin on March 4 and be completed in thirty-six months.

WINDOWS

Of course, the building in which they establish their business home must have the right location, unexcelled service and equipment, high character of tenants and a decent rental, too. But, in addition to these factors, they want daylight space—workable space—with the dark corners eliminated.

The new addition to the Borden Building, Madison Avenue and 45th Street, with real daylight on four sides, will be ready for occupancy in April.

3 MILK MEN ROBBED OF $895 IN HOLD-UP

$760 TAKEN FROM STORE

In two hold-ups of employes of milk companies on the lower east side yesterday bandits obtained $895. The police believe both robberies were committed by the same two men. Edward McCabe, 36 years old, of 23 East 127th Street, a collector for the Borden Milk Company, was shot in the left leg as he tried to save $165, when held up in a hallway at 13 Stanton Street.

Less than an hour before two robbers had carried away $760 from a Sheffield Farms Company store at 282 Avenue B. They took $730 from George Baxter, a collector for the company, and $30 from Phillip Castrovinci, manager of the store.

Baxter drove up to the place in a buggy after having collected two days' receipts from five other stores of the company. He told the police that two well dressed young men entered, carrying pistols, as he walked into a rear room of the store. The manager was in the act of handing $95 to Baxter when one of the robbers, in a voice a little above a whisper, said: "Put up your hands, and close your mouths."

Both men did so and the second robber took their money. After he had counted it, the other said: "I guess we got all of it. Let's go." Then the robbers told their victims that if they made an outcry or attempted to follow they would be shot. The robbers got into an automobile and sped away.

Bail of $25,000 was set yesterday by Magistrate Oberwager in the Jefferson Market Court in the case of Thomas Harris, 26 years old, of 321 West Eleventh Street, arrested on suspicion of being one of two men who last Saturday held up and robbed William Thielking in his cafe at 459 West Street of $50.

The police reported another safe robbery at a Roulston chain store. Policeman Hynes found the front door of the company's store at 5,814 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, wide open and a 200-pound safe gone. The police refused to reveal the amount of money lost in the robbery.

Policeman Mangin of the Clymer Street Station saw a man forcing the rear window of another store owned by the company at 638 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn. When Mangin's prisoner later was held in $5,000 bail for examination tomorrow he told the Magistrate in the Bridge Plaza Court he was John Smith of 141 Wayne Street, Middle Village, Queens.

RENT AN APARTMENT TO ROB A PAWNSHOP

A robbery, apparently planned three weeks ago when John Murphy and his wife rented rooms over the victim's pawnshop at 764 Eighth Avenue, was discovered Sunday afternoon when the lessor of the apartment almost fell through a large hole in the floor. It was through this opening that the shop was plundered.

Immediately reported to the police, the robbery was secretly investigated. Detectives found, hidden under a coal stove and in closets of the Murphy apartment, several counterfeiting tools with metal used to make bogus coins.

The victim of the robbery was I. Wiesenberger & Son, and the value of the stolen loot was placed at several thousand dollars. On it approximately $1,000 had been advanced as loans. It consisted of fur coats, fur scarfs and other wearing apparel, and was carried off in six leather bags. A safe containing jewelry was not tampered with.

Mrs. Mary Dalmas, owner of the apartment, said Mr. and Mrs. Murphy looked at several apartments in the building three weeks ago and rented three rooms in the rear, directly over Wiesenberger's shop.

4-MASTED SHIP ON BAR; LIFEGUARDS SAVE NINE

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Feb. 6.—In a heavy fog early this morning, the four-masted schooner Bessie A. White of St. John, N. B., went ashore on the outer bar, a mile west of Smith's Point. A lifeboat, in which Captain L. T. Merrian and three members of the crew were coming ashore, capsized, and James Rynburgh, a seaman, was almost drowned.

The schooner was bound for her home port, having left Newport News last Friday loaded with 1,500 tons of coal. At 4:30 the bow of the schooner stuck fast in a sand bar, almost opposite Bellport, and within 300 feet of the Smith's Point Coast Guard Station. The crew, three officers and six seamen, remained aboard for three hours, while the water deepened in the hold, and then set out in two lifeboats for the shore. The first boat, containing five men, reached land safely, but the second capsized in two feet of water 100 feet from the shore. James Rynburgh, seaman, a Norwegian, was caught under the boat and was unconscious before the other three men were able to right it. Later he was revived and hurried to the Long Island College Hospital.

Seven feet of water has now seeped into the hold of the schooner, and it is thought that if a storm arises she may break in two.

CHICAGO CANNOT PAY ITS 15,000 EMPLOYES

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Laborers employed by the city were forced to go without pay for their last two weeks' work when the City Paymaster's office closed today until further notice for lack of funds. A payroll of $200,000 for laborers employed by the city was due for distribution today, but it was announced that no more municipal employes paid from the corporate fund would get their money from the city until the Council had passed the budget and tax anticipation warrants could be issued, to be collected in 1923.

Meanwhile, the Council Finance Committee started hearings on a revision of the appropriation bill previously recommended to the City Council for the purpose of cutting $1,200,000 from it.

If the city's financial authorities carry out their announced intention, approximately 15,000 city employes, including the firemen, the policemen, the Aldermen and the Mayor himself, will have to go without their pay this month. The tax-anticipation warrants cannot be issued until fifteen days after the passage of the budget, and that document, which was reported into the Council week before last, is now back in committee for revision.

OPEN NEW AUTO FACTORY.

Newark Plant Has Capacity of 6,000 Friction-Drive Kelseys.

A new automobile factory was added to the industrial plants in the Belleville section of Newark yesterday by the formal opening of the new factory of the Kelsey Motor Company, makers of the friction-drive Kelsey car, first exhibited at the recent automobile show here. The building covers 32,000 square feet, with a large Trentage on Washington Street. In the rear is a track connecting with the Erie Railroad, the siding being arranged so that motor material can be easily unloaded on the mezzanine factory floor.

About one hundred six-cylinder Kelseys are now in use. The new factory will make four-cylinder models to sell for $985. It has a capacity of 5,000 to 6,000 cars a year.

At the opening exercises Judge Robert Carey of Jersey City, President E. E. Slade, and C. W. Kelsey, General Manager, who perfected the friction-drive system used in the Kelsey car, spoke.

"CLARA" LETTERS STOLEN.

Actress Was Going to Give Them to Mrs. Stillman.

Mrs. Beatrice Keller, who was featured as a dancing girl in one of the productions of the late Anna Held, last night told detectives investigating the robbery of her apartment at 326 West Ninety-fifth Street on Saturday, that the robbers had taken nine letters which she said had been written to her by James A. Stillman and a mink fur valued at $1,500.

"The letters," said Mrs. Keller, "relate to 'Clara,' the girl whose name was brought into the Stillman divorce by Mrs. Stillman in her defense. I had planned to turn them over to Mrs. Stillman to aid her in her fight."

He had neglected to keep the dust receptacle filled with water.

To reduce the hazard of dust explosion, and secure a tidy saving of $50 a year in premiums, our engineer had merely to make this simple recommendation:
